

MARIJUANA: Is It Really Dangerous?

By LYNN MULVANEY
Fourth of 6 Articles

"As long as I don't hurt anyone else, I can do what I want."

"Marijuana isn't as harmful as alcohol."

"Men in Vietnam are using pot."

"Smoking a joint has no adverse effect at all. I tried it, I know."

These are just some of the overworked rationalizations offered by today's teenager who seeks an excuse for marijuana experimentation.

The arguments mount and reverberate through high school corridors, in household kitchens, on college campuses.

Unfortunately they are backed up by a tremendous amount of underground literature on the whole question of marijuana and other common drugs today.

They are also backed, too, by scores of financially and sensationally profitable articles which have been seeded in national publications during the past year. Then, too, sometimes in an effort to be "fair" the writer all but condones and sometimes urges the legalization of pot.

To this we must add the fact that adults are thought to be living in a drugged society themselves. There are pills to put you to sleep, pills to wake you up, pills to pep you, to tranquilize you. Inadvertently, perhaps, the establishment has been saying, "Drugs are beneficial."

But what of marijuana itself. Is it really dangerous? "There is no American data as yet on the long, continued use of hashish or marijuana, but such effects are well known in the Middle East and the Orient, and they include vagabondage and chronic psychosis."

That is the opinion of New York State's top narcotics expert, Dr. Henry Brill, vice chairman of the Narcotic Addiction Control Commission.

He terms a false issue the argument that marijuana does not produce physical addiction.

Delirious Effect

"The fact is that the drug can have a delirious effect on the mental health of the drug user and on his life pattern, he says.

The damage is psychological, it hurts work habits, and all scientific evidence shows it is a hazard. For instance:

Five to ten per cent will abuse and seek more concentrated and powerful agents.

Marijuana in sufficient dosage will produce all the hallucinations of LSD in certain people.

The use of marijuana interferes with the scholastic arena and the least use is found where the greatest educational drives are and where academic expectations are high.

This is not to infer however that good students with good IQ's are not experimenting with marijuana because proof exists that its popularity is fast gaining among this peer group.

It fact, it is the good student who is sometimes inclined to argue in favor of marijuana's mind-expanding properties.

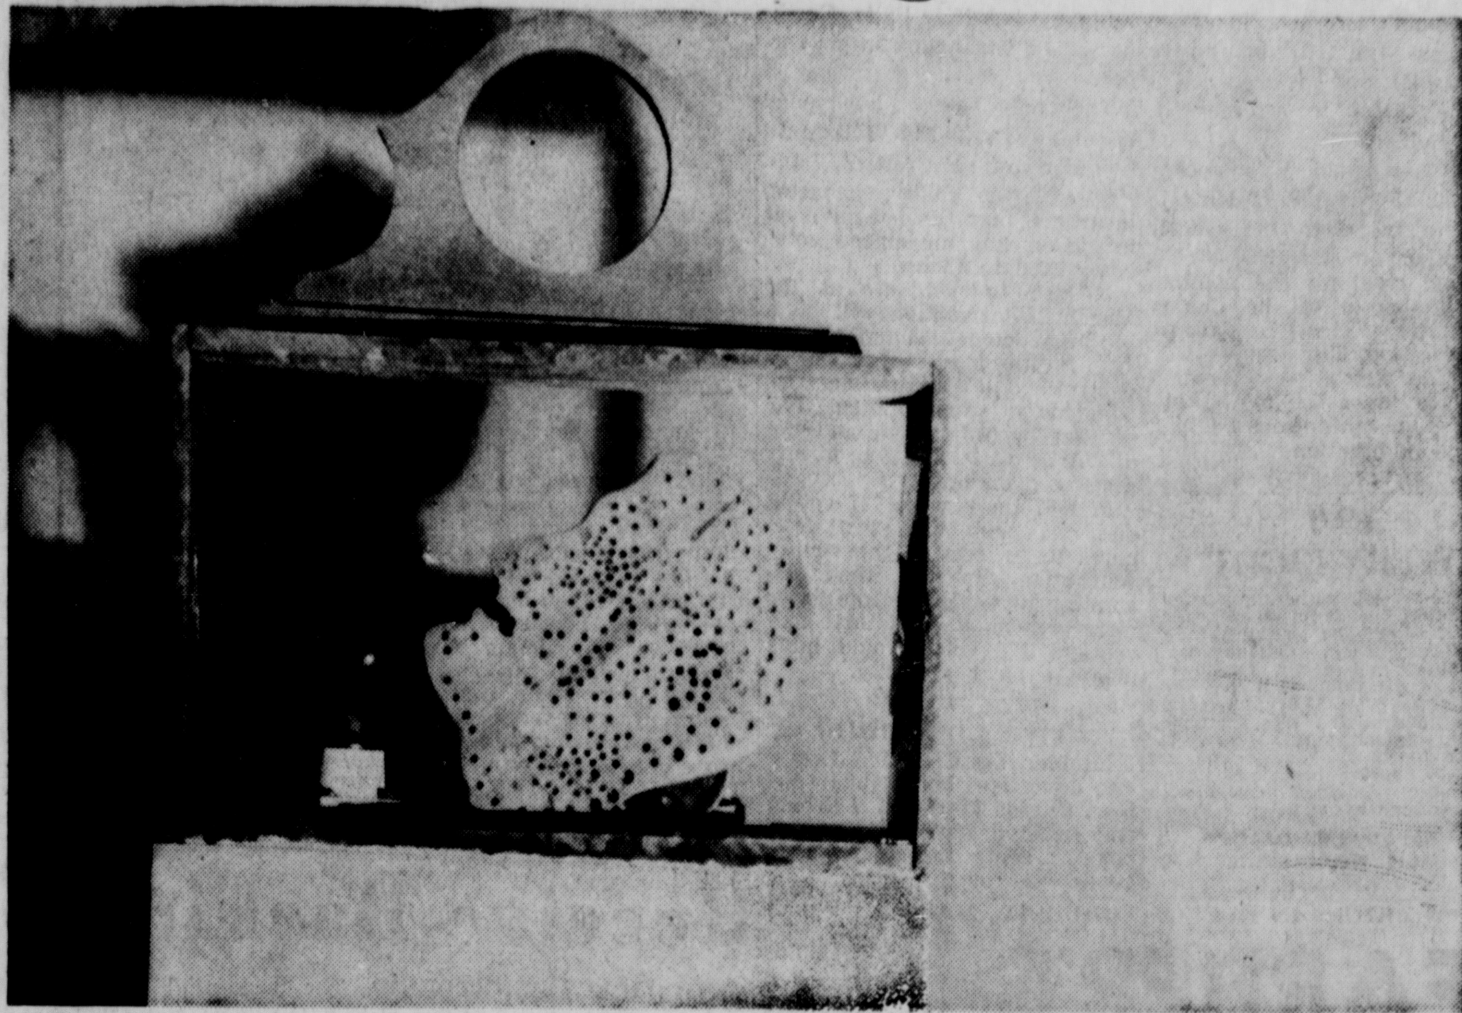

In Humanities

Interestingly, its use in colleges is found among teachers and students who are interested in the humanities. The least interest is found among those studying math or sciences such as physics or chemistry, Dr. Brill states.

Advocates of smoking pot also claim it increases creativity, but there is no evidence that this is so.

In one study accomplished pianists were tape recorded while playing under the influence of an hallucinogen. They insisted that had never played so well before, but when the tapes were played back later almost invariably their reaction was "How could I have been so bad?"

Bobby Ready to Make Move

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has stepped to the brink of presidential candidacy and a key aide says he'll make his decision in a week.

Kennedy huddled with political advisers in New York Wednesday night after saying in Washington he is reassessing whether to run against President Johnson.

Vote Showed Concern

The New York Democrat said the New Hampshire primary results removed "the major obstacle" to challenging Johnson—and said the vote demonstrated Democratic concern over Johnson policies.

But Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who drew an unexpectedly high 42 per cent of the New Hampshire Democratic vote, said he won't pull out of the race whatever the New Yorker decides to do.

"He's been reassessing his position all along the way," McCarthy told newsmen after a 20-minute meeting with Kennedy. "I said I intended to stay in the primaries and in the race," the Minnesotan added.

A close aide said Kennedy will make his decision by March 22, the deadline for entering the May 28 Oregon primary. And Kennedy said if he runs he probably would have to campaign actively in the primaries.

"Otherwise, there is no reason why anyone should consider me," he told newsmen.

Kennedy said the major obstacle to his candidacy had been a fear of deeply dividing the Democratic party if he was suspected of personal ambition or personal animosity toward Johnson.

But McCarthy's strong showing in New Hampshire removed the personal element, Kennedy said, and "indicated a good deal of concern in the Democratic party about the direction our country is going."

Same Viet Policies

Kennedy said Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings this week indicated the administration is sticking to its Vietnam policies—and he criticized Johnson for not saying what he will do with recommendations from his special riot commission.

Another factor in his reassessment, Kennedy said, is what he called the New Hampshire indication that "Richard Nixon is very likely to be the nominee of the Republican party."

Meanwhile, there was a report that four Midwest governors met with Kennedy last Saturday night and fears were expressed that Johnson's renomination could bring Democratic defeat.

Denies Story

That assessment was attributed to Gov. William Guy of North Dakota in a copyrighted story by the Kansas City Star—and Guy denied it.

"This topic of dumping Johnson was never brought up," Guy said.

Iowa Gov. Harold Hughes and an aide to Missouri Gov. Warren Hearnes denied the meeting with Kennedy was anything more than social, Kansas Gov. Robert Docking said none of the four urged Kennedy to run.

Grant Has Nurse Problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Cary Grant, recovering from an automobile accident, is doing fine says a hospital spokesman. "The only problem is that the nurses may kill him with kindness."

Grant, bruised about the face and chest, was visited at St. Johns Hospital, Queens, Wednesday night by his estranged wife, actress Dyan Cannon, 29.

The 64-year-old actor was injured Tuesday when his limousine was struck by a wheel assembly that had torn loose from a passing truck.

Castro and Private Industry

HAVANA (AP)—Re-sounding his battle cry against all private enterprise in Cuba, Prime Minister Fidel Castro declared Wednesday night the Communist party would soon take over all private bars and clubs.

In a 4½-hour speech the Cuban leader also said the 1967-68 sugar crop would fall 2.5 million metric tons short of the goal of 8 million tons, but he pledged Cuba would overcome its economic troubles.

Fowler Pushes Tax Bite

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler declared today it is necessary that Congress pass a big income tax increase within 30 days.

While he was testifying before the Senate Finance Committee, gold sales in Europe skyrocketed, and market observers said only firm action by the United States could restore public confidence.

Spiro Does It

BALTIMORE (AP)—Marylanders for Rockefeller, once a dream of Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, is a reality.

Agnew, who for 11 months personally promoted the candidacy of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the Republican presidential nomination presided over the opening of the movement to draft Rockefeller Wednesday.

The Maryland governor reiterated an earlier statement to the more than 60 persons attending the group's first formal meeting that he was "completely persuaded that Gov. Rockefeller will become an active candidate before the next two weeks passed."

Viet Toll Over 500 Once More

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. death toll in the Vietnam war topped 500 last week for the third time in four weeks, the U.S. Command reported today.

The command said 509 Americans were killed in combat and 2,766 were wounded last week, compared with 542 killed and 2,111 wounded the previous week.

In the week of Feb. 11-17, the number of Americans killed was the highest of the war—543. There were 470 killed in the week of Feb. 18-24.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported 418 government troops killed last week, 1,129 wounded and 98 missing or captured. This was a sharp rise over the week before, when 139 were reported killed, 779 wounded and 92 missing.

The U.S. Command reported that allied forces killed 4,335 of the enemy last week, while the South Vietnamese said 5,327 were killed and 488 captured. Discrepancies in the report of enemy casualties by the two commands is not unusual.

The report raised total American combat casualties in the war since January 1961 to 19,760 killed, 120,101 wounded and 1,087 missing or captured. Nearly half the wounded—56,457—did not require hospitalization.

McCarthy: No Change in Plans

By STANLEY JOHNSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy report his strong showing in the New Hampshire presidential primary has produced a surge of volunteers and some contributions. And most say Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's "reassessment" has not changed their plans.

McCarthy told newsmen Wednesday he thought it was "fine" for Kennedy to get into the race, but that it would have no effect on his own plans. The Minnesota Democrat then went to Wisconsin to join the young volunteers working for him in that state's primary.

"I think I can get the nomination," he said.

An Associated Press survey found McCarthy's opinion was shared by most of his supporters around the country as well, even after Kennedy's move to the edge of presidential candidacy.

"It makes no difference whatsoever in our plans," said Chairman Marvin Madsen of the McCarthy for President organization in St. Louis. "We're going all the way with Mc-Carthy. Kennedy is in the position of hanging on McCarthy's coat-tails, but he stands less of a chance of being elected than McCarthy."

Harry Beardsley of Concerned Democrats in Iowa said, "We realize there are a lot of Kennedy supporters working for McCarthy. We have known that sooner or later this question would have to be resolved. A great deal of McCarthy support could be directly transferred to Kennedy."

"On the other hand, it is not impossible that one of Kennedy's reassessment alternatives will be to put his support behind McCarthy."

While Kennedy continued to meditate, McCarthy organizations were reported growing across the nation following the New Hampshire vote.

One hundred leaders of Reform and Independent Democrats organized a Coalition for a Democratic Alternative in Brooklyn to support McCarthy. His New York headquarters reported an unprecedented stream of contributions.

"We have received $13,000 in two days," said co-director Sarah Kovner.

Some apparent bitterness against Kennedy was voiced. Harold Ickes, co-chairman and son of Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary of the interior said, "Kennedy gave very good reasons for reconsidering, but they were valid six months ago."

"It's too late for Kennedy," said Michael Tonkonogy, a retired schoolteacher, and another worker said his announcement "fits into the whole Kennedy image of being an opportunist."

A new McCarthy organization opened in Trenton, N.J. and, at a rally at Charlottesville, Va., plans were announced for new McCarthy clubs throughout Virginia.

Barber Makes Like 'Billy the Kid'

WAPPINGERS FALLS, N.Y. — A 23-year-old barber with an automatic shotgun held a music teacher and four men students at bay and threatened them with death in an adult education classroom in a high school near here Wednesday night.

The gunman fired three blasts—one of them in the direction of the teacher and one later in the direction of state troopers. No one was wounded.

Other classes were in session in the school at the time. The barber, identified as Carmine James Virgilio Jr. of Wappingers Falls, finally dropped his shotgun and walked out of the school with his hands up after troopers had talked to him softly and told him that "no one will be hurt if you give up."

Trooper D.B. Smith of the Fishkill Barracks, one of a detail of six sent to the school, said today that authorities were seeking to determine the motive for Virgilio's foray.

Virgilio was arraigned before Wappinger Town Justice William Bulzer and sent to the Dutchess County Jail at Poughkeepsie in lieu of $12,000 bail.

Virgilio's father, Carmine Virgilio, was one of the Hudson valley's leading amateur light-weights in the pre-war period. His series of bouts with the late Buddy Emberson of Kingston were comparable to the Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano brawls and drew several capacity crowds to the municipal auditorium.

Trooper Smith gave this account of Virgilio's invasion of the Roy C. Ketcham High School in a rural area near here in the Town of Wappinger:

Virgilio walked into a first-floor classroom about 9 p.m. and brandished his shotgun at teacher Richard A. Gordon, 27, of Poughkeepsie, and his four students.

After threatening the five with death, Virgilio put his gun against Gordon's head, said he was going to kill the teacher and any police who might arrive, and then marched the teacher to the first-floor school auditorium, which was dark and vacant.

In the auditorium, Virgilio released the teacher. But as the teacher was walking out of the door into the hall, Virgilio fired a blast that hit the auditorium wall next to the door.

Police could not determine immediately whether Virgilio missed the teacher in the dark, or whether he did not intend to

Bell Receives GOP Endorsement From Marbletown

The battle for the Republican nomination for the State Assembly seat now held by outgoing Kenneth L. Wilson continued to make its impact upon Ulster County politics when, in action last night, the GOP committee of Marbletown gave its eight delegate votes to attorney H. Clark Bell.

The 34-year-old Woodstocker now has 48 committed delegate votes to bring to the county convention on March 25. His principal rival for the nomination, Chairman of the County Legislature Peter J. Savago, has a count of 28 votes.

The Marbletown endorsement brings to seven the total number of town committees backing the Bell nomination.

The only other announced candidates, attorney William D. Brinnier of Saugerties, and Lawrence A. Quilty, Kingston insurance man, do not have, at this time, any announced votes committed to them.

Needed to nominate at the March 25 convention will be a majority delegate vote of around 120. An absolute total cannot be determined at this time because Kingston reapportionment has not yet been finalized and not all the delegates show up at any given convention.

In 1967 there were 127 voting districts, each with two delegates to be sent to the county convention. In 1967, then, assuming that all the delegates were present at a political convention, 128 votes would have meant a clear majority.

Resnick, Martin Receive Backing

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The executive committee of Ulster County's Democratic organization last night generated a bit of excitement when they:

- unanimously endorsed Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick's bid for the Democratic U.S. Senatorial nomination.
- came out for the renomination of William B. Martin for Ulster County sheriff.
- heard Gardner Supervisor George Majestic declare his availability for the state Assembly seat now held by outgoing Republican Kenneth L. Wilson.

Legislator Roger Mabie of Esopus informed the committee that he was considering running for the Assembly post. Another name being mentioned in party circles for the Assembly seat is that of Democratic County Chairman Dr. Gerald P. Gorman. An informed source said that the Kingston surgeon was "seriously considering" seeking the Democratic nod but he would only go after it if his candidacy would add to party unity.

Unanimous Endorsement

The committee met at the American Legion Hall on West O'Reilly Street and, as the first order of business after the minutes were read, discussed the Senatorial plans of Resnick. This was followed by the unanimous endorsement for the Ellenville Democrat and second-term representative.

No resolution was passed endorsing any candidate for the Assembly.

In a discussion involving a nomination for the State Senate, although no endorsing resolution was passed, the names of Dutchess County Democratic Chairman George Whalen and New Paltz photographer A. E. "Al" Woolley were mentioned. Woolley declared his availability for the seat now held by Senator Jay P. Rolison, a Republican.

The senatorial district, the 99th, includes the counties of Dutchess and Ulster.

Ulster County forms its own state assembly district, the 38th, and the 28th congressional district includes Columbia, Dutchess, Greene, Schoharie, and Ulster.

The Democratic executive committee, which includes the officers of the county organization and the 20 town chairmen plus the City of Kingston chairman, heard state committee-woman Irma Coty of Wawarsing announce that she would not seek renomination to the post because of health reasons.

Names mentioned to fill the upcoming Coty vacancy were Medeline Cole of Kingston, Dr. Frieda Martens of Ulster, Mrs. Ruth Heider of Gardiner, and Mrs. Dorothy Narel of West Hurley.

In a discussion involving a candidate for the congressional seat now held by Resnick, the name of John Dyson of Dutchess County was entered for consideration.

Dyson, 25, worked on the Resnick congressional staff, and has a masters degree from the Princeton school of political science.

March 2 Conclave

The Democratic county convention will take place in the afternoon of March 2 at the John F. Kennedy School.

After the Saturday convention there will be Sunday fund raising event at the Fallsview Hotel in Ellenville.

The convention will nominate for the U. S. Senate, congress, the state assembly, state senate, county sheriff and coroner. No candidate was put forth for county coroner.

In addition, the convention will select two state committee-men, seven delegates and seven alternates to the third judicial convention which may nominate a state supreme court judge.

A 42-year-old Kingston man was fatally injured at 6:45 p. m., Wednesday, when he was hit by an automobile as he walked along Route 28 about 1½ miles west of Route 209 near the Lansdell Asphalt Corp. plant.

Kingston State Police said the victim, Felix A. Huertas, of 46 Boulevard, died at 11:40 p. m. in Benedictine Hospital. Ulster County Coroner Henry S. Hartley of Saugerties reported, after an examination, that Huertas died of cerebral hemorrhage due to a laceration of the head and massive internal hemorrhages. He ruled the death accidental.

According to Kingston State Police reports, Huertas was walking on the pavement on Route 28 in an easterly direction with traffic, when he was hit by the right front fender of an eastbound car driven by Marcia J. Roosa, 19, of RD 1, Box 233A, West Hurley.

The woman told Sergeant Charles Bundschuh and Trooper Craig Bremer she was driving along the highway and didn't see the pedestrian in time to avoid the accident.

Doctors Ambulance attendants were summoned to the scene and removed Huertas to the hospital here after applying splints and fracture boards and administering emergency treatment en route to Benedictine.

Huertas was Ulster County's seventh highway fatality of 1968, and the third this month. It was the second traffic death recorded by area authorities this week. Stephan F. Premo Jr., 20, of Ulster Park, was killed Sunday when his car was involved in a head-on collision on Route 9W in Port Ewen with a vehicle driven by Matthew W. Murtagh, 25, of 61 East Chester Street, Kingston.

The seventh traffic death in 1967 occurred on March 5. The victim of that mishap was a 40-year-old Saugerties woman who died of injuries sustained when a car driven by her 44-year-old husband went out of control after skidding on snow-covered pavement and crashed into a tree on Route 212 west of Route 32 in the Town of Saugerties.

The county highway traffic death toll in 1967 was 43. Two of those fatalities were recorded in March.

Last night's accident was investigated by State Police Sergeant

Esopus Town Votes in Favor Of the Bounty

The Town of Esopus came out in favor of continuing the bounty on fox and bobcats last night.

At a regular monthly meeting held at town hall, the board voted unanimously on a resolution asking the Ulster County Legislature to continue its use of the bounty system as a means of protecting other wild game.

The board also commented on the fact that rabies disease is found among the fox population.

Another resolution received the full endorsement of the town board which came out in support of a prefilled bill pending in the state legislature. It calls for an increase in the amount of fees collectable by town justices.

Discussion was also held on local problems of junk cars and junkyard ordinances.

Bell Receives GOP Endorsement From Marbletown

The battle for the Republican nomination for the State Assembly seat now held by outgoing Kenneth L. Wilson continued to make its impact upon Ulster County politics when, in action last night, the GOP committee of Marbletown gave its eight delegate votes to attorney H. Clark Bell.

The 34-year-old Woodstocker now has 48 committed delegate votes to bring to the county convention on March 25. His principal rival for the nomination, Chairman of the County Legislature Peter J. Savago, has a count of 28 votes.

The Marbletown endorsement brings to seven the total number of town committees backing the Bell nomination.

In the Bell column are the delegations from Woodstock, Olive, Town of Kingston, Hardenburgh, Hurley, Rochester, and now Marbletown.

Savago has New Paltz, Gardiner and Shawangunk in his corner.

The only other announced candidates, attorney William D. Brinnier of Saugerties, and Lawrence A. Quilty, Kingston insurance man, do not have, at this time, any announced votes committed to them.

Needed to nominate at the March 25 convention will be a majority delegate vote of around 120. An absolute total cannot be determined at this time because Kingston reapportionment has not yet been finalized and not all the delegates show up at any given convention.

In 1967 there were 127 voting districts, each with two delegates to be sent to the county convention. In 1967, then, assuming that all the delegates were present at a political convention, 128 votes would have meant a clear majority.

TRAGEDY ON WHEELS — Man struggles on ground beside smashed race car which sits astride curb as spectators scatter in background in Joinville, Brazil (top photo). At bottom spectators at the "Three Hours of Joinville" race rush to aid friends who were felled by careening cars when a woman ran onto the track to retrieve her dog. Attempting to avoid the woman, one car (38) braked and another car swerved and slammed into the first, hopping the curb and slicing into the crowd. Police reported four persons dead and 40 injured, 10 seriously. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Resnick, Martin Receive Backing

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The executive committee of Ulster County's Democratic organization last night generated a bit of excitement when they:

- unanimously endorsed Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick's bid for the Democratic U.S. Senatorial nomination.
- came out for the renomination of William B. Martin for Ulster County sheriff.
- heard Gardiner Supervisor George Majestic declare his availability for the state Assembly seat now held by outgoing Republican Kenneth L. Wilson.

Legislator Roger Mabie of Esopus informed the committee that he was considering running for the Assembly post.

Another name being mentioned in party circles for the Assembly seat is that of Democratic County Chairman Dr. Gerald P. Gorman. An informed source said that the Kingston surgeon was "seriously considering" seeking the Democratic nod but he would only go after it if his candidacy would add to party unity.

Unanimous Endorsement

The committee met at the American Legion Hall on West O'Reilly Street and, as the first order of business after the minutes were read, discussed the Senatorial plans of Resnick. This was followed by the unanimous endorsement for the Ellenville Democrat and second-term representative.

No resolution was passed endorsing any candidate for the Assembly.

In a discussion involving a nomination for the State Senate, although no endorsing resolution was passed, the names of Dutchess County Democratic Chairman George Whalen and New Paltz photographer A. E. "Al" Woolley were mentioned. Woolley declared his availability for the seat now held by Senator Jay P. Rolison, a Republican.

The senatorial district, the 99th, includes the counties of Dutchess and Ulster.

Ulster County forms its own state assembly district, the 38th, and the 28th congressional district includes Columbia, Dutchess, Greene, Schoharie, and Ulster.

The Democratic executive committee, which includes the officers of the county organization and the 20 town chairmen plus the City of Kingston chairman, heard state committee-woman Irma Coty of Wawarsing announce that she would not seek renomination to the post because of health reasons.

Names mentioned to fill the upcoming Coty vacancy were Medeline Cole of Kingston, Dr. Frieda Martens of Ulster, Mrs. Ruth Heider of Gardiner, and Mrs. Dorothy Narel of West Hurley.

In a discussion involving a candidate for the congressional seat now held by Resnick, the name of John Dyson of Dutchess County was entered for consideration.

Dyson, 25, worked on the Resnick congressional staff, and has a masters degree from the Princeton school of political science.

March 2 Conclave

The Democratic county convention will take place in the afternoon of March 2 at the John F. Kennedy School.

After the Saturday convention there will be Sunday fund raising event at the Fallsview Hotel in Ellenville.

The convention will nominate for the U. S. Senate, congress, the state assembly, state senate, county sheriff and coroner. No candidate was put forth for county coroner.

In addition, the convention will select two state committeemen, seven delegates and seven alternates to the third judicial convention which may nominate a state supreme court judge.

Pedestrian Is Killed, County's 7th Fatality

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

A 42-year-old Kingston man was fatally injured at 6:45 p. m., Wednesday, when he was hit by an automobile as he walked along Route 28 about 1½ miles west of Route 209 near the Lansdell Asphalt Corp. plant.

Kingston State Police said the victim, Felix A. Huertas, of 46 Boulevard, died at 11:40 p. m. in Benedictine Hospital.

Ulster County Coroner Henry S. Hartley of Saugerties reported, after an examination, that Huertas died of cerebral hemorrhage due to a laceration of the head and massive internal hemorrhages. He ruled the death accidental.

According to Kingston State Police reports, Huertas was walking on the pavement on Route 28 in an easterly direction with traffic, when he was hit by the right front fender of an eastbound car driven by Marcia J. Roosa, 19, of RD 1, Box 233A, West Hurley.

The woman told Sergeant Charles Bundschuh and Trooper Craig Bremer she was driving along the highway and didn't see the pedestrian in time to avoid the accident.

Doctors Ambulance attendants were summoned to the scene and removed Huertas to the hospital here after applying splints and fracture boards and administering emergency treatment en route to Benedictine.

Huertas was Ulster County's seventh highway fatality of 1968, and the third this month. It was the second traffic death recorded by area authorities this week. Stephan F. Premo Jr., 20, of Ulster Park, was killed Sunday when his car was involved in a head-on collision on Route 9W in Port Ewen with a vehicle driven by Matthew W. Murtagh, 25, of 61 East Chester Street, Kingston.

The seventh traffic death in 1967 occurred on March 5. The victim of that mishap was a 40-year-old Saugerties woman who died of injuries sustained when a car driven by her 44-year-old husband went out of control after skidding on snow-covered pavement and crashed into a tree on Route 212 west of junkyard ordinances.

Files Suit Against City On Nursing Home Addition

Zoning changes don't come easy in Kingston. Robert E. Davis of 138 Pearl Street has filed a suit against the city in connection with a zoning change that would permit the building of an 80-bed wing on the Hutton Nursing Home at 172 Pearl Street.

Davis, president of Kingston Knitting Mills, teamed with Harry M. Thayer, president of Station WGHQ in an unsuccessful attempt to have the Democrat plan for reapportionment overruled. The state's highest courts upheld the Democrats and the plan for the redistricting of the city's 13 wards is now being implemented.

In his latest suit Davis is applying for a stay to stop the building of the $960,000 nursing home. Among other things, Davis questions the procedures used by the city that led to the 11-2 vote for the zoning change Jan. 2 by the Common Council.

That vote, in itself, was somewhat irregular in that the Laws and Rules Committee, which had the zoning change in its hands since the summer of 1967, was relieved of its duties. No one actually voted against the measure, two aldermen abstaining. John Naccarato (R-Third Ward) and John Machione (R-12th Ward). An abstention is recorded as an automatic "no" according to Council rules.

The area was previously zoned as a non-conforming use in a residential (Triple-R) area. It was rezoned general commercial (C-2).

A court battle by Davis could bring judicial review of Kingston's current zoning laws which were passed in November, 1963.

Esopus Town Votes in Favor Of the Bounty

The Town of Esopus came out in favor of continuing the bounty on fox and bobcats last night.

At a regular monthly meeting held at town hall, the board voted unanimously on a resolution asking the Ulster County Legislature to continue its use of the bounty system as a means of protecting other wild game.

The board also commented on the fact that rabies disease is found among the fox population.

Another resolution received the full endorsement of the town board which came out in support of a prefiled bill pending in the state legislature. It calls for an increase in the amount of fees collectable by town justices.

Discussion was also held on local problems of junk cars and into a tree on Route 212 west of junkyard ordinances.

Woodstock-W. Hurley Priority Areas for New YMCA Programs

The YMCA has announced plans to launch this September its extension activities in several areas now within the Community Chest designated boundaries, and because of the large number of YM constituents in the Woodstock-West Hurley area already, this will be a priority area for the new YMCA extension program. This announcement was made by Paul Coon, president of the YM of Kingston and Ulster County. YMs plan call for the extension of the YMCA Indian Guide Tribe program, a home-centered father and son program, to be developed in the Woodstock and West Hurley areas, Indian Guide activities to be coordinated with other Indian Guide tribes already active in the county. As this program is developed and groups are formed they would be brought in to the new central YM facilities in Kingston to be programmed on evenings and weekends.

The YM building fund campaign for new and modern facilities to serve as an extension center for YM activities into the whole of the county is presently underway. Leadership for the YM building fund campaign in Woodstock-West Hurley is being chaired by Robert Nicoll. Nicoll pointed out that in addition to the new YM center in Kingston, the YM day camp site in Shokan is presently also being used by Woodstock area groups, and this use will increase as many of the newly formed YM groups in this area take advantage of this beautiful site for picnics, overnight camping trips, and youth and family outings. The YM camp bus picks up in the Woodstock-West Hurley area all summer for boys and girls wishing to attend.

Nicoll stated that in addition to the club program the extension programs will further include sport skill classes after school and Saturdays. These classes will be promoted by the YM extension director who will hire local coaches and teachers to run the programs in local facilities that can be made available such as church halls, community buildings or school playgrounds.

Other persons carrying key roles in the local area campaign for the YM building fund include Al Wenner, Domenick Castaldo, Pearl Kreisberg, Odd Block, Joan Donohue, John Bonilla, Dwight Harris, Eric Wiltz, and William Sheehan.

Town Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Woodstock Town Board will be held Tuesday, March 19 at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall. The public is invited to attend.

A. Kazen of Texas. All are Democrats.

Psychological Warfare

South Vietnam's National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, had never conceded that North Vietnam was in any way participating in the fighting in South Vietnam. Despite the presence of several divisions of North Vietnamese regulars, this fiction was maintained. Much less did they admit that the Front's military control was totally under the North Vietnamese.

Since the build-up in the northwest corner of South Vietnam, there has been a change. More and more, the word was that Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Vietnam's defense minister, was planning a showdown battle with mixed North Vietnamese and Viet Cong elements. Finally, the Viet Cong radio broadcast the news that Giap personally is leading the offensive. Transcripts were distributed by the U.S. Embassy.

This is an important change. It destroys the myth that the Viet Cong are fighting a civil war against the government of South Vietnam. It confirms South Vietnam's plea that it is fighting a war of survival against a foreign aggressor determined on annexing the country and ruling the people against their will. It firms the American presence in answer to the plea of a ravaged country.

Giap was the architect of the defeat of the French at Dien Bien Phu, the climactic battle of the French Indochina war. He hopes to duplicate that effort with one over the United States at Khe Sanh, Dak To, Chu Lai or Da Nang, major places of concentration of American troops.

Lures for Cuba Trade

It came as a surprise that the United States would be willing to resume trade in non-strategic goods with Cuba on any condition. The two steps imposed by this country, as described by Covey T. Oliver, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, were intolerable to Premier Fidel Castro and his regime.

Oliver described the conditions to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee. The first would require Cuba to sever military ties with Communist powers, including the Soviet Union. The second would require Cuba to cease efforts to subvert other hemisphere governments, termed in Communist jargon "hooliganism."

In effect, our conditions would require Castro to give up his Communism, for without aggression and proselytizing, Communism is Socialism. The surprising thing to us was that the State Department believes any trade lure could move Castro.

The only thing that will bring Cuba into the inter-American system again is the overthrow of Castro from within. His own people will realize one day how he has betrayed, brutalized and impoverished them, and will rise against him. Trade alone will not do it.

Human Misery Is Cheap

The South Vietnamese government has announced what it will pay its civilians for losses incurred in the current Communist offensive. Here's the going rate for human tragedy:

To a family whose home was less than 50 per cent destroyed: $12.70.

To a family whose home was totally or more than 50 per cent destroyed: $25.40.

For a wounded child: $8.40.

For a dead adult: $33.60.

Well, no one can say that the $20 billion the United States is spending on the Vietnam war each year is being squandered on the South Vietnamese people.

At least not on the POOR people.

Some Senators Display Lack of Background

WASHINGTON—For eleven hours Secretary of State Rusk answered questions about foreign aid and the Vietnam war at public hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Monday and Tuesday. Parts of the proceedings were televised, but it is doubtful whether any substantial proportion of the listeners across the country really understood the dialogue on foreign policy. Indeed, it seemed at times that some of the senators themselves didn't have enough background on the intricacy of America's problems abroad to ask meaningful questions.

Yet this conference of members of the Senate with the Secretary of State was supposed to be an example of how the executive and legislative branches of the government deal with a subject as complex as the Vietnam war.

An analysis of the interrogation shows clearly that several senators believe the United States should not participate in any wars overseas and that it doesn't have the responsibility to repel aggression except when the territory of the United States is directly attacked. Some of the points raised by the Senators reflected the protests and discontent of their constituents, so many of whom are reported as believing that, no matter how humiliating it may be, the United States should withdraw its armed forces and "mind its own business."

As Secretary Rusk explained, international life has changed since World War I began, and all nations, large and small, are supposed to have become partners in the humanitarian effort to preserve the peace. Many Americans have forgotten that both world wars were the direct result of a misguided pacifism and isolationism. Even the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950 was based on an assumption that the United States would not come to the rescue if the Communists moved against South Korea.

Today, with the Communists active in Africa, Latin America, Europe and Asia, in efforts to subvert free governments and infiltrate many countries, there are still those Americans who believe that all this can be regarded as a "myth" or an "illusion."

Secretary Rusk was very skillful and dignified in replying to the questions. He tried to explain the difficulties which confront diplomats in trying to make peace with a Communist-controlled government like that in North Vietnam. Some of the senators appeared to be not so much interested in Mr. Rusk's answers, as they were in expounding the views which they thought would be pleasing to their constituents back home who would like to forget Vietnam war altogether.

The implication was that the State and Defense Departments should take orders from Congress, and that military commanders should conduct their strategy in conformity with principles laid important and least reported story of the war. It has gone largely unreported because it is a deeply personal thing with those involved, whether they be military men, civilian officials or members of the press corps.

There has been more personal soul-searching about Vietnam and our presence here during the last six or seven weeks than during the previous six or seven years. Even though they fell short of some of their goals, the Communists succeeded brilliantly in producing a shock effect that may alter the course of the war. And that was their primary objective. The trauma may be fatal unless something bold and drastic is done to erase it, to reverse the tide.

That the Viet Cong were able to infiltrate whole battalions into every major city in South Vietnam, including the capital; that they did this under the nose of the vast allied intelligence network, that they were able to shoot their way into the American Embassy and hold out for 6 1/2 hours—all this and more is something that no American will forget. Nor should he.

In strictly military terms the Communists have not won a single victory. They were not able to hold for long a single populated place of importance, although the Viet Cong flag flew over Hue for a month. But psychologically the attacks were devastating. In terms of casualties Hanoi paid a frightful price. But as North Vietnam's Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, conqueror of Dien Bien Phu and supposedly the chief architect of the Tet offensive, has said: "Every minute hundreds of thousands of people are dying down by a Senate committee. Mr. Rusk declared that the Communists would be able to read every word spoken at the public hearings. For that reason, he declined to go into details about how the United States would conduct a peace negotiation. He said that, even if the United States ceased bombing, the North Vietnamese would not consider themselves obligated to stop their infiltration into South Vietnam and their continued attacks in the South.

The United States government is committed, according to Secretary Rusk, to continue the war and force the North Vietnamese to go back across their borders. It is apparent, however, that even if a truce agreement were drawn up and each side withdrew to its own jurisdiction, there would be no assurance of peace. The United States and its allies will have to organize a collective defense force to make sure that peace is maintained.

The critics who expressed themselves at the hearings seem to feel that Congress should be consulted about the details of military operations as well as diplomatic maneuvers, and before important decisions are made. But, as Secretary Rusk argued, the executive branch of the government can point to plenty of precedents and to the basic principles of the Constitution itself for the right to operate independently of congressional supervision once the use of armed forces has been authorized.

The New Frontier-Great Society inherited a Federal debt of $283 billion. Breaking every promise they previously made Presidents Kennedy and Johnson alike plunged directly into more debt. They lifted the legal ceiling seven times.

In presenting his fiscal 1968 budget, President Johnson stated in the same meaningless words he has previously used with monotonous regularity: "I have trimmed this budget down to our most absolute needs. Last year Mr. Johnson ran up a $20 billion deficit, again financed by money we haven't got. This year looks even worse."

The New Frontier-Great Society inherited a gold reserve of $21 billion. Said candidate Kennedy in an October, 1960, campaign speech: "We will overcome the balance-of-payments problem and the gold outflow will stop." On March 1, 1968, our gold stock was $12 billion. It hit another new 40-year low. And the government was self-driven into proposing to remove the gold backing from our currency entirely.

In 1940 Washington's tax take totaled a mere $40.28 per year per capita. By 1966, under the Great Society, the Federal tax per man, woman and child in this country—and an immensely more populous country at that—had leaped to $654.48. In 1967 it was $745.16 per capita.

The respected Tax Foundation, Inc., an independent research organization, finds that the average American will spend two hours and 25 minutes of his eight-hour working day — every day — this year to earn the money to pay his taxes.

Under the New Frontier-Great Society the average family's cost of living has increased about 20 points in the index — nearly three points a year, year after year. On March 1 it reached another new all-time high.

Trend Is Toward Military Takeover of Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON — Before the Senate votes money for 200,000 more U.S. troops to Vietnam, it should take a careful look at two things:

1—The slip-and-slide manner in which we have become involved in a major war without the consent of Congress.

2—The manner in which the American military more and more are shaping, now almost directing, foreign policy.

The trend toward military dictation of foreign policy has been developing for some time, but has reached a peak under Lyndon Johnson. Today there are only three civilian advisers whom he consults — Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who has become so entrenched regarding Vietnam that he has lost his perspective; Walt Rostow, who was responsible for our original involvement in Vietnam under Kennedy and now wants to justify his mistake; and the new Secretary of Defense, Clark Clifford, who has kept his perspective.

These three lunch with the President once a week. Secretary of Defense McNamara, now retired, is reported to have had a feeling of remorse that he was partly responsible for leading the country deeper and deeper into war. Clifford, who has taken his place, is a tough, shrewd observer and not as much of a hawk as originally reported. It now develops that he was against the bombing of North Vietnam on the fatal night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the Johnson administration took its biggest escalation step. He felt the decision was a serious error.

It was the military who persuaded the President to take this step. Acting Secretary of State George Ball vigorously opposed the escalation. Ball argued that Premier Kosygin, who had been in office only four months, had arrived in Hanoi only the day before, and to bomb at that time looked like a deliberate slap at him. Later it developed that Kosygin had been on a mission to persuade the North Vietnamese to talk peace.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff have been the guiding factor in setting American policy in Vietnam ever since. Simultaneously the war has been going from bad to worse.

Military Encroachment

The encroachment of the American military on foreign policy under Johnson is not entirely new. To some extent it began under Franklin Roosevelt, who gave the Navy a much bigger role than the Army. Roosevelt had served as Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Wilson, and represented the manner in which the Republicans under Coolidge and Hoover had scrapped battleships and curtailed cruisers. FDR rebuilt the Navy at a tremendous speed, but never let the admirals or the generals run World War II.

Harry Truman, a veteran of Battery D in the old Missouri National Guard, reversed this, gave more power to the Army. His close friend and military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan, was a staunch Army man, and on occasion helped siphon arms to Latin American nations despite the opposition of the State Department. Truman, however, never let the Army get out of hand, and fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he stepped over the line.

Significantly it was a military President, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who curbed the Army more than any other recent President. The generals used to complain that like cut the military budget more than any civilian President. Like understood army politics, and was tough with his old buddies when they tried to lobby on Capitol Hill. He also warned, as he left office, of the danger of an alliance between the defense contractors and the military.

Kennedy returned the military to a position of power, emphasizing a 50-year fact that the military have always prospered under Democratic Presidents.

LBJ's Record

However, no Democrat has given the military so much scope as Lyndon Johnson. Lyndon's kowtowing to the brass began when he was a young lieutenant commander in the South Pacific in World War II. Later he served on the House Naval Affairs Committee, then as chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee.

As such, he teamed up with generals and admirals to blast Eisenhower for the missile gap. As Senate Majority Leader he was in a potent position to give the military the appropriations they wanted, and he did.

The generals and admirals, in return, put more military bases in Texas than in any other state in the Union. If the civilians, who were supposed to run the military under Ike, tried to economize on a base in Texas, they heard from Lyndon in no uncertain terms. And the military always rushed to his defense. Texas bases, no matter how outmoded, were not curtailed or transferred out of the state.

This alliance between LBJ and the brass hats has continued as the onetime Senator from Texas has moved into the White House.

The President's latest romance has been with Gen. William Westmoreland, who was caught napping during the Tet lunar holiday in a manner almost as serious as Admiral H. E. Kimmel and General Walter Short were caught napping at Pearl Harbor. They were removed from command and disciplined.

Gen. Westmoreland, instead of being removed, has asked for and will probably get 200,000 more troops. Significantly, the oldest friend the President has on Capitol Hill had been publicly critical of Westmoreland. When LBJ, a very young Senator from Texas, aspired to be Senate Majority Leader in 1953, it was Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia who got on elder statesman, who got on the long distance telephone to absent Senators, then not in session, and rounded up the votes.

Today, Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has joined the public critics of Gen. Westmoreland. But his old friend, now in the White House, seems mesmerized as far as military mistakes are concerned.

Leaders Blamed for U. S. Condition

On March 1 the gross Federal debt reached precisely $352,546,363,116.57.

This U. S. Treasury figure hits each one of us where it hurts. And if our country is to be saved it will only be saved by holding our bungling leaders accountable for what they do.

Given good and sensible management we would not be in our perilous state at home and abroad. None of it was, or is, inevitable.

Good management cannot save everything, but bad management can ruin anything. The greatest need in public information today is to break through the double-talk and come up with the actual score.

NATO, and there were only 750 American military men in South Vietnam, all of them serving only as advisers.

In the seven years since Mr. Kennedy's decision to commit the first U.S. combat troops (12,000) there, the war—still undeclared—has become the third largest we have ever fought. And in these seven years, accompanied by manipulated news, endless victory statements and the sending of 500,000 men, we have still not built an effective front and are still not secure on our flanks or in our rear.

For five solid years this column has called Vietnam a mismanaged war. What more evidence is needed than the situation today? The conclusion is inescapable that the American people are victims of the greatest military scandal in the history of the United States.

Good government isn't a partisan matter. A question of Democrats or Republicans. It's a matter of performance. Bad government relies on the public's forgetfulness. It survives by tucking its bad performance under the bed. The bunglers resort to their usual practice of thimble-rigging, juggling the pea in their regular way. But what happens to the country in the meanwhile?

Our bamboozled public should thoroughly understand that our leadership is to blame and should be held accountable for the shame and fears that horrify us all.

Oliver described the conditions to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee. The first would require Cuba to sever military ties with Communist powers, including the Soviet Union. The second would require Cuba to cease efforts to subvert other hemisphere governments, termed in Communist jargon "hoologanism."

In effect, our conditions would require Castro to give up his Communism, for without aggression and proselytizing, Communism is Socialism. The surprising thing to us was that the State Department believes any trade lure could move Castro.

The only thing that will bring Cuba into the inter-American system again is the overthrow of Castro from within. His own people will realize one day how he has betrayed, brutalized and impoverished them, and will rise against him. Trade alone will not do it.

Human Misery Is Cheap

The South Vietnamese government has announced what it will pay its civilians for losses incurred in the current Communist offensive. Here's the going rate for human tragedy:

To a family whose home was less than 50 per cent destroyed: $12.70.

To a family whose home was totally or more than 50 per cent destroyed: $25.40.

For a wounded child: $8.40.

For a dead adult: $33.60.

Well, no one can say that the $20 billion the United States is spending on the Vietnam war each year is being squandered on the South Vietnamese people.

At least not on the POOR people.

David Lawrence Says Some Senators Display Lack of Background

WASHINGTON—For eleven hours Secretary of State Rusk answered questions about foreign aid and the Vietnam war at public hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Monday and Tuesday. Parts of the proceedings were televised, but it is doubtful whether any substantial proportion of the listeners across the country really understood the dialogue on foreign policy. Indeed, it seemed at times that some of the senators themselves didn't have enough background on the intricacy of America's problems abroad to ask meaningful questions.

Yet this conference of members of the Senate with the Secretary of State was supposed to be an example of how the executive and legislative branches of the government deal with a subject as complex as the Vietnam war. An analysis of the interrogation shows clearly that several senators believe the United States should not participate in any wars overseas and that it doesn't have the responsibility to repel aggression except when the territory of the United States is directly attacked. Some of the points raised by the Senators reflected the protests and discontent of their constituents, so many of whom are reported as believing that, no matter how humiliating it may be, the United States should withdraw its armed forces and "mind its own business."

As Secretary Rusk explained, international life has changed since World War I began, and all nations, large and small, are supposed to have become partners in the humanitarian effort to preserve the peace. Many Americans have forgotten that both world wars were the direct result of a misguided pacifism and isolationism. Even the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950 was based on an assumption that the United States would not come to the rescue if the Communists moved against South Korea.

Today, with the Communists active in Africa, Latin America, Europe and Asia, in efforts to subvert free governments and infiltrate many countries, there are still those Americans who believe that all this can be regarded as a "myth" or an "illusion."

Secretary Rusk was very skillful and dignified in replying to the questions. He tried to explain the difficulties which confront diplomats in trying to make peace with a Communist-controlled government like that in North Vietnam. Some of the senators appeared to be not so much interested in Mr. Rusk's answers, as they were in expounding the views which they thought would be pleasing to their constituents back home who would like to forget Vietnam war altogether.

The implication was that the State and Defense Departments should take orders from Congress, and that military commanders should conduct their strategy in conformity with principles laid down by a Senate committee. Mr. Rusk declared that the Communists would be able to read every word spoken at the public hearings. For that reason, he declined to go into details about how the United States would conduct a peace negotiation. He said that, even if the United States ceased bombing, the North Vietnamese would not consider themselves obligated to stop their infiltration into South Vietnam and their continued attacks in the South.

The United States government is committed, according to Secretary Rusk, to continue the war and force the North Vietnamese to go back across their borders. It is apparent, however, that even if a truce agreement were drawn up and each side withdrew to its own jurisdiction, there would be no assurance of peace. The United States and its allies will have to organize a collective defense force to make sure that peace is maintained.

The critics who expressed themselves at the hearings seem to feel that Congress should be consulted about the details of military operations as well as diplomatic maneuvers, and before important decisions are made. But, as Secretary Rusk argued, the executive branch of the government can point to plenty of precedents and to the basic principles of the Constitution itself for the right to operate independently of congressional supervision once the use of armed forces has been authorized.

Two-Star General Wonders About the War in Vietnam

By KEYES BEECH
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service
SAIGON—"A War," said the two-star general, "isn't any fun any more."

He took a measured sip from his drink and continued, "It's centralized, computerized and automated. Those aren't my troops out there. They belong to the Pentagon."

"Remember Inchon. Remember when we went into Seoul? I lost a lot of men going into Seoul and so they gave me a silver star. I lost a lot more men at the Chosin Reservoir and they gave me another medal and finally promoted me to full colonel."

"The other day we took 48 fatalities in one battalion and now I've got an investigation." The general laughed ironically.

"I'll tell you something else," he said. "When I first came out here I was full of enthusiasm about this war. Now that I've been here for a while I'm beginning to wonder. I know generals aren't supposed to think about these things, but I can't help wondering what kind of country we are going to leave behind when this thing is over. Will the sacrifices we have made be worthwhile? I don't know, but I can't help wondering."

These were the thoughts of an honest man and a good American with variations, depending on the job and the nature of the individual, the general's thoughts were representative of the agonizing reappraisal that has been going on in the minds of all conscientious Americans in South Vietnam since the Communists' traumatic Tet (Lunar New Year) offensive. In more than 20 years in Asia I have never seen anything like it. It is in many ways the most important and least reported story of the war. It has gone largely unreported because it is a deeply personal thing with those involved, whether they be military men, civilian officials or members of the press corps.

There has been more personal soul-searching about Vietnam and our presence here during the last six or seven weeks than during the previous six or seven years.

Even though they fell short of some of their goals, the Communists succeeded brilliantly in producing a shock effect that may alter the course of the war. And that was their primary objective. The trauma may be fatal unless something bold and drastic is done to erase it, to reverse the tide.

That the Viet Cong were able to infiltrate whole battalions into every major city in South Vietnam, including the capital; that they did this under the nose of the vast allied intelligence network, that they were able to shoot their way into the American Embassy and hold out for 6½ hours—all this and more is something that no American will forget. Nor should he.

In strictly military terms the Communists have not won a single victory. They were not able to hold for long a single populated place of importance, although the Viet Cong flag flew over Hue for a month.

But psychologically the attacks were devastating. In terms of casualties Hanoi paid a frightful price. But as North Vietnam's Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, conqueror of Dien Bien Phu, and supposed to be the chief architect of the Tet offensive, has said: "Every minute hundreds of thousands of people are dying all over the world. The life or death of a hundred or a thousand or tens of thousands of human beings even if they are our own compatriots really represents very little."

Shockingly callous? Yes, by western standards, by Asian standards, too.

What Giap did was more than to shake confidence in the allied command. He planted doubts and misgivings. He made doubters out of believers. He raised such awful questions as can we ever win this war? If so, at what price? And if we should win what will be left of Vietnam when it is over?

There is a vast irony in all this, for the Communists have been telling us ever since the war started what their aim was and how they were going to achieve it—Once American troops and power were committed in 1965 they knew they could not win a military victory but they reckoned by hanging on, by inflicting maximum casualties without regard to their own losses, they would break our will to carry on the war.

They had their sights set on the 1968 presidential elections. They predicted that American frustration with the war would be so great as to produce "another Eisenhower," who would say, as he said of Korea in 1952, "I will go to Vietnam and end the war." Their prediction proved sound, although it is doubtful if they had cast Richard Nixon for the Eisenhower role.

Instead of talking about Khe Sanh being "another Dien Bien Phu" we might ask if we haven't already had our Dien Bien Phu. So far we have followed Hanoi's scenario to the letter. We have reacted to its prodding like Pavlov's dog.

Drew Pearson Says Trend Is Toward Military Takeover of Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON—Before the Senate votes money for 200,000 more U.S. troops to Vietnam, it should take a careful look at two things:

1—The slip-and-slide manner in which we have become involved in a major war without the consent of Congress.

2—The manner in which the American military more and more are shaping, now almost directing, foreign policy.

The trend toward military dictation of foreign policy has been developing for some time, but has reached a peak under Lyndon Johnson. Today there are only three civilian advisers whom he consults—Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who has become so entrenched regarding Vietnam that he has lost his perspective; Walt Rostow, who was responsible for our original involvement in Vietnam under Kennedy, and now wants to justify his mistake; and the new Secretary of Defense, Clark Clifford, who has kept his perspective.

These three lunch with the President once a week. Secretary of Defense McNamara, now retired, is reported to have had a feeling of remorse that he was partly responsible for leading the country deeper and deeper into war. Clifford, who has taken his place, is a tough, shrewd observer and not as much of a hawk as originally reported. It now develops that he was against the bombing of North Vietnam on the fatal night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the Johnson administration took its biggest escalation step. He felt the decision was a serious error.

It was the military who persuaded the President to take this step. Acting Secretary of State George Ball vigorously opposed the escalation. Ball argued that Premier Kosygin, who had been in office only four months, had arrived in Hanoi only the day before, and to bomb at that time looked like a deliberate slap at him. Later it developed that Kosygin had been on a mission to persuade the North Vietnamese to talk peace.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff have been the guiding factor in setting American policy in Vietnam ever since. Simultaneously the war has been going from bad to worse.

Military Encroachment

The encroachment of the American military on foreign policy under Johnson is not entirely new. To some extent it began under Franklin Roosevelt, who gave the Navy a much bigger role than the Army. Roosevelt had served as Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Wilson, and represented the manner in which the Republicans under Coolidge and Hoover had scrapped battleships and curtailed cruisers. FDR rebuilt the Navy at a tremendous speed, but never let the admirals or the generals run World War II.

Harry Truman, a veteran of Battery D in the old Missouri National Guard, reversed this, gave more power to the Army. His close friend and military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan, was a staunch Army man, and on occasion helped siphon arms to Latin American nations despite the opposition of the State Department. Truman, however, never let the Army get out of hand, and fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he stepped over the line.

Significantly it was a military President, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who curbed the Army more than any other recent President. The generals used to complain that like cut the military budget more than any civilian President. Ike understood army politics, and was tough with his old buddies when they tried to lobby on Capitol Hill. He also warned, as he left office, of the danger of an alliance between the defense contractors and the military.

Kennedy returned the military to a position of power, emphasizing a 50-year fact that the military have always prospered under Democratic Presidents.

LBJ's Record

However, no Democrat has given the military so much scope as Lyndon Johnson. Lyndon's kowtowing to the brass began when he was a young lieutenant commander in the South Pacific in World War II. Later he served on the House Naval Affairs Committee, then as chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee.

As such, he teamed up with generals and admirals to blast Eisenhower for the missile gap. As Senate Majority Leader he was in a potent position to give the military the appropriations they wanted, and he did.

The generals and admirals, in return, put more military bases in Texas than in any other state in the Union. If the civilians, who were supposed to run the military under Ike, tried to economize on a base in Texas, they heard from Lyndon in no uncertain terms. And the military always rushed to his defense. Texas bases, no matter how outmoded, were not curtailed or transferred out of the state.

This alliance between LBJ and the brass hats has continued as the onetime Senator from Texas has moved into the White House.

The President's latest romance has been with Gen. William Westmoreland, who was caught napping during the Tet lunar holiday in a manner almost as serious as Admiral H. E. Kimmel and General Walter Short were caught napping at Pearl Harbor. They were removed from command and disciplined.

Gen. Westmoreland, instead of being removed, has asked for and will probably get 200,000 more troops. Significantly, the oldest friend the President has on Capitol Hill had been publicly critical of Westmoreland. When LBJ, a very young Senator from Texas, aspired to be Senate Majority Leader in 1953, it was Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia who got on elder statesman, who got on the long distance telephone to absent Senators, then not in session, and rounded up the votes.

Today, Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has joined the public critics of Gen. Westmoreland. But his old friend, now in the White House, seems mesmerized as far as military mistakes are concerned.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Leaders Blamed for U. S. Condition

On March 1 the gross Federal debt reached precisely $352,546,363,116.57.

This U. S. Treasury figure hits each one of us where it hurts. And if our country is to be saved it will only be saved by holding our bungling leaders accountable for what they do.

Given good and sensible management we would not be in our perilous state at home and abroad. None of it was, or is, inevitable.

Good management cannot save everything, but bad management can ruin anything. The greatest need in public information today is to break through the double-talk and come up with the actual score.

The New Frontier-Great Society inherited a Federal debt of $283 billion. Breaking every promise they previously made Presidents Kennedy and Johnson alike plunged directly into more debt. They lifted the legal ceiling seven times.

In presenting his fiscal 1968 budget, President Johnson stated in the same meaningless words he has previously used with monotonous regularity: "I have trimmed this budget down to our most absolute needs. Last year Mr. Johnson ran up a $20 billion deficit, again financed by money we haven't got. This year looks even worse."

The New Frontier-Great Society inherited a gold reserve of $21 billion. Said candidate Kennedy in an October, 1960, campaign speech: "We will overcome the balance-of-payments problem and the gold outflow will stop." On March 1, 1968, our gold stock was $12 billion. It hit another new 40-year low. And the government was self-driven into proposing to remove the gold backing from our currency entirely.

In 1940 Washington's tax take totaled a mere $40.28 per year per capita. By 1966, under the Great Society, the Federal tax per man, woman and child in this country—and an immensely more populous country at that—had leaped to $654.48. In 1967 it was $745.16 per capita.

The respected Tax Foundation, Inc., an independent research organization, finds that the average American will spend two hours and 25 minutes of his eight-hour working day—every day—this year to earn the money to pay his taxes.

Under the New Frontier-Great Society the average family's cost of living has increased about 20 points in the index—nearly three points a year, year after year. On March 1 it reached another new all-time high.

Law and order? Urban disorders have grown nearly incomprehensibly large, dangerous and brutal since 1961. For much of this intolerable situation we can thank the vote-greedy politicians themselves who have pandered to pressure groups and ethnic minorities. Since the New Frontier-Great Society took over, the crime rate has increased five times as fast as our population.

Instead of the heralded labor peace, strikes last year set a six-year record in man-hours lost.

President Kennedy's first decision in foreign affairs was the Bay of Pigs. In that incredible debacle our ancient Monroe Doctrine was shattered forever. There was no Berlin Wall. France was a functioning member of NATO, and there were only 750 American military men in South Vietnam, all of them serving only as advisers.

In the seven years since Mr. Kennedy's decision to commit the first U.S. combat troops (12,000) there, the war—still undeclared—has become the third largest we have ever fought. And in these seven years, accompanied by manipulated news, endless victory statements and the sending of 500,000 men, we have still not built an effective front and are still not secure on our flanks or in our rear.

For five solid years this column has called Vietnam a mismanaged war. What more evidence is needed than the situation today? The conclusion is inescapable that the American people are victims of the greatest military scandal in the history of the United States.

Good government isn't a partisan matter, a question of Democrats or Republicans. It's a matter of performance. Bad government relies on the public's forgetfulness. It survives by tucking its bad performance under the bed. The bunglers resort to their usual practice of thimble-rigging, juggling the pea in their regular way. But what happens to the country in the meanwhile?

Our bamboozled public should thoroughly understand that our leadership is to blame and should be held accountable for the shame and fears that horrify us all.

Political Winds

The Republican stampede for the assembly seat now held by Ken Wilson is now coming down to a kind of sophisticated panic. Nasty stories are being floated about in favor of one candidate over another, the rumors are beginning to fly, and new names for party positions are being hammered into the heads of open-eared listeners.

Whether the rumors have substance is another matter, but the fact is, however, that the battle lines have been strongly drawn and the war is escalating. The avoidance of a blood bath, say insiders, can only come about through two ways: (1) H. Clark Bell and Peter Savago get together and work out some kind of intelligible truce wherein both gain, or, (2) the county chairman (John B. Sterley) step in and lay down the law.

Right now, neither case appears to be a possibility. Both Bell and Savago are poised for battle and insiders see a repetition of the Aldrich-Fish fight of '66. As for Sterley, the county GOP leader will, says an informant, try to side-step what may become Ulster County's political heavyweight battle of the year.

County Legislature's majority leader Douglas V. Dye of the Town of Kingston may enter the assembly race if the March 25th convention solves nothing and the troubled waters of partisan politics bubbles over into a primary fight.

It had been rumored that Dye was carrying a statement around with him announcing his candidacy.

William Krum, who fought an unsuccessful battle against Democrat William B. Martin for the sheriff's job two and a half years ago, is going to announce his plans to seek the post once again.

The Democratic County convention will be held at the John F. Kennedy School on March 23.

Mentioned for the assembly race are John Gaffney of Lloyd, former minority leader of the Board of Supervisors; Legislator Roger Mabie, present minority leader of the County Legislature; T. Robert Gallo, Kingston's alderman-at-large; George Majestic, supervisor of Gardiner.

Some Federal Agencies Exempt From Audit

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office is not like other government agencies.

Various described as prying, nitpicking, firm-minded, opinionated, it is a fiscal intelligence that keeps 2,400 auditors roaming through the sprawling vastness of the federal government, looking for waste and for compliance with congressionally prescribed pocketbook safeguards.

The comptroller general, who heads GAO, is appointed by the President for a 15-year term but GAO belongs to Congress. It is Congress' combined watchdog and gadfly operating on the executive branch, and Congress loves it. In its most recent annual report, GAO claimed its activities saved the taxpayers $190.1 million.

Some activities of the federal government, however, are exempt from GAO audit. The supersecret Central Intelligence Agency and National Security Agency are, for obvious reasons.

But some Congress members question why the Federal Reserve Board and the office of the comptroller of the currency are shielded from GAO scrutiny.

The Fed and the comptroller's office are two of the three principal agencies that supervise banks. The third is the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which insures bank deposits.

GAO looks into the affairs of FDIC, but has feuded for years with that agency over withholding from its scrutiny some information FDIC says it must keep confidential.

Bank Supervision
The issue of broader GAO access to the workings of the bank supervisory agencies has boiled up at hearings by the House Banking Committee on the quality of bank supervision.

Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats testified GAO cannot make a meaningful audit of FDIC under the present restrictions. Faced with these, he said a private auditing firm would withdraw.

Specifically, Staats said, "we cannot appraise the effectiveness of the examinations in identifying banks whose financial condition is unstable."

Staats' testimony understandably got a friendly reception from Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the Banking Committee whose suspicion of big banks and feud with the Federal Reserve are legend in Congress. His efforts to enact legislation in line with these feelings, however, have met at best uneven success.

Some of Patman's colleagues, however, think he may fare better if the present inquiry results in legislation pushing wider the doors of the bank supervisory agencies for GAO's auditors.

While no one believes there is any widespread weakness in the U.S. banking system, recent bank failures have caused congressional concern.

A committee witness on loan from GAO testified that from the establishment of the present system until 1965 the few banks closed by the supervisors were all small. But the closing of the San Francisco National Bank in 1965 and the Public Bank of Detroit, Mich., in 1966 changed the picture. The failure of the nearly $100 million Public Bank was the largest since the 1930s.

U. S. Firms Cast Cold Eyes On New Mideast Ventures

By RAY CROMLEY

BAHREIN; ARABIAN PENINSULA (NEA) — Britain's program for a phased withdrawal from the Middle East is forcing U.S. business interests to make some grave decisions.

One American oil company with considerable investment on the Arabian Peninsula told this reporter his company had recently discovered substantial new oil deposits. Development would be highly profitable but would require several tens of millions of dollars in new investment.

The company is now debating whether or not to put up these funds in view of Britain's withdrawal program and the unsettled conditions which may follow.

Company men have gone to the State Department for information on what the United States plans to do. They have come away with the feeling the government has no idea on how to secure the stability of the region when British troops leave.

The impression oil men have gotten is that the United States is already stretched so thin around the world that all Washington can do in the Middle East is to "cross its fingers" and hope for the best.

But there are things the State Department could do. The Arabs have some legitimate needs and desires for national development that fit with American objectives.

U.S. aid need not be large if it is properly designed. Some of the most revolutionary economic developments in Asian countries have been achieved through the introduction of improved varieties of agricultural products and by simple technical aid in building inexpensive wells.

The businessmen this reporter has talked to feel an urgency about the Middle East situation. "The problem does not begin when the British troops actually pull out," one oil man told me. "It began on the day the British made their announcement."

As has been reported, the problem so worries Bahrain, Qatar, and the seven Trucial States, their governments have proposed to London that they pay the $60 million a year it costs to keep British forces in the area.

The same type of concern is evident among American businessmen in Dubai, Kuwait and other Arab lands.

The extremes between the rich and poor in most Arab countries has been intensified in some areas by the Israeli-Egyptian war. Unemployment in Jordan has doubled to 24 per cent. The number of homeless refugees has ballooned. Economic development has practically halted in Syria. Iraq and Egypt to give priority to military preparations. Taxes have gone up in Syria, Iraq and Egypt and the people have less to spend for their daily necessities.

U.S. businessmen seen by this reporter fear the Israeli-Egyptian war and the British troop withdrawal announcement have so increased economic and military instability that a revolt starting at one point could spread through the area like wildfire—backed by Soviet arms and Soviet-trained organizations and guerrillas.

Great Britain's withdrawal from Aden in November has already resulted in the Communist National Liberation Front establishing its control in the far south of Arabia as the People's Republic of Southern Yemen.

Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats testified GAO cannot make a meaningful audit of FDIC under the present restrictions. Faced with these, he said a private auditing firm would withdraw.

Specifically, Staats said, "we cannot appraise the effectiveness of the examinations in identifying banks whose financial condition is unstable."

Staats' testimony understandably got a friendly reception from Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the Banking Committee whose suspicion of big banks and feud with the Federal Reserve are legend in Congress. His efforts to enact legislation in line with these feelings, however, have met at best uneven success.

Some of Patman's colleagues, however, think he may fare better if the present inquiry results in legislation pushing wider the doors of the bank supervisory agencies for GAO's auditors.

While no one believes there is any widespread weakness in the U.S. banking system, recent bank failures have caused congressional concern. A committee witness on loan from GAO testified that from the establishment of the present system until 1965 the few banks closed by the supervisors were all small. But the closing of the San Francisco National Bank in 1965 and the Public Bank of Detroit, Mich., in 1966 changed the picture. The failure of the nearly $100 million Public Bank was the largest since the 1930s.

U. S. Firms Cast Cold Eyes On New Mideast Ventures

By RAY CROMLEY

BAHRAIN, ARABIAN PENINSULA (NEA) — Britain's program for a phased withdrawal from the Middle East is forcing U.S. business interests to make some grave decisions.

One American oil company with considerable investment on the Arabian Peninsula told this reporter his company had recently discovered substantial new oil deposits. Development would be highly profitable but would require several tens of millions of dollars in new investment.

The company is now debating whether or not to put up these funds in view of Britain's withdrawal program and the unsettled conditions which may follow.

Company men have gone to the State Department for information on what the United States plans to do. They have come away with the feeling the government has no idea on how to secure the stability of the region when British troops leave.

The impression oil men have gotten is that the United States is already stretched so thin around the world that all Washington can do in the Middle East is to "cross its fingers" and hope for the best.

But there are things the State Department could do. The Arabs have some legitimate needs and desires for national development that fit with American objectives.

U.S. aid need not be large if it is properly designed. Some of the most revolutionary economic developments in Asian countries have been achieved through the introduction of improved varieties of agricultural products and by simple technical aid in building inexpensive wells.

The businessmen this reporter has talked to feel an urgency about the Middle East situation. "The problem does not begin when the British troops actually pull out," one oil man told me. "It began on the day the British made their announcement."

As has been reported, the problem so worries Bahrain, Qatar, and the seven Trucial States, their governments have proposed to London that they pay the $60 million a year it costs to keep British forces in the area.

The same type of concern is evident among American businessmen in Dubai, Kuwait and other Arab lands.

The extremes between the rich and poor in most Arab countries has been intensified in some areas by the Israeli-Egyptian war. Unemployment in Jordan has doubled to 24 per cent. The number of homeless refugees has ballooned. Economic development has practically halted in Syria. Iraq and Egypt to give priority to military preparations. Taxes have gone up in Syria, Iraq and Egypt and the people have less to spend for their daily necessities.

U.S. businessmen seen by this reporter fear the Israeli-Egyptian war and the British troop withdrawal announcement have so increased economic and military instability that a revolt starting at one point could spread through the area like wildfire—backed by Soviet arms and Soviet-trained organizers and guerrillas.

Great Britain's withdrawal from Aden in November has already resulted in the Communist National Liberation Front establishing its control in the far south of Arabia as the People's Republic of Southern Yemen.

Fiedler Fined $1,000 on Drugs, Son of Critic

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Kurt K. Fiedler, son of noted literary critic Leslie A. Fiedler, has been fined a total of $1,000 and placed on probation for possession of marijuana.

Kurt, 27, was fined $500 Wednesday by each of two judges on two separate charges of possession of marijuana. His wife Emelie, 26, also was fined $500 for possession of barbiturates. His brother and another youth were placed on probation for having marijuana in their possession.

They were arrested when police raided the home of Leslie A. Fiedler last April 28 with the aid of an informant who police said carried an electronic eavesdropping device. The elder Fiedler, 50, and his wife Margaret, 48, were arrested on charges of allowing their home to be used for the smoking of marijuana.

Leslie Fiedler was at the time an English professor at the State University at Buffalo and faculty adviser for an organization known as LEMAR, aimed at legalizing the use of marijuana.

He and his wife are now in England, where he is teaching at the University of Sussex.

Kurt Fiedler pleaded guilty to the charges against him in both City Court and Erie County Court Feb. 24. His brother, Michael, 19; Dennis O. Francis, 18, and his wife entered guilty pleas the same day in City Court.

Chief Judge Sebastian J. Bellomo of City Court first fined Kurt $500 then Judge William C. Heffron levied a $500 fine and placed him on probation for two years.

Heffron said the probation would be transferred to Albany, N.Y., where Kurt is a pre-medical student at the University of New Mexico. He ordered Kurt to avoid "injurious habits, such as smoking marijuana" and forbid him to associate with persons using such drugs.

Bellomo ordered Michael to be on probation for one year and to continue psychiatric treatment. Francisco drew one year's probation.

Herald P. Fahringer Jr., counsel for the four, said he would file an appeal today.

He said the guilty pleas were entered to allow for appeal based on an earlier rejection of defense motions to suppress police evidence gained through the electronic device.

Such an appeal is permitted only after a conviction or a guilty plea based on the denial of a suppression motion, he said.

Leslie Fiedler's trial is scheduled for June 5.

Dems Seek Support For Rights Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders are banking on support from Republicans including one declared presidential candidate—in their go-for-broke plan to win passage of a civil rights bill that would outlaw most housing discrimination.

Speaker John W. McCormack urged former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California to help round up the GOP votes.

After two days of intensive strategy sessions which culminated in a two-hour meeting with civil rights leaders and White House officials, the Democratic leadership decided to present the Senate-passed bill as is for a vote. Passage would send it directly to President Johnson.

The leaders rejected an alternative plan to send the bill to a House-Senate conference for agreement on a compromise version. If their original plan fails, however, the conference approach would still be possible.

The procedure agreed on requires a resolution from the Rules Committee, headed by an arch foe of the bill, Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss.

"I'm not going to do anything to advance this bill," Colmer said. He also expressed doubt the bill's supporters have enough votes to win passage without some changes.

But House Democratic Leader Carl Albert said he expected favorable action by Colmer's Rules Committee next week, with the bill advancing to the floor for a vote the following week.

"I hope that at least 75 Republicans will vote for this bill that is so important to the nation," said McCormack, conceding it would take about that many to guarantee passage.

Discussing the open-housing provision of the measure, Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, a Democrat who headed the President's Commission on Civil Disorders, told a Senate housing subcommittee that "freedom of residence is essential" for all Americans.

The first two programs are scheduled for April 1 and April 15. They will consist of video tape productions prepared by the University of Buffalo Law School, which will be shown to Ulster County lawyers at the Stone Ridge Campus of the Ulster County Community College. The productions, which consist of filmed lectures and panel discussions by experts in the field of criminal law and procedures, are designed to acquaint local attorneys with recent changes and developments in the criminal law and up-to-date methods and procedures utilized by other attorneys within this field. The program is conducted under the auspices of the continuing legal education committee of the Ulster County Bar Association, which supervises all post-graduate legal training and education courses for practicing attorneys.

Fiedler Fined $1,000 on Drugs, Son of Critic

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Kurt K. Fiedler, son of noted literary critic Leslie A. Fiedler, has been fined a total of $1,000 and placed on probation for possession of marijuana.

Kurt, 27, was fined $500 Wednesday by each of two judges on two separate charges of possession of marijuana. His wife Emelie, 26, also was fined $500 for possession of barbiturates. His brother and another youth were placed on probation for having marijuana in their possession.

They were arrested when police raided the home of Leslie A. Fiedler last April 28 with the aid of an informant who police said carried an electronic eavesdropping device. The elder Fiedler, 50, and his wife Margaret, 48, were arrested on charges of allowing their home to be used for the smoking of marijuana.

Leslie Fiedler was at the time an English professor at the State University at Buffalo and faculty adviser for an organization known as LEMAR, aimed at legalizing the use of marijuana.

He and his wife are now in England, where he is teaching at the University of Sussex.

Kurt Fiedler pleaded guilty to the charges against him in both City Court and Erie County Court Feb. 24. His brother, Michael, 19; Dennis O. Francisco, 18, and his wife entered guilty pleas the same day in City Court.

Chief Judge Sebastian J. Bellomo of City Court first fined Kurt $500 then Judge William C. Heffron levied a $500 fine and placed him on probation for two years.

Heffron said the probation would be transferred to Albuquerque, N.M., where Kurt is a pre-medical student at the University of New Mexico. He ordered Kurt to avoid "injurious habits, such as smoking marijuana" and forbid him to associate with persons using such drugs.

Bellomo ordered Michael to be on probation for one year and to continue psychiatric treatments. Francisco drew one year's probation.

Herald P. Fahringer Jr., counsel for the four, said he would file an appeal today.

He said the guilty pleas were entered to allow for appeal based on an earlier rejection of defense motions to suppress po-

Such an appeal is permitted

guilty plea based on the denial of a suppression motion, he said.

Leslie Fiedler's trial is scheduled for June 5.

Dems Seek Support For Rights Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders are banking on support from Republicans including one declared presidential candidate—in their go-for-broke plan to win passage of a civil rights bill that would outlaw most housing discrimination.

Speaker John W. McCormack urged former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California to help round up the GOP votes.

After two days of intensive strategy sessions which culminated in a two-hour meeting with civil rights leaders and White House officials, the Democratic leadership decided to present the Senate-passed bill as is for a vote. Passage would send it directly to President Johnson.

The leaders rejected an alternative plan to send the bill to a House-Senate conference for agreement on a compromise version. If their original plan fails, however, the conference approach would still be possible.

The procedure agreed on requires a resolution from the Rules Committee, headed by an arch foe of the bill, Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss.

"I'm not going to do anything to advance this bill," Colmer said. He also expressed doubt the bill's supporters have enough votes to win passage without some changes.

But House Democratic Leader Carl Albert said he expected favorable action by Colmer's Rules Committee next week, with the bill advancing to the floor for a vote the following week.

"I hope that at least 75 Republicans will vote for this bill that is so important to the nation," said McCormack, conceding it would take about that many to guarantee passage.

Discussing the open-housing

nois Gov. Otto Kerner, a Democrat who headed the President's

Commission on Civil Disorders, told a Senate housing subcommittee that "freedom of residence is essential" for all Americans.

Construction is expected to start in the spring.

Bids will be accepted for another pickup truck for the town highway department and it was announced that the department received a new truck radio.

Because of the closeness of last night's meeting to the one held last month, no large bills

Vietnam

That some of the boys in Vietnam have been using pot is indisputable. Reports filtering back indicate that when attacking the enemy they were "OK". But, when they have to hold a position . . . they have no holding power while under the influence of the drug. It interferes with combat, Dr. Brill told a Symposium of Drugs at Dutchess County Community College last month.

There is a certain popularity too in the argument for marijuana's mind expanding properties. Students are quick to intellectualize its usage but Dr. Brill maintains "it makes no sense medically."

Overrated as a stimulant to profound thought, marijuana users nevertheless are sometimes convinced of their new insights under its influence.

As Dr. Robert S. Liebert, psychiatric consultant at Columbia University, has stated, "When I talk to a kid who is turning on, I have a sense of relief through a glass partition."

Ex-addicts views as expressed at the recent Dutchess County Symposium on Narcotics will be incorporated in tomorrow's Freeman article, the fifth in a series on teenage use of marijuana in Ulster County.

Now what of the first mentioned argument — "You do your thing, as long as you don't interfere with anyone else. You do your thing."

Crime Rate Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI reports a 23 per cent spurt in big-city crimes paced an overall 16 per cent jump in the nation's major crime rate last year, and cites last summer's riots as a factor.

The 23 per cent hike was in cities of 500,000 to one million population.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said in a report released today that crime in the suburbs was up 16 per cent and jumped 13 per cent in rural areas. A 17 per cent jump was recorded in cities of 25,000 population and over.

The FBI said arrests of persons under 18 years old rose eight per cent.

Included in the increased police arrests was a rising volume of arrests for offenses against public order—or riots—the bureau said in a statement accompanying statistical data.

Arrests of adults rose by three per cent after declining slightly in 1966, the report said.

Crimes of violence were up 15 per cent, led by robbery which increased 27 per cent from 1966.

There were 12 per cent more murders, 9 per cent more rapes and 8 per cent more aggravated assaults.

Property crimes jumped 16 per cent. Auto thefts rose 17 per cent, and burglary and larceny of $50 and over in value were up 16 per cent, the report said.

Hoover, who favors federal firearms control, said serious assaults where a gun was used as the weapon rose 22 per cent and one of five assaults was committed with a gun.

Armed robbery had a sharp upswing of 30 per cent and a firearm was used in 58 per cent of all robbery offenses, he reported.

The FBI chief said police solved 23 per cent of the crimes reported to the bureau, a decline of seven per cent over 1966.

The FBI report did not include changes in the crime picture for New York, Detroit, Kansas City and Baltimore. The bureau said 1966 figures were not comparable with the 1967 figures in these cities because of changes in reporting practices for some offenses.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst
Compromise Suggested
To Start Growth Fund

Q—My husband and I have a small amount of money set aside from regular savings to make an initial investment in the stock market. We are not too knowledgeable but want to invest for ourselves rather than through a mutual fund plan. We are looking for growth. We like American Motors; AT&T and Hess Oil. I am interested in Avon Products; Standard of Indiana; Union Oil of California; and Ford. What is your advice?—J.M.

A—You have put together, between you, a pretty good list of stocks, and I suggest a compromise. Since your capital appears limited, why not select what appear to be the best values from each list and avoid spreading your money too thinly? American Motors is speculative but improving; Telephone is a strong stock but rather slow.

Hess Oil is the issue on your husband's list that I would approve since I like its strong growth record and its position in low sulphur crude. From a growth standpoint your own best selections appear to be Avon Products and Union Oil. Combining these with Hess would give you a very good start on a growth program, in my opinion.

Q—I own 100 shares of Paul Hardeman, Inc. It is traded over-the-counter. I am told. I have heard nothing from the company for a long time and have been unable to find out anything about it. I would appreciate any information you can give me.—J.C.

A—I am first going to correct you, if I may. Hardeman is listed on the Detroit Stock Exchange and sold there recently at 1 1/4. The company is affiliated with Universal American Corp. which has merged with Gulf & Western Industries. For information you might write directly to Paul Hardeman, Inc., P.O. Box 307 (14104 San Antonio St.), Norwalk, Calif. 90650.

N.Y.'s Struggling Lottery Entering Another Phase

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The state's continuing struggle to make its lagging lottery a financial winner entered a new phase today.

At the direction of the State Lottery Commission, Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy prepared to license lottery sales agents from 25 new general classes of outlets.

The commission followed through on Gov. Rockefeller's action Tuesday in signing legislation to revise the lottery.

With broadened licensing powers from the legislature, Murphy harbors hopes of adding up to 12,000 new sales outlets for the $1 tickets.

On a short-term basis, the commissioner said he hopes to raise average monthly sales of the horsebowl - lottery tickets from around $5 million to a new level of $7 million a month.

In any event, by the end of this month, the commissioner indicated, you ought to be able to buy a lottery ticket at race tracks, beauty shops, supermarkets, drug stores and a variety of other new outlets in the state.

Banks, bars and grills, however, will not be authorized sales locations for lottery tickets.

Bars and grills have been banned from such activity since the lottery went into effect last year.

On April 1, about 2,500 federally chartered banks—10 per cent of the current outlets—will be forbidden to sell lottery tickets, New York State owes that prohibition to an act of Congress inspired by Rep. Wright Patman, D-La.

Thus, Murphy and other state fiscal officials are anxious to begin licensing new outlets soon. The new classes of outlets are: Race tracks and raceways; shoe stores; licensed check cashers; department stores; retail food markets; discount stores; drug stores; variety stores; newsstands; licensed real-estate agents; licensed insurance agents; motion picture theaters; theaters; bus, air and rail transportation companies; restaurants and delicatessens; and:

Gasoline service stations; licensed money transmitters—such as Brink's or Wells-Fargo offices; book and stationery stores; bowling alleys; professional sports organizations; barber shops and beauty shops; veterans organizations; fraternal organizations; service organizations; and travel agencies.

The new outlets will receive the same compensation—5 cents for each $1—now given to banks, hotels and motels and government offices.

Murphy said that other classes of outlets were being considered. He did not elaborate.

The new law prohibits any person from selling lottery tickets as his sole business activity.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst
Compromise Suggested
To Start Growth Fund

Q—My husband and I have a small amount of money set aside from regular savings to make an initial investment in the stock market. We are not too knowledgeable but want to invest for ourselves rather than through a mutual-fund plan. We are looking for growth. He likes American Motors; AT&T and Hess Oil. I am interested in Avon Products; Standard of Indiana; Union Oil of California, and Ford. What is your advice?—J.M.

A—You have put together, between you, a pretty good list of stocks, and I suggest a compromise. Since your capital appears limited, why not select what appear to be the best values from each list and avoid spreading your money too thinly? American Motors is speculative but improving; Telephone is a strong stock but rather slow.

Hess Oil is the issue on your husband's list that I would approve since I like its strong growth record and its position in low sulphur crude. From a growth standpoint your own best selections appear to be Avon Products and Union Oil. Combining these with Hess would give you a very good start on a growth program, in my opinion.

Q—I own 100 shares of Paul Hardeman, Inc. It is traded over-the-counter. I am told. I have heard nothing from the company for a long time and have been unable to find out anything about it. I would appreciate any information you can give me.—J.C.

Man Jailed; Faces Obscenity, DWI Charges

Arrested on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated following an accident on Hickory Bush Road west of the Thruway in the Town of Rosendale, Jack B. Lyda, 45, of Ozone Park, was subsequently cited for obscenity.

State Trooper James Fitzgerald of the Kingston barracks said Lyda was driving his car south, down grade at 7:15 p. m. Sunday when the vehicle went out of control, veered off the right side of the highway and down an embankment, hit a stone wall, dropped four feet and crashed into a stone wall before crossing a lawn and hitting a large rock.

Flood Control In Rosendale Goes to Bids

The Rosendale Flood Control project went up for bids today, according to advance notice issued by the U.S. Army Engineer District, New York.

Bids on the $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 plan are expected to be opened April 16. Work will include levee, flood walls and drainage works relative to flood control as well as reconstruction of existing streets, pavement, sidewalks, storm drains and water mains.

Accountants Plan Program

Monday, the Mid-Hudson Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will hold its monthly dinner meeting at the Hellenic Center in Poughkeepsie. The meeting which is designated College Night will begin with a social hour at 6 p. m., dinner at 6:30 and the meeting at 7:30.

As part of the Chapter's cooperation with local college groups, students of accounting from Dutchess Community College will participate in the evening activities. Local NAA members and their respective companies will act as hosts to the students in the afternoon, and in the evening, the students will be guests of the chapter.

Edward H. Owen, principal, Peat, Marwick and Company, will be guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Owen will speak on Coordination and Cost Control of Employee Benefits.

precipitate any information you can give me.—J.C.

A—I am first going to correct you, if I may. Hardeman is listed on the Detroit Stock Exchange and sold there recently at 13 1/4. The company is affiliated with Universal American Corp. which has merged with Gulf & Western Industries. For information you might write directly to Paul Hardeman, Inc., P.O. N.Y.'s Struggling Lottery Entering Another Phase

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The state's continuing struggle to make its lagging lottery a financial winner entered a new phase today.

At the direction of the State Lottery Commission, Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy prepared to license lottery sales agents from 25 new general classes of outlets.

The commission followed through on Gov. Rockefeller's action Tuesday in signing legislation to revise the lottery.

With broadened licensing powers from the legislature, Murphy harbors hopes of adding up to 12,000 new sales outlets for the $1 tickets.

On a short-term basis, the commissioner said he hopes to raise average monthly sales of the horsebowling lottery tickets from around $5 million to a new level of $7 million a month.

In any event, by the end of this month, the commissioner indicated, you ought to be able to buy a lottery ticket at race tracks, beauty shops, supermarkets, drug stores and a variety of other new outlets in the state.

Banks, bars and grills, however, will not be authorized sales locations for lottery tickets.

Bars and grills have been banned from such activity since the lottery went into effect last year.

On April 1, about 2,500 federally chartered banks—10 per cent of the current outlets—will be forbidden to sell lottery tickets. New York State owes that prohibition to an act of Congress inspired by Rep. Wright Patman, D-La.

Thus, Murphy and other state fiscal officials are anxious to begin licensing new outlets soon.

The new classes of outlets are: Race tracks and raceways; shoe stores; licensed check cashers; department stores; retail food markets; discount stores; drug stores; variety stores; newsstands; licensed real-estate agents; licensed insurance agents; motion picture theaters; theaters; bus, air and rail transportation companies; restaurants and delicatessens, and:

Gasoline service stations; licensed money transmitters—such as Brink's or Wells-Fargo offices; book and stationery stores; bowling alleys; professional sports organizations; barber shops and beauty shops; veterans organizations; fraternal organizations; service organizations; and travel agencies.

The new outlets will receive the same compensation—5 cents for each $1—now given to banks, hotels and motels and government offices.

Murphy said that other classes of outlets were being considered. He did not elaborate.

Combat-Type TestSet on Kwajalein

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy plan to launch multiple warhead Poseidon missiles against Army antiballistic missile components on Kwajalein Island in the Pacific in a combat-type test.

Pentagon officials said they expect the result to be a good gauge of the reliability of both advanced weapons systems.

The Poseidon is the new Navy missile ticketed eventually to go aboard 31 of the 41 nuclear drive Polaris submarines. It's intended to increase U.S. assurance of being able to overwhelm Soviet antiballistic defenses.

Kwajalein is the site of test radars and antiballistic missile interceptors being developed for use in the $5 billion U.S. anti-missile defense shield.

Sources said no nuclear devices will be used either by the Poseidon or the fleet of re-entry vehicles released by Poseidon—which carries 10 warheads—or by the Sentinel system's interceptors. Nuclear bursts in the atmosphere are prohibited by the 1963 Test Ban Treaty.

But through radar tracking and computerization Kwajalein technicians will be able to tell just how effective one is against the other.

As one planner explained it: "We will be able to see on the radars just how the Poseidon attack will look, and at the same time launch one or more Spartan or Sprint antimissiles at several altitudes to simulate the intercepts."

The Spartan is the long-range antimissile and Sprint the superfast short-range interceptor. They form the one-two punch of the Sentinel missile defense planned for completion the next few years.

3,000-Mile Range
In early antimissile development, the Army in 1962 and 1963 staged 10 successful intercepts of Atlas and Titan boosters launched by the Air Force from Vandenberg AFB, Calif., about 6,000 miles from Kwajalein. That interceptor was the Zeus missile, forerunner of the Spartan.

The Poseidon, with a range of about 3,000 miles, will be launched either from a submarine or a surface test ship from somewhere in the Pacific. The exact schedule has not been worked out but the launches probably would take place in 1970 after the first Polaris sub has undergone modifications expanding its 16 launch tubes to handle the bigger, 65,000-pound Poseidon.

Wisconsin Strategy

Johnson Backers Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's political advisers, genuinely concerned that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy may beat the President in Wisconsin's April 2 presidential primary, are plotting a major overhaul in strategy.

An informed source says they will junk two tactics which they believe backfired against Johnson in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary, where McCarthy captured an impressive 42 per cent of the vote.

One of these, the well-placed informant said, is the message that "Hanoi is watching" for an anti-Johnson turnout that might signify U.S. disunity over the war. The other is the use of pledge cards for votes with a copy "sent to the President."

"You may be pretty sure," said the informant, "you won't hear of those two gimmicks again."

Can't Be Brushed Off

"New Hampshire simply isn't something you can brush off lightly," the source said. "We have serious problems. And we've got to face up to the fact that McCarthy can take the President in Wisconsin."

"That would really hurt."

In the three weeks remaining before the Wisconsin test—where the President will be on the ballot—his strategists' plan is to pin down the Minnesota senator on specific alternatives to Johnson's Vietnam war policy.

Johnson's advisers definitely do not share the President's public expression of indifference to the New Hampshire results.

Rail Network

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian railways is the world's second largest rail network, next to the Soviet Union, an official announcement said.

This largest government undertaking employs 1,350,000 workers and every day carries 5,800,000 passengers and 560,000 tons of freight.

The first train steamed out of Bombay in 1853. Today there are 11,700 engines, 32,000 coaches and 370,000 freight wagons along 35,040 miles of track.

McCarthy's opposition to conduct of the war has been the basis for his steadily mounting campaign to wrest the Democratic nomination from the President.

Johnson's advisers believe their major failure in New Hampshire was "not nailing McCarthy down on his alternatives."

"We let him get away with deprecating the war in broad generalities," the informant said. "That's not going to happen in Wisconsin."

The administration tactic will be to have state party officials, labor leaders and administration figures press McCarthy for specific alternatives in Vietnam. But since the President has let it be known that he will not campaign in the primaries, the informant said, "I wouldn't think there would be any Cabinet officers or other really high officials taking part."

He said the LBJ backers are worried about Wisconsin because:

—McCarthy is "opposing a phantom candidate" and will have the benefit of heavy day-to-day publicity in the state.

—Wisconsin Republicans, with no real primary contest in their party, may cross over to register anti-Johnson votes for McCarthy.

—Wisconsin has been "traditionally for the underdog," supporting such men as the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and Robert M. La Follette who "Bucked the establishment."

—McCarthy can expect significant support because he is from neighboring Minnesota and because he is a Roman Catholic, as are one-third of Wisconsin's residents.

LBJ Backer

The only member of Wisconsin's congressional delegation openly for Johnson is Rep. Clement J. Zablocki of Wisconsin. The administration classifies the state's other Democrats as Vietnam "doves" and neutral between Johnson and McCarthy, except for Sen. William Proxmire, who is catalogued by the Johnson advisers as a "hawk neutral."

Nixon Is Saving 'Big Guns' for LBJ

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says the reason he is not ready to spell out the details of his plan to end the war in Vietnam is because he is reserving his "big guns" for use against President Johnson if he wins the Republican presidential nomination.

"I have to adapt my strategy so as to win the (presidential) primaries with the least expenditure of ammunition," Nixon said. "I am reserving my big guns for use against Johnson."

The former vice president discussed this and other questions in an interview in his Fifth Avenue apartment in New York.

In campaigning for the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries, Nixon repeatedly said, "We will end the war in Vietnam and win the peace in the Pacific."

Asked if he intends this as a pledge, Nixon replied emphatically, "It's a pledge."

He added, "I have no magic formula, no gimmick. If I had a gimmick I would tell Lyndon Johnson. That would be a moral obligation."

Has Some Ideas

"But I do have some specific ideas on how to end the war. They are primarily in the diplomatic area."

He said he considers the chances "60 to 40 against" the possibility that the North Vietnamese will agree to come to the conference table before the national elections next November.

With regard to his own actions in the campaigning, Nixon said: "I'm not going to carry on my conscience anything that will destroy that 40 per cent chance."

Nixon has gone to South Vietnam several times in recent years. He published an article in the quarterly, Foreign Affairs, entitled "Asia after Vietnam."

He said he believes that one reason he is now considered the front-runner for the GOP nomination is he has concentrated on studying foreign affairs.

"A man becomes a serious contender or candidate only when events fit what he has to offer," Nixon said. "In my case, I think the fact that the foreign policy issue became predominant again—and I could travel abroad and speak with some authority on it—that raised me above the others."

If domestic problems, not the war in Vietnam, were predominant today, Nixon said, "I don't think there would have been a tendency to look to me. I think the tendency would have been to go to what has been called 'those who manage the cities and states.'"

In that case, he continued, Gov. George Romney of Michigan would have been in a stronger position to make the race for the presidency.

Nixon said Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York "has some expertise" in foreign policy, "but he himself has taken the veil."

He referred to the fact that Rockefeller has not stated his views on Vietnam in recent months.

Nixon repeated his assertion that if Rockefeller wants the GOP nomination he must enter and win some primaries. Rockefeller, long asserting that he is not a candidate, has said he will decide within 10 days whether to permit his name to remain on the ballot in the Oregon primary, May 28.

In 1964, the governor won over Sen. Barry Goldwater in the Oregon primary.

Nixon's figures in the New Hampshire primary were impressive. Among them:

—He got 73 per cent of the vote, a total of 84,005, exceeding the forecasts.

—He would up his campaign urging Republicans to turn out, worrying that the lack of a real contest might lead many of them to stay home. They didn't.

Appeal Sounded On Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration has appealed to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee not to underwrite its majority position against Vietnam war policy by slashing the $3 billion foreign-aid bill.

"Don't shoot the innocent bystander," said William S. Gaud, chief of the Agency for International Development, at a committee hearing Wednesday.

But Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who opposes the war, told Gaud Congress must weigh all money requests in light of the war's financial impact.

And another war policy critic, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said: "We've got to resolve our difficulties in Vietnam before I think we can go ahead with what I hope will be to enlarge the foreign-aid program eventually."

Lowest in History

The $3 billion being sought is $600 million more than the current appropriation, which is the lowest in the 20-year history of the foreign-aid program.

Gaud's difficulties with the committee came as the Gallup Poll was reporting that 69 percent of 1,504 persons interviewed favor a gradual withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam and replacing them with South Vietnamese troops as soon as they can be drafted and trained.

When a similar proposal was being discussed in December 1966, it won approval from 58 percent of those polled.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who defended the present course of the war before the Foreign Relations Committee in nationally televised and broadcast hearings earlier this week, was appearing ostensibly in support of the foreign-aid program.

He told the committee that "some say we should postpone or eliminate foreign aid because of the cost of our efforts to help defend freedom in Southeast Asia" but didn't mention names.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., responded that "the aid program, of course, is intimately a part of the effort in Vietnam."

Two Critical

Fulbright ran into criticism from two House members in the wake of the hearings.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, asserted that despite Fulbright's demand the Senate be consulted in advance of new military decisions, "the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the Senate are not running this country to the mutual exclusion of the House of Representatives and the executive branch."

Hays also quoted Fulbright as complaining the war is halting attacks on domestic problems and then added the Arkansas Democrat recessed the hearings to vote against the civil-rights bill.

Rep. Joe D. Waggoner, D-La., said if Fulbright is correct in contending the war isn't being conducted properly, "he's had to do with it going away."

In a separate development, American Red Cross authorities say several meetings with representatives of the Viet Cong in Communist Czechoslovakia have yielded no success in efforts to get food packages and mail to American prisoners.

The latest Pentagon listing carries 240 Americans captured or interned and 897 missing. Most of the captured men are flung down in air attacks over North Vietnam.

Sources said the Red Cross also has sent numerous cables to Hanoi in hopes of setting up regular channels of contact with these men, with "absolutely no encouragement either from the VC or the North Vietnamese."

Monsignor John O'Reilly presented Carl Thurin and John Machione with St. George medals. Herbert Simonetti, Scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 3, greeted the Cub Scouts and expressed the hope of seeing them and their parents in the troop in the future.

Ronald Matthews, Cubmaster, showed slides of Kingston Point and the Daylines and other activity on the Hudson River in the early 1900's.

They were dressed in beautiful Indian finery.

Top Tie Buyer

HARRISON, N.J. (AP) — You won't find the nation's biggest tie buyer on any best-dressed list. That's because it's the railroad industry, says a recent study by the locomotive-manufacturing unit of Studebaker-Worthington, which buys the kind of ties that keep track supported and aligned.

The United States has a billion rail ties, 13 million of which need replacement annually. Modern machines and complex electronic devices are used in the replacement work, putting in new ties at the rate of two ties per minute. The old rule-of-thumb was that it took one man one hour to replace one tie.

Best Selling Poet McKuen Very Amazed

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The best-selling poet in America is not Marianne Moore or Robert Lowell or Robert Frost. He is a taffy-haired jack-of-all-musical-trades named Rod McKuen.

"In fact," says McKuen with a nervous laugh, "they say I'm the best-selling poet—ever."

This is undoubtedly news to most of the literary critics and English teachers of the land, but it is a well-known fact to booksellers.

His first book of poems, "Stanyan Street and Other Sorrows," has sold 250,000 copies, and the second, "Listen to the Warm," 200,000. Each is selling at the rate of 5,000 a week.

McKuen's own reaction to such figures is a mixture of amazement and delight. He remarks: "Sometimes I find it hard to believe. You take a poet like T.S. Eliot. I've been told that his last book of poems sold a total of 3,500 copies, T. S. Eliot!"

Obviously Rod McKuen is not T. S. Eliot. Not quite. His poems are mostly in the freest of verse, although some have rhyme and a dogged kind of meter. A sample titled "Apartment 4E":

Or walking overhead.
She smiles in the daytime,
But not at me.
The poems are mostly along the same lines—plaintive, melancholy, though not without rueful humor, simple laments for lost loves and distant cities, told in the spare style of Japanese haiku.

McKuen denies any pretension to literature. "Some people compare me to W.H. Auden, but that's wrong," he says. "I'm not in competition with Auden or anyone else. I'm in the business of communication, and my poems are communicating to the younger generation."

"Why? Because I'm talking to people in a language they understand; they don't need a dictionary to dig what I'm saying. I also feel there is appeal in the fact that I am not afraid to deal with emotion. Nowadays everyone is trained to suppress his emotions. To use a trite expression, I'm telling it like it is."

For 15 years, Rod McKuen had been telling it like it is, but until recently not many seemed to be listening. He had been doggedly pouring forth songs—he has written 700—and some of them ended up in the repertoires of such performers as Andy Williams, Eddy Arnold and the Kingston Trio. McKuen himself knew only fair success as a cabaret performer and recording artist.

Blossoming Career

Within the past year, his career suddenly blossomed. The small McKuen cult became a national phenomenon. His various record albums—singing, instrumental, poetry readings—have sold a half million copies.

"I'm getting a thousand letters a week, and they tell me Rock Hudson doesn't get anything like that," he reported. "I've had to hire a staff to answer the mail. I'm planning a television special, and I'll produce a film of 'Stanyan Street' for Warner Brother-Seven Arts. Fox has optioned 'Listen to the Warm,' and I'd like to direct it."

"I've got three more books coming out—another volume of poems called 'Lonesome Cities,' the Rod McKuen songbook and a children's book. I've had calls from Ray Strak, Edward Padula and David Merrick about doing Broadway shows. I just turned down a guarantee of $100,000 to put my face on sweatshirts and so forth; I don't want that."

"I'm having the time of my life, and I enjoy it even more because I'm doing it on my own. I wasn't promoted to replace someone, as the Monkees were because the Beatles weren't available, or Donovan was because Bob Dylan was sick. Me, I came from nothing."

Sharp Surgery Ahead for Bill On News Shield

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — An Assembly-approved bill designed to shield newsmen who refuse to reveal their news sources is due for sharp surgery in the Senate.

As it stands now, the measure states that contempt proceedings may not be brought against any employee of a newspaper, news service or radio or television station who declines under oath to disclose his sources of information.

It squeaked through the 150-member Assembly Wednesday by a vote of 76 - 40, after a lengthy debate. Speaker Anthony J. Travia cast the vote that gave it the simple majority of 76 needed for passage.

Senate sources reported today, however, that the bill would be revised to afford this protection only to bona fide working reporters. Other news personnel, including editors and publishers, would not be covered.

If amended along these lines, and passed by the Senate, the measure would have to be returned to the Assembly for another vote.

In Wednesday's debate, opponents of the legislation, led by Manuel Ramos, D-Bronx, complained that the bill "puts the lid on the exposition of truth."

The bill's sponsor, Assemblyman Arthur J. Kremer, D-Long Beach, argued that it would "protect the public against graft and corruption in government by encouraging reporters to seek out the truth without fear of reprisal."

He pointed out that newsmen still could be sued for libel or slander.

The measure was proposed by the New York Newspaper Reporters Association and has been endorsed by the New York State Publishers Association.

The negative votes were cast largely by Republicans.

Windy Debate: Cassius Clay And Student

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Cassius Clay ran into some stiff competition when he found himself matched with a student debater at Canisius College Wednesday night.

The former heavyweight champ, who prefers to be called by his Black Muslim name, Muhammad Ali, labled Negroes "fools" for believing they have a part in community projects.

He said Negroes can not believe "This airport is mine, this bus terminal is mine, this college is mine."

Miss Sharon Tolbert, a Negro senior history major at the college, challenged Clay and said "It is my airport, it is my bus terminal, it is my America."

Clay retorted black is the opposite of white and it is a law of nature that the two races stay apart. All animals in nature "stay with their own kind," he said.

"We're talking about people, not animals," Miss Tolbert said. Once given a chance, she added, Negroes would reach the same level as anyone else in America.

Clay broke off the exchange and later said she was "typical of the Negroes who have been brainwashed by white people."

Retiree Feted By Dutchess Hospital Staff

A farewell dinner for Mrs. Harold Boyce, the former Julia McCue, office manager of Northern Dutchess Hospital, was given recently at the Beekman Arms Hotel.

More than 60 people, representing every department of the hospital and board of directors, were on hand to honor Mrs. Boyce in recognition of 21 years of service, 16 years as office manager.

Michael C. Mazzarella, NDH administrator, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced Dr. Kenneth Chase, president of the Board of Directors; Mrs. Beatrice Cozine, former administrator of the hospital, and Mrs. Andrew Simmons, hospital registrar, each of whom made presentations on behalf of the Hospital Board, staff and employees.

BUY GOOD STOCKS

Corporate prosperity is the bright and shining light in today's somewhat drab national economy. There is entirely too much negative thinking going on in the investment world. Of course, an abundance of forces in America can be pessimistically interpreted. The Vietnamese war, the growing federal debt, unbalanced budgets, the possibilities of higher local, state and federal taxes, social deterioration in all the leading cities, increased costs and expenses—these are powers that directly or indirectly affect everybody.

These conditions. Thousands of frightened stockholders are selling prime equities for poor dollars. It is entirely wrong. Corporate prosperity, with its great depth and breadth, can and should challenge the fearfulness of every anxious investor. Successful U.S. corporations—and there are hundreds of them—should command the attention of those with idle money to whom the present world is an enigma.

The two leading enterprises in this great country point up the wisdom of doing what has been said thus far.

American Telephone and Telegraph pays over $1.5 billion in taxes every year. The company employs more than 800,000 persons. Dividends to stockholders are around $1.3 billion annually. How is that for prosperity?

Taxes paid by the employees and by the stockholders run into hundreds of millions of dollars. This one company could be a half of Glead to any worried investor. Buy the stock at $50-$52 a share and take courage from your purchase.

General Motors is a second enterprise functioning magnificently in the world economy. It employs over 750,000 people. In 1967 it sold more than 4 million cars and trucks. It paid $750 million in income taxes, and stockholders received about $480 million in common dividends.

Look at that picture: two corporations employing more than 1.5 million people, paying almost $2.3 billion in taxes and declaring over $1.7 billion in dividends.

Corporate prosperity is so dynamic as to make any frightened investor renew his lost courage.

I said today to an uncertain investor who has a lot of idle money lying around: "Buy 500 shares of General Motors for about $40,000 and 500 shares of American Telephone for about $25,000. If those companies don't make any money and, hence, don't pay any taxes, where will Uncle Sam get $140 billion he will need to pay his enormous bills in the year ahead? Why, he will increase his immense federal debt; this will become monetized, and billions of inflationary dollars will be poured into the national economy."

Let on corporation prosperity.

TO READERS: Buy some good stocks. Hold them for income and growth and inflation protection.

County Legislature Will Meet Tonight

The operation of a number of automated chicken farms in Ulster County communities and the problems created by the disposal of resulting manure in liquified form will be one of the topics of the County Legislature tonight at 8 o'clock in the county building.

A resolution has been drafted for presentation which would urge the State Legislature to amend an existing law which prohibits local entities to adopt ordinances or rules and regulations concerning the raising of fowl.

The resolution has been filed by Legislators E. Stirling Potter and Irving P. Maurer, both Republicans of 7th District, and Minority Leader Roger W. Mabie, D-7th District.

The problems of an automated chicken farm in the Town of Esopus discussed several times at Esopus Town Board meetings apparently motivated the action by the legislators of that district.

The resolution if approved by the County Legislature would ask the cooperation of State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, R-Ulster-Dutchess and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, R-Ulster in the state capital.

Other topics will be junk car and Memorial Day laws, gun legislation and acquisition of surplus federal land.

A resolution expected to abandon the county bounty on foxes and bobcats has also been filed for this season.

County Legislature Will Meet Tonight

The operation of a number of automated chicken farms in Ulster County communities and the problems created by the disposal of resulting manure in liquified form will be one of the topics of the County Legislature tonight at 8 o'clock in the county building.

A resolution has been drafted for presentation which would urge the State Legislature to amend an existing law which prohibits local entities to adopt ordinances or rules and regulations concerning the raising of fowl.

The resolution has been filed by Legislators E. Stirling Potter and Irving P. Maurer, both Republicans of 7th District, and Minority Leader Roger W. Mabie, D-7th District.

The problems of an automated chicken farm in the Town of Esopus discussed several times at Esopus Town Board meetings apparently motivated the action by the legislators of that district.

The resolution if approved by the County Legislature would ask the cooperation of State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, R-Ulster-Dutchess and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, R-Ulster in the state capital.

Other topics will be junk car and Memorial Day laws, gun legislation and acquisition of surplus federal land.

A resolution expected to abandon the county bounty on foxes and bobcats has also been filed for this season.

Salvation Army Guest March 25

Captain David A. Baxendale, Divisional Youth Secretary of the Salvation Army based in Albany, will be the speaker at the annual banquet and meeting of the Kingston Salvation Army Corps scheduled for the Gov. Clinton Hotel, Monday, March 25.

Thomas W. Reynolds Jr., chairman of the Advisory Board, announced the appearance of Captain Baxendale at the dinner, which will feature the annual reports of the local Corps.

Born of Salvationist parents, Captain Baxendale grew up in widely scattered parts of the eastern United States, and in 1948 was the Salvation Army delegate to a world youth leaders conference in England. He is a graduate of Springfield College, Springfield, Mass., and he and his wife were commissioned second lieutenants in the Salvation Army in 1955. While serving the Army in New York City, Captain Baxendale completed his Master's Degree at Columbia University and was elected to Phi Delta Kappa, the national honor fraternity for men educators.

In June of 1966 Captain and Mrs. Baxendale were appointed Divisional Youth Secretaries for the Eastern New York Division, responsible for the Salvation Army's youth program from the Canadian border to Middletown and serving 24 communities. This position also includes the administration of the Salvation Army's 280 acre Camp Saddle-

McCarthy Backers Jubilant in Ulster

Unqualified jubilation reigns in the local political camp of the Coalition for a Democratic Alternative today. The excellent showing made by Sen. Eugene McCarthy, CDA-backed candidate for the Presidency, in the New Hampshire primary Tuesday, touched off a flurry of activity by his supporters in Ulster County.

On the basis of returns from New Hampshire, local CDA workers met at the home of Theodore E. Geertsema, Woodstock chairman of the Coalition in that township, to begin mailing out thousands of letters to enrolled Democratic voters in Ulster County. The letters include information on Sen. McCarthy's background and qualifications, urge political and financial support for him locally and carry an announcement of a major rally in Kingston on March 27.

Duplicate Bridge

Recent winners at the JCC Duplicate Bridge Club were: First, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yallum, Kingston; second, Ralph Wesselman, Shokan and Robert Tomasulo, Poughkeepsie; third, Joe Mautner and Nat Katatsky, Kingston; fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Al Crisafulli, Boiceville.

A St. Patrick's Day game will be held tonight, 7:30 p.m. at the JCC. Area bridge devotees may attend.

The Woodstock chairman, who also serves with Mrs. Victor Landau, of New Paltz, as co-chairman of Ulster County CDA, told the Freeman today that the organization "has been gaining strength daily, even though we have only a few short weeks of political activity behind us." Geertsema predicted that added impetus and interest will result immediately from Sen. McCarthy's strong showing in the New Hampshire primary.

To Run Delegates

CDA chapters have been organized in most of the larger cities and towns in Ulster County, as well as throughout the 28th Congressional District. It is the announced intention of these groups in the five counties of the District to unite in nominating and running a slate of CDA-endorsed candidates as delegates to the National Democratic Convention in Chicago this summer. The three delegates and three alternates selected will be committed to voting for Sen. McCarthy in preference to President Johnson.

Geertsema said his group feels strongly that the primary results in New Hampshire, considered by most political observers to be a highly conservative state, proves "conclusively" that Americans everywhere "seek new solutions to our problems."

He added that the New Hampshire vote indicated a "dissatisfaction with Lyndon Johnson as a leader, man and Democrat." It is the contention of CDA that Johnson does not represent the principles of the Democratic Party as established by previous Democratic Presidents, and efforts to "dump him" during this campaign year are based on the fact that he "has refused Democratic thinking and wishes."

Congressional Feeler

One immediate result of the McCarthy results in New Hampshire, said Geertsema and Mrs. Landau, was an approach from the office of the New York State Democratic committee for a meeting of the two groups (the committee and CDA) to discuss the possibility of CDA endorsing a Democratic candidate in this 28th District for Congress. Present Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, who has criticized the State Committee and its chairman, John Burns, has announced he will step down to run for the U.S. Senate. Because of the bitterness generated between the Resnick and Burns camps, Geertsema and Mrs. Landau said it appears that the State Committee is "more than a little interested in running a Congressional candidate in this area and has recognized the need for CDA support here."

As for Resnick, he would also seem to face CDA opposition in his bid for the Senate. A statewide meeting of CDA groups will be held in Albany this Saturday for the purpose of nominating a candidate from CDA to oppose Resnick and the only other announced Senatorial candidate, Rep. Otis Pike. The candidate who seems to be most favored to make this race is Allard Lowenstein, civil rights lawyer and college instructor, who spoke recently in New Paltz and Poughkeepsie.

Saugerties Community Division Launches Part in Y Fund Drive

The Saugerties Community Division of the current YMCA Building Fund Campaign held a kick-off meeting this week at the VFW Hall. Calvin H. Cody, chairman of the Saugerties effort, was very gratified with the number present and their commitment to this effort to provide a county-wide YMCA Family center.

In addition to the many Saugerties area residents who are already members of the YMCA, both men and women, and the many boys and girls who attend the Y's Day Camp, the YMCA plans extension programs to be originated in Saugerties beginning this September. Paul Coon, president of the YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County, said that as new program groups are formed in Saugerties, they will be brought in to be programed in the new facilities in Kingston evenings and weekends.

Leadership in the Saugerties campaign include Captain Richard Luther with workers George Terpening, Greg Helmsmoortel,

Greg Mulstay, and Frank Greimel; Captain Betty van der Poel with workers Mrs. Sandra Bartell, Mrs. Vivian Schmersahl, Mrs. Kay Van Tassel, Mrs. Gertrude Pavlinick, Mrs. Gloria Meridith, Mr. Salvatore Ferrone, Ronald Avery, Richard Cyr, Roy Almquist; Captain Joseph Benjamin with workers Mrs. William J. Brogan, Mrs. John Hutton, Mrs. Erika Hinchey, Mrs. George Haun, Mrs. Vincent Berzel, Mrs. Ada Celli; Captain David Goble with workers Paul Braizer, Mrs. Paul Pavlovich, Robert T. Emery, Arthur D. York, Richard J. Underhill, George L. Hildebrandt.

Cody said that the current drive needs the support of all citizens of this area if the facilities needed are to be realized. The new facilities include a 37'x75' pool, double gymnasium, separate locker and shower facilities for boys, girls, men, and women, two 4-wall handball courts, necessary social and administrative space, and many other special features.

Begin Razing of Property on 'Y' Site

N. LeVan Haver, general chairman of the YMCA Building Fund Drive, today announced that as the campaign is in full swing, the Board of Directors of the Y are proceeding with the razing of the Roe Building pointing toward construction of the Y scheduled to begin this summer.

By the razing of the building, the site plan can be graded and construction work can more easily proceed. Tenants of other properties adjacent to the Roe Building which include the old WBAZ radio station building, Laundrette, etc., have been asked to vacate the premises by May 1. This also is part of the total planning of the YMCA construction program.

Saving Historic Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — Property adjoining Ford's Theater has been bought by a corporation headed by Laurence S. Rockefeller to protect the theater's setting. The three-story building purchased will be turned over to the National Park Service, which already has control of the boarding house across the street in which Abraham Lincoln died.

Progress of the campaign up to this point has given the board and trustees encouragement to move now in preparation for the ground breaking this summer. The trustees and members of the board of directors themselves have pledged some $100,000 toward the building program which is currently encouraging others to be particularly generous with their gifts. As soon as the site is ready, a sign will be put up, courtesy of Modjeska Sign Studio, announcing to all the location and further progress towards a brand new facility, adopting the "Family Center" concept.

4th Academy Appointee

The fourth in a series of appointments to the faculty of Ulster Academy, the area's new independent school, was announced today with the naming of Thomas Richard Daniel as master of biological science by Headmaster Raymond A. Nelson.

Daniel is now completing a master of science teaching degree, concentrating in marine biology, under a National Science Foundation grant at Cornell University. He is engaged in original research in the genetics and culture of neurospora. He received a BS from Bloomfield College and an MS in science from Danbury State College.

His most recent teaching assignment was as biology master at Worcester Academy, Massachusetts. For four years he taught biology and chemistry at the Park School, Indianapolis, where he did extensive curriculum and laboratory development work. He held an instructorship with full scholarship at the University of Virginia and also studied at Butler University. As an undergraduate he pursued independent research in instrumentation under the physics department.

He is the author of Exercises in Molecular and Cytological Genetics and wrote his master's thesis on A Survey of Scientific Education in Secondary Independent Schools. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Genetic Association, the Virginia Academy of Science, the National Association of Biology Teachers and the American Nature Study Society.

At Ulster Academy he will be responsible for general science and chemistry, handle testing and assist in administration.

Ulster Academy opens in September, offering grades seven through 10. The school will be located at the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing Building. The school catalogue and admissions material is available at the Academy office, 17 Pearl Street, Kingston.

Kingston Hospital Unit Could Start This Summer

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

One of the most modern and sophisticated intensive care units in any hospital of its size is in the final planning stage for Kingston Hospital.

According to the hospital's new administrator, Anthony R. Triulzi, plans for the unit will have to go through the Northern Metropolitan Regional Planning Council and, finally, the State Department of Health.

7-County Council

The planning council consists of representatives from each of seven counties of which Ulster is one.

An informed source told The Freeman that once the prestige of the council rests behind a hospital project, endorsement by the state health department usually follows.

Two floors of the Broadway wing of the hospital, as yet unfinished, will house the intensive care facilities should the hospital gain acceptance from the council and the state.

Administrator Triulzi said that "a fund campaign (for the unit) is not anticipated at this time," and The Freeman was informed that legislation, proposed by Governor Rockefeller's administration, which will grant low-interest loans to hospital building campaigns, is now awaiting action by state lawmakers.

$600,000-$700,000 Tab

The cost of the Kingston Hospital's intensive care facilities will be somewhere in the vicinity of $600,000 to $700,000.

"Once we are given the OK," Triulzi declared, "we will proceed with the sending out of bids."

An informed source, close to the hospital's administrative circles, said that a realistic outlook for the anticipated construction of the new facilities would be sometime this summer.

Intensive Coronary

The new facilities will contain 15 rooms on the two floors of the Broadway wing. With one bed for each room, four beds will be for intensive coronary care, seven for intensive medical care—which would include critical accident cases—and four would be for weaning or intermediate cases, patients who have just passed through a critical stage of their sickness and need more observation and treatment than general patients.

Administrator Triulzi declared that this would fit in with "progressive patient care concepts."

The rooms will contain two, possibly three, vacuum outlets, and more electrical outlets than those found in ordinary hospital rooms.

The rooms will also be provided with the necessary jacks for monitoring equipment.

The monitoring equipment will include a heart stimulator which can shock the patient's heart back to a normal beat even after the pumping or beating action has stopped.

Included too will be a sonar-like scope which will electronically record the patient's heart action with a beam visible to the nurse on duty.

The highly sensitive scope beam requires trained personnel to tell the difference between a heart seizure and a simple moving of the arm. Electrodes are attached to various parts of the patient's body for monitoring purposes.

Significant Change in Tax Regulations on Corporations and Bonds

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Seldom does the Treasury have much trouble getting publicity around income tax time, but a decision to take effect this week could give his federal agency more than it wants.

This decision concerns a significant change in tax regulations concerning corporations and tax-free bonds. Certainly it is one of the most important rulings made in recent years by the tax people.

Involved with the corporations are towns, cities and states who market what commonly are called industrial revenue bonds but which critics claim are more accurately described as tax-free corporate bonds.

Originally these securities were used by municipalities in their quest for industry and jobs. By borrowing money and erecting a plant they found it much easier to induce a company to settle in their area.

Since government agencies, municipalities, did the borrowing these bonds were tax free, meaning the purchaser need pay no federal income tax on the interest. Since they were tax free they were very attractive to purchasers. And since they were so attractive, purchasers willingly accepted low interest rates.

As a result, a municipality could put up a plant for less than the corporation would pay to do the identical job.

Gradually, corporations realized the possibilities of this low-cost method of plant financing. Some of them encouraged towns to float issues on the promise they would sign long-term leases for use of the plant.

Large companies, which would have no difficulty raising the money themselves, also took advantage of the situation. And industrialized states, finding industry leaving for these new plants, passed legislation permitting tax-free industrial revenue financing in their own areas.

The practice grew steadily during the 1950s but it really shot up in the 1960s, especially after 1964. Last year $6.3 billion of these industrials revenue bonds were issued, compared with $500 million in 1966.

Matching this growth was the growing alarm of the U.S. Treasury, which at first sought the help of Congress but then acted on its own. It intends to declare that after Friday such bonds are taxable.

Preceding their action was a long battle, led largely by the Investment Bankers Association, which declared:

"The majority of recent municipal industrial bond issues have benefitted not the small community, but rather the big and powerful companies and the large affluent communities."

Caught rushing to beat the deadline was one of these powerful companies, U.S. Steel Corp., a company whose net income generally exceeds $200 million a year. This Friday it hopes to market—rather it hopes that Lorain County, Ohio, markets—some $80 million of tax-free bonds for a new plant.

Should the U.S. Steel financing be the last major one before the deadline, it would be a rather symbolic end. Originally these bonds were meant for undernourished communities and small companies. It was the abuse of them by wealthy municipalities and huge corporations and the loss of revenue that caused the Treasury to act.

Two big questions remain: (1.) Will the Treasury make the decision stick? (2.) Why should towns and companies that need such financing be denied it?

Since many millions of dollars and powerful interests are involved, a real slugfest could yet ensue. It might last long after the tax gong sounds April 15.

Saigon 'Liberation Army' Being Formed

By BARRY KRAMER

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government's chief spokesman said Wednesday that a volunteer "liberation army" is being formed to invade North Vietnam.

U.S. Surprised

U.S. officials expressed complete surprise at the report. The spokesman Director General of Information Nguyen Ngoc Linh, said the invasion army would be made up of Vietnamese who are "sick and tired of those people who want to 'liberate' South Vietnam." This was a reference to the Viet Cong, who call themselves the South Vietnamese Liberation Army.

Vietnam Press, the government news agency, reported earlier today that authoritative sources had said a "high-ranking member of the vice president's office is forming a March to the North Army." The vice president is Nguyen Cao Ky, the former commander of the air force who was premier for two years before he and President Nguyen Van Thieu were elected last fall.

Many Contacted

"Many military men, political figures and representatives of groups and religions have been contacted for support for the formation of the army," Vietnam Press said.

"Moreover, several retired general officers, of high reputation and with best military records, are actively participating in the formation of the March to the North Army's command staff."

Linh told a newsman the new force would ask the government to provide it arms and ammunition and would be called the North Vietnam Liberation Army. He said it would consist of guerrillas and would not be part of the regular South Vietnamese Army.

Many of the officers for the new army would come from South Vietnam's Hoa Hao and Cao Dai sects, Linh said. Both are ultranationalist religious sects which, until recent years, maintained their own armies. They are strongly anti-Communist.

U.S. officials had no comment. They are likely to be highly skeptical since the South Vietnamese armed forces are having trouble increasing their net strength by 65,000 men.

Aaron Answers Charges of Village Party

Saugerties Village Democrats in a statement by Nathan A. Aaron, candidate for village trustee in the village election Tuesday, March 19, this week answered charges of the Village Party candidates regarding the Democrat's motives for entering the local political race.

Aaron, who was defeated in November in his bid for town justice remarks:

"It is interesting to contrast the tone of the statements issued on behalf of the candidates for the office of village trustees.

"Kenneth Blundell, chairman of the Village of Saugerties Democratic Committee, issued a dispassionate and factual statement pointing out that competition, whether in business or politics, is healthy, and that the voter should be given a choice when voting. Nothing in his statement can be construed as a reflection on the motives of the opposing candidates.

"On the other hand, a statement issued over the names of Charles Steele, Richard Underhill and Arthur York, while admitting that a two-party system is essential to good healthy government, impugns the motives of the Democratic candidates, accusing them of using the village as a stepping stone. Stepping stone to what? Further that they have no real interest in village affairs but are interested in a power grab. These statements are too childish to warrant notice. However, let us look at the records.

"In the 20 years I have lived in Saugerties I have been involved in many activities for improvement of the village. For the newcomers who may not be familiar with the happenings during the past years, I would like to list a few of my involvements during these years: president of the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce, two terms; member of the Village Planning Board; originator and chairman of Saugerties Assemblage Days; member of committee to establish the Community College in Saugerties; president of Saugerties Industrial Development Corp.; Saugerties representative on Board of Directors Ulster County Community Chest. Named Outstanding Citizen in 1962; member of Saugerties

MEMPHIS (AP) — People leave some of the strangest things on buses. Take the Memphis city bus system:

One driver found a purse. Inside was a loaded revolver. A messenger on the way to the bank left his weekly deposit—about $2,000. Drivers also have found false teeth, ladies' undergarments and shoes.

A lunchbox left aboard one bus lingered long in the memory of Mike Tate, president of Memphis Transit Authority's operating company.

"We put that lunchbox on the shelf, but what we didn't know was that it had limburger cheese in it. We thought a rat must have died under the floor of the lost articles room. We tore the whole floor up before we realized where the smell was."

But the most absentminded passenger of all was a mother who got off and left her 3-year-old son behind.

Emerald Isle Tales

The St. Patrick's Day Legends - - - Some Choices Are Offered

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS

As every good and would-be Irishman knows, St. Patrick drove the snakes from the Emerald Isle. But did he really?

According to tradition, St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, banished the serpents by beating on his drum. Once, when he supposedly struck the drum too hard and made a hole in it, an angel appeared immediately and mended it so he could continue his work without interruption.

St. Patrick worked very hard until there was only one snake left. This very, very old viper, undoubtedly unsuited to working with any snake charmer, refused to heed the call of the drums. From this point on you have a choice of which legend to believe.

The most popular tale has it that St. Patrick then made a box and asked the snake to enter. The snake objected, saying that the box was too small. St. Patrick argued that the box was plenty big enough to accommodate him comfortably. Finally, just to prove that St. Patrick was wrong, the snake agreed to try out the box for size. St. Patrick quickly clamped down the lid and tossed the snake into the sea, thus ridding Ireland of its last serpent.

Another legend claims that this hoary old serpent in Lough Dilveen was so difficult to deal with that St. Patrick left him, promising to return on Monday. Whether St. Patrick was called elsewhere on a church mission or whether he just plain forgot about the snake doesn't really matter. The fact remains that St. Patrick never did come back to retrieve the old varmint.

To this day the inhabitants of the area say the snake is still in the lake. He is utterly aged by now but every Monday he rises to the surface, looks out and calls, "It's been a long Monday, Patrick." Then he vanishes below the water again.

Fact and legend are often intertwined in the life of St. Patrick. Some sources claim that he raised persons from the dead, including his father. Another miracle credited to St. Patrick holds that when he was traveling with friends, the night became very cold. There was no fuel for a fire. St. Patrick told them to make a heap of snow. When he breathed on it, a blaze sprang up.

Even his birthplace is a mystery. Four countries—Scotland, England, France and Wales—all claim the saint was born on their soil.

It is generally accepted that Patrick, (real name Patrick Magonus Sucatin, or Maewyn) was born in 387 A.D. in Kilpatrick, near what is now Dumbarton, Scotland. His family, "of Roman-British origin" as he described it, was of the patrician or royal class; his father was a church deacon and municipal officer.

Captured at 16

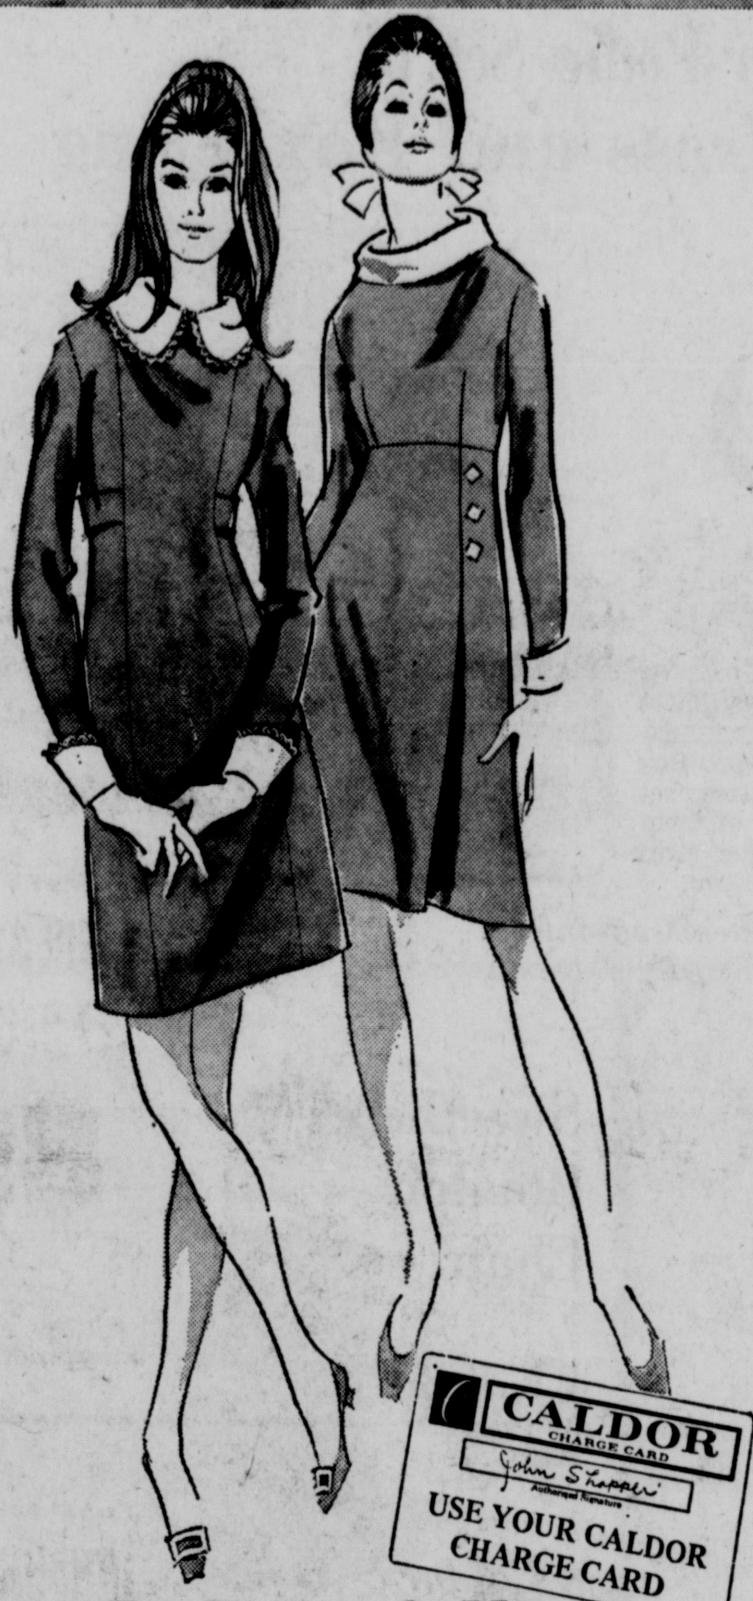

At age 16, Patrick was captured by Irish marauders and sold as a slave to a Druid chief. Six years he labored as a swineherd, in what is now County Antrim, Ireland, during which time he learned the customs and language of the pagan Irish people.

After escaping from his master, he returned to the continent, where he decided to devote his life to religion. He finished his studies, became a priest and later a bishop.

Then, some 18 years after his escape, under the authority of Pope Celestine, he returned to Ireland to teach the Gospel. Despite numerous clashes with the Druids, the pagan priests who were avowed enemies of Christianity, and despite being captured by them 12 times, nothing could diminish his missionary zeal. Until his death, he watched over the churches he had founded, encouraged priests and consecrated many bishops. He died on March 17, 461, at Saul on Stragford Lough, where he had built his first church.

Emerald Isle Tales

The St. Patrick's Day Legends - - - Some Choices Are Offered

By ARLEEN ABRAHAM

As every good and would-be Irishman knows, St. Patrick drove the snakes from the Emerald Isle. But did he really?

According to tradition, St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, banished the serpents by beating on his drum. Once, when he supposedly struck the drum too hard and made a hole in it, an angel appeared immediately and mended it so he could continue his work without interruption.

St. Patrick worked very hard until there was only one snake left. This very, very old viper, undoubtedly unsuited to working with any snake charmer, refused to heed the call of the drums. From this point on you have a choice of which legend to believe.

The most popular tale has it that St. Patrick then made a box and asked the snake to enter. The snake objected, saying that the box was too small. St. Patrick argued that the box was plenty big enough to accommodate him comfortably. Finally, just to prove that St. Patrick was wrong, the snake agreed to try out the box for size. St. Patrick quickly clamped down the lid and tossed the snake into the sea, thus ridding Ireland of its last serpent.

Another legend claims that this hoary old serpent in Lough Dilveen was so difficult to deal with that St. Patrick left him, promising to return on Monday. Whether St. Patrick was called elsewhere on a church mission or whether he just plain forgot about the snake doesn't really matter. The fact remains that St. Patrick never did come back to retrieve the old varmint.

To this day the inhabitants of the area say the snake is still in the lake. He is utterly aged by now but every Monday he rises to the surface, looks out and calls, "It's been a long Monday, Patrick." Then he vanishes below the water again.

Fact and legend are often intertwined in the life of St. Patrick. Some sources claim that he raised persons from the dead, including his father. Another miracle credited to St. Patrick holds that when he was traveling with friends, the night became very cold. There was no fuel for a fire. St. Patrick told them to make a heap of snow. When he breathed on it, a blaze sprang up.

Even his birthplace is a mystery. Four countries—Scotland, England, France and Wales—all claim the saint was born on their soil.

It is generally accepted that Patrick, (real name Párick Mac-nus Sucatin, or Maewyn) was born in 387 A.D. in Kilpatrick, near what is now Dumbarton, Scotland. His family, "of Roman-British origin" as he described it, was of the patrician or royal class; his father was a church deacon and municipal officer.

Captured at 16

At age 16, Patrick was captured by Irish marauders and sold as a slave to a Druid chief. Six years he labored as a swineherd, in what is now County Antrim, Ireland, during which time he learned the customs and language of the pagan Irish people.

After escaping from his master, he returned to the continent, where he decided to devote his life to religion. He finished his studies, became a priest and later a bishop.

Then, some 18 years after his escape, under the authority of Pope Celestine, he returned to Ireland to teach the Gospel. Despite numerous clashes with the Druids, the pagan priests who were avowed enemies of Christianity, and despite being captured by them 12 times, nothing could diminish his missionary zeal. Until his death, he watched over the churches he had founded, encouraged priests and consecrated many bishops.

He died on March 17, 461, at Saul on Stragford Lough, where he had built his first church.

Ronder is a member of the law firm of St. John, Ronder and Bell, together with Howard C. St. John, former Ulster County district attorney, and H. Tax Deadline Set March 26

The first half of the Kingston general tax payment is due by March 26, according to City Treasurer Stanley J. Petro Jr. Petro said today if the entire tax is paid by the 26th a discount of one-half of one percent will be allowed. From March 27 to April 15, inclusive, a two per cent penalty will be levied for those who have not paid their first half taxes.

All taxes will be collected at the treasurer's office, second floor, city hall, this year. Previously, taxpayers could make their payments at banks but Petro said the amount collected has not justified the hiring of the additional personnel. Regular office hours for the city treasurer are Monday to Friday, 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

'Radio Row' Static

NEW YORK (AP) — "Radio row," where more than 50 stores once handled all sorts of communications equipment, has been wiped out by the construction of the 110-story World Trade Center on the lower West side. This district was considered the East Coast center for ham radio and hi-fi addicts. The stores are now scattered, with a dozen of them located near Fulton and Nassau Streets.

State Police Report:

Heavier Work Schedules During '67 Year

Heavier work pressures were experienced and outstanding progress in its facilities for serving the public were recorded by the New York State Police in 1967, Supt. William E. Kerwin has reported to Governor Rockefeller.

Among developments of particular significance, according to the agency's annual report, were the attainment of operational status for a computerized communications system, abundant gains in building accommodations and the inauguration of an air patrol in Troop T for traffic supervision on the Thruway.

Commenting upon the computer which went into operation last July, Kirwin said:

"It would be difficult to overstate the value of this equipment as a weapon in the attack on crime. The evidence is abundant that crimes are being cleared up that otherwise would have remained unsolved."

The computer's potential as an anti-crime tool arises from its capacity to store information on stolen cars, wanted persons, stolen articles and other information and make this data immediately retrievable by field personnel simply by sending a coded message into the memory component.

The State Police computer has been "interfaced" with a similar computer operated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation which stores crime information on a national scale. This operation is known as the National Crime Information Center. The link with NCIC permits police departments using the State Police Communications System to instantly retrieve information which has been stored on crimes in other states.

Progress in housing in 1967 included the opening of a new $1.3 million troop headquarters at Canandaigua, the start of a similar structure at Middletown to be completed in 1968 and the completion of plans and preliminary site work on a $3.6 million State Police Academy at the State Campus in Albany.

Offenses reported to the State Police last year totaled 596,832, an increase of 24,498, or 4.3 per cent over 1966. Arrests came to 527,735 for violations of the motor vehicle laws and 22,485 for felonies and lesser criminal offenses. Excessive speed accounted for 251,534 or 47.6 per cent of the traffic arrests compared with 243,750 speeding arrests in 1966.

The letter by Jeffrey A. Buchle, entries committee chairman, asked for the cooperation of each supervisor in nominating one or more eligible young ladies of their township to compete. This year's local pageant will be held in September and the committee would like each township represented. The young lady selected as Miss Ulster County qualifies to compete in the Miss New York State Pageant at Olean in July.

MISS ULSTER COUNTY OF 1968

It's a New Way of Life

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

A new way of life — condominium living — is springing up across the United States. Its concept appeals particularly to retirement couples.

It utilizes city and country property to the fullest and differs from cooperative and "complex" apartment life in that you have a warranty deed for your own dwelling.

City condominium units such as one in Chicago, where land is expensive, are likely to be on the high-rise apartment idea. A condominium development may be part of a vast area planned to include townhouses, single-family homes and high-rise apartments such as one in Cleveland.

Or, it can develop into a village such as one 2,000-unit condominium located on 910 acres of beautiful rolling countryside at Southbury, Conn. Here buildings are in clusters, two units or more to each building.

What is it that attracts many well-to-do people in independent communities to give up their large homes and embrace a new way of life that appears to be regimented?

For one thing, as people grow older, they want more quiet, fewer home chores and easy access to recreation. Condominiums satisfy those needs. The only chores are maintenance of house interior and patio. Everything else — steels, maintenance, parking facilities, landscaping, snow removal, are supplied and included in a monthly maintenance charge.

The atmosphere at Southbury's Heritage Village is tranquil and resembles a restored historical retreat. There are no poles or utility wires. There is no noise as there are no highways within earshot. Buildings are nestled into the natural setting.

There are glimpses of wild ducks on ponds and lakes, deer peeping through brush, sheep grazing, horses in a corral, trout in brooks. The condominium owner at Heritage Village has nothing more to do than enjoy.

Architect Charles Warren Callister, who won an award for a retirement village at Walnut Creek, Calif., did the plan.

"There are close to a thousand units of an eventual 2,000," explains Henry Paparazzo, one of a three-brother building team. Otto, a graduate of Rhode Island School of Design, handles the aesthetic side; Frank is site man; Henry studied to be a geologist, but he is the administrator.

The village will not make a profit for perhaps 12 years, Henry explains. They spent $8 million — $1 million of it for sewers — before the first person moved in. Their partner in finance is an insurance company that "can provide availability and capability" — the amount of money to be expended doesn't deter them.

"We found a great architect who helped us in our aim to design total environment to satisfy the needs of an adult community. The response has been fantastic," Henry says.

Units range in price from about $19,000 to $33,000. One in the $19,000 price range is a two-bedroom two-bath unit.

The planning makes you unaware that the building is shared. An inn and restaurant on the grounds is run by Maurice Brockway, well-known in Bucks County, Pa., and New York hostilities.

On a recent visit, "Brock" was in the kitchen whipping up crab meat crepes and bragging that he was turning customers away. Many people use the Inn for guests, dinner parties, entertainment.

Golf, horseback riding and tennis are available for those who want to keep active. There is trout fishing. Arts, crafts and educational programs are held in cooperation with the University of Connecticut. Many of the retired owners pursue their former work interests. An ex-war correspondent edits the newspaper and author Patricia Roberts conducts classes in flower arranging.

At first, Southbury's residents (5,000) didn't go for the condominium village but eventually, realizing it would not necessitate new schools and raise taxes, they discarded their zoning regulations to adopt it. No family with children under 18 is accepted at Heritage.

Q—What is meant by cerebrovascular crisis? What causes it? Is it dangerous?
A—This is a stroke. It may be caused by any lesion that suddenly interferes with the blood supply to a part of the brain. It is very serious.

Q—I have cerebral arteriosclerosis and am very dizzy. Is there a drug that will help this condition? What is the prognosis?
A—Although there is no cure for this disease, in some victims the dizziness subsides in time. The outlook is uncertain because, although the natural progress of the disease is slow, complications may occur at any time.

UCBPW Goes Over the Top With 101 Members

Despite county highway and State Police snow warnings, despite slippery road conditions and gusty winds, members of the Ulster County Business and Professional Women's Club met Tuesday night (March 12) in the Governor Clinton Hotel to celebrate St. Patrick's Day and to hear that membership in the three-year-old chapter now totals 101.

Kathleen Sullivan of Lake Katrine, who is assistant treasurer for the Kingston Savings Bank, was the club's 100th member. In honor of the occasion, an orchid was presented to Vera Bishop, BPW membership chairman, in recognition of the work done by her and members of her committee.

New members voted upon at the meeting also included Maureen C. Gray, supervisor of Child Welfare, Ulster County Department of Social Services; Ellen A. Padvan, Woodstock, artist; Mildred J. Schrader, Woodstock artist; Phyllis L. Byrne, receptionist, Tom Reynolds Studio, Lillian Shields, Sunset Park, publications coordinator, IBM, Kingston; Elinor Smith, Kingston, technical illustrator, IBM, Kingston; Judy Tyrell, Kingston, dental hygienist. Mrs. Tyrell is the 101st member to join the club.

During the business meeting, three delegates to the spring meeting of the BPW District III meeting were elected. Representing the local club on the district level will be the club president, Mrs. Dorothy A. Narel; Virginia Neher and Rosemary Caulfield. Alternates are Beverly Reese, Chris Gallop and Dr. Audrey Hamilton.

Hosting the district meeting will be the Latham Business and Professional Women's Club. Sessions will be held on Saturday, April 26, in the Niskayuna Reformed Church, Route 7, Latham.

The evening's program was a tribute to St. Patrick's Day. Virginia Neher, chairman of the BPW personal development committee, planned the unique "get-acquainted" format with the assistance of her committee. Barbara A. Read charmed members and guests alike with her leprechaun act.

The April 9th meeting will be the election of new officers for the year 1968-69. Officers may not serve more than two consecutive years in a given post. Mrs. Vera Bishop, second vice-president, declined a nomination for first vice-president at Tuesday's meeting.

The following slate was presented by the nominating committee: Mary Polhemus, president; Virginia Neher, first vice-president; Mary Fisher, second vice-president; Rosemary Caulfield, corresponding secretary; Chris Gallop, recording secretary, and Edith Howard, treasurer.

Installation of officers is scheduled for May.

Shopping for Cookies

Shopping for cookies is no simple task. Perusing the cookie aisle in a large supermarket, shoppers might find a staggering 282 different cookie packages. Prices vary widely with the type and form of cookie, size of package, and type of packaging, says Louise M. Kakargo, Extension Home Economist. It pays to study the packages and compare cost per pound or per ounce to get the most for the money.

Six out of 10 households buys cookies in their weekly food shopping, the recent national Household Food Consumption study revealed. Households surveyed consumed an average of almost a pound of cookies during the survey week and spent 38 cents for them. As incomes increase, families tend to spend more on cookies. Families with children are the biggest cookie eaters. The cookie market totals more than $700 million annually.

Cookie eaters choose the old favorites. Each year many new cookie varieties appear, but most of the new varieties are short lived, and few remain on the market shelf by the year's end.

The most popular kinds of cookies, according to one leading manufacturer, are: Chocolate cream sandwiches, chocolate chip cookies, fig cakes, vanilla wafers, sugar wafers, and chocolate enrobed cookies, such as chocolate-covered marshmallows.

Cookies are high in energy value. Cookies are high in energy value and are often eaten by children, along with milk, for a mid-afternoon pick-up. Generally, such cookies as oatmeal, oatmeal with raisins, peanut, raisin, fig-filled, graham, molasses, and ginger snaps offer more of other nutrients.

A Cookie Buying Guide

Compare cost among types of cookies. Cookies vary considerably in cost according to their type. Generally, plainer cookies are lower in cost than fancy cookies. However, animal cookies are an exception and are actually quite costly because of their fancy cut-out shapes and small-size packages. Chocolate coating usually adds considerably to cookie cost. For example, one brand of plain graham crackers cost 37 cents a pound, but chocolate coated they cost 54 cents a pound, in the store surveyed. Raisins and peanuts add to cookie cost but boost the food value as well.

Compare cost among brands. Generally, a store's own private label brand is considerably less expensive than a nationally advertised brand. But it pays to check quality too because there may be a difference in ingredients used.

Sunglasses In Fashion

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunglass wearing is getting so complicated that before long you are going to need your own file drawer to find the right pair for the right occasion.

Everything used to be so simple when sunglasses only were worn in the sun. Now that women have discovered that glare from snow, or modern glass buildings and concrete can be just as unpleasant, they are wearing them year-round. To keep up with this, one firm has changed the generic term from sun to shade glasses.

Moreover, the industry has busily made itself indispensable to the seeing scene by creating a shade of glass and a kind of frame for every kind of costume and event around the clock.

The latest edict is skinny frames for skinny fur coats, and presumably fat ones for bulky furs. At any rate, shades designed to put more spring into skinny calveskins and pastel kidskins are round, square or oval lenses delicately tinted to match their frames.

Among the new frame shapes available are so-called round-tops, wrap-arounds, drop-eyes, and thinnies, "to add a little mystery," as the Foster Grant people say.

The mystery is how to keep straight which tint and shade goes with each fur coat, ski suit, sunsuit, and shopping outfit without a good memory or filing system.

Inflatable Plastic Used as Furniture

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One moving day soon you might pack your living room furniture in your suitcase and carry it to your brand-new home. It looks as if inflatable plastic furniture is here to stay. Sofas, chairs, cube tables, pillows are in production. New designs, lamps and tables will be available soon. Although the process is not yet perfect, it offers great possibilities.

The idea might particularly appeal to young people who will find such furniture useful in college dorms, or during their early years of marriage.

A room at the showrooms of Mass Art, the firm that spurred the inflatable furniture movement, looks like something out of outer space—clear plastic chairs, leather effects in combinations of green and pink or lavender and purple set in metal frames, vinyl cubes and pillows in psychedelic and pop designs.

It takes from five to seven minutes to blow up a chair with an ordinary vacuum cleaner.

The manufacturers claim that the furniture will last from two to ten years, if you don't stick pins or knives in it. If you do puncture a chair, there are replaceable parts at $5.

"We have an inflatable house, 60 feet in diameter with a radius of 30 feet," says Susan K. Souri, president of the firm. It isn't ready for a family, he points out, but at present it can be used as a temporary shelter for construction workers or as a pool house.

Not all see-through furniture is inflatable. Plexiglas, lucite and other plastics are being used to bring the clean, clear look of furniture into homes.

The most popular item in this clear plastic look is perhaps the cube table. It is seen everywhere—in the homes of top designers and, in the posh houses of well-to-do people, often combined with priceless furnishings.

Bubble shaped windows set in the facade of the "house" illustrate the possibilities of plastic for such purposes.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Folks:

This is strictly for fresh green bean lovers. There's nothing like 'em when they are cooked with bacon grease, ham hock, etc. We all know that. But while I was snapping some one night, it dawned on me that nearly every meal the Chinese prepare has a delicious dish of something sweet and sour. So when I was ready to cook the two pounds of fresh green beans, I tried something new.

I put in one level tablespoon of sugar and one tablespoon of vinegar to the water I had covered them with. Then I added one chopped onion.

After cooking them the usual time . . . you talk about something lush . . .

Sweet and sour green beans! Whoever heard of that before?

Heloise

P.S. Twice since then I didn't have any fresh green beans in the house, so I opened a can of WHOLE green beans and added the same things. They were just about as tasty as the fresh ones.

The one thing that you all are gonna ask is, what did I do with the water that came in the can of beans?

I poured it off! I held the can under the faucet and rinsed off the beans before adding fresh water and the above ingredients. Sure is different.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Recently while packing to return from a short trip, I needed something to put my dirty golf shoes in to keep them from touching other things in the suitcase.

My hostess gave me some aluminum foil to use.

It fitted closely — right to the shape of the shoes, taking up a minimum of room in my suitcase.

M.D.J.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I buy a few rubber fruit jar rings and attach them to the back of my furniture to hold my electric cords in place and off the floor.

Using these, there is no danger of a metal catch or holder causing a worn spot in the cord which might cause a short or a fire.

Dear Heloise:

I have a helpful hint for mothers with babies.

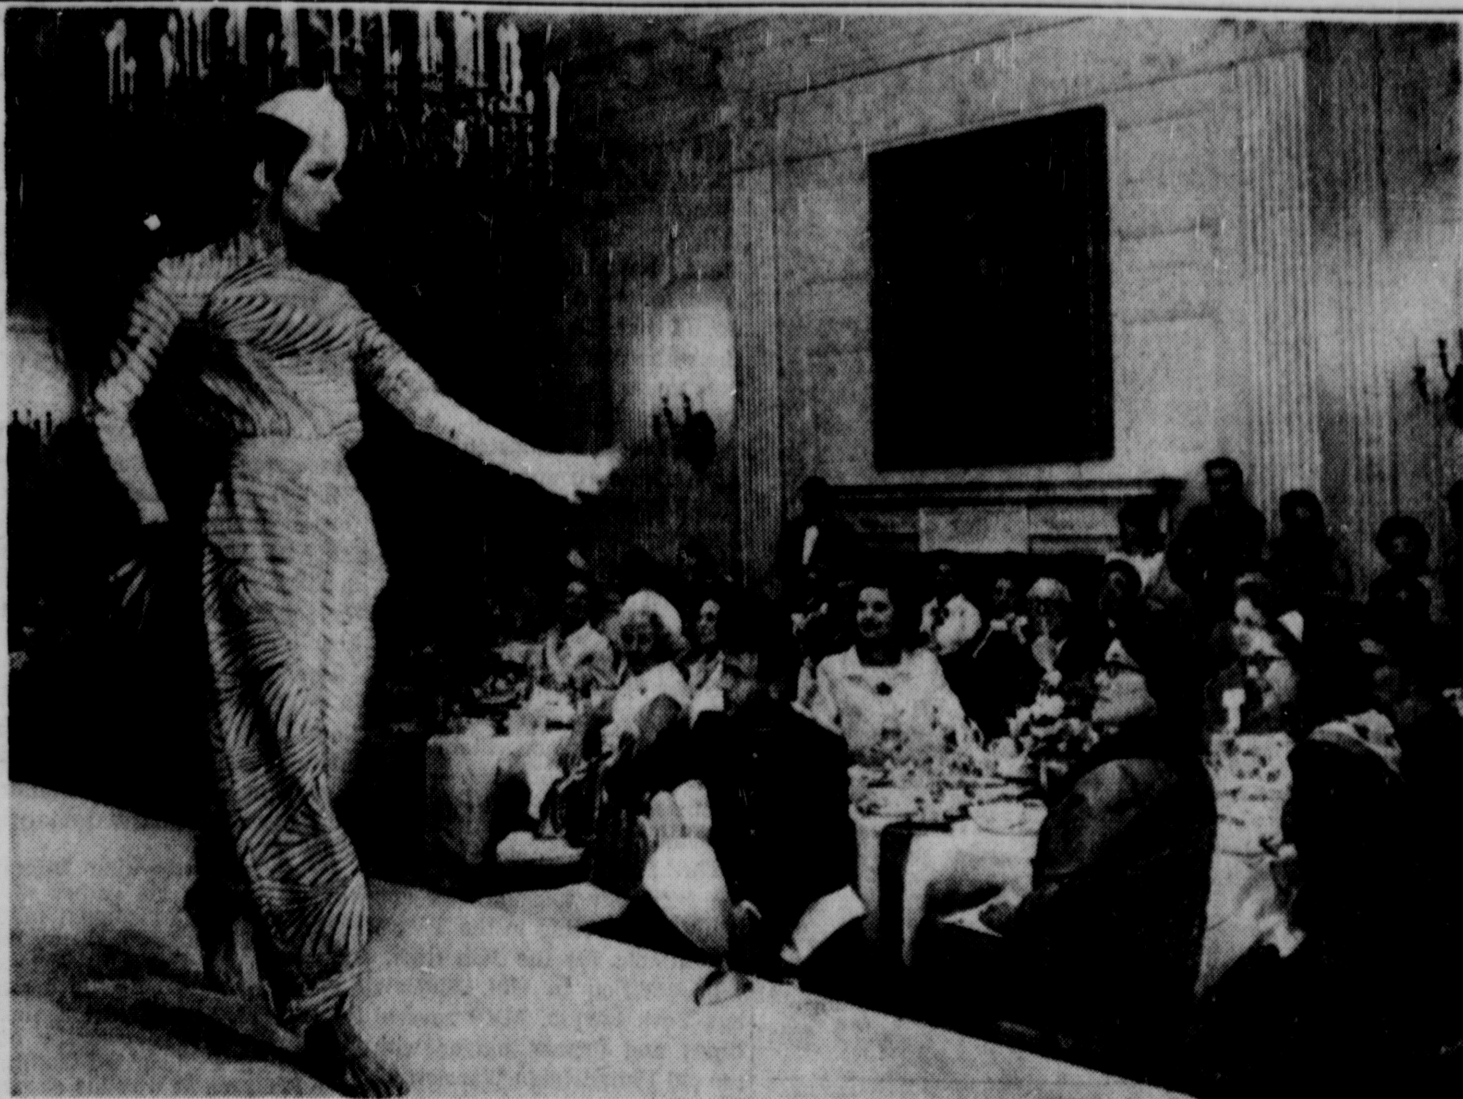

Playpens are usually low and when a mother goes to put her child in, or take him out of the pen, she has to bend over. Buy a piece of thick plywood of a size to fit the playpen bottom and four table legs, eight or 10 inches high. Screw the legs onto the corners of the plywood.

Set the playpen on the "table" you have made.

This will raise the playpen and mother doesn't have to bend so low to pick up baby. He is high enough so he can see out the window.

This works perfectly and helps both mother and baby.

The Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

These are thoughts which occur to a gardener when the meter is around freezing and flowers and vegetables are all two feet of snow covers the ground. It is a good time to think of the seed catalogues in our garden and several pro-fuse bloomers not counting purs-lans and quack grass. We Giant, carnations, giant holly-grow giant zucchini. They start hocks, giant columbine, giant very small and when they are sweet peas. One catalogue shows three or four inches long they are delicious cut up in strips and eaten raw as an accompaniment to a summer drink. But turn your back on a zucchini for a little while and what happens? You need a wheelbarrow to carry it away.

Something like this is true of the oregano and the lemon balm. A couple of summers ago we bought six small plants of each. We have been giving them away, weeding them out, and cutting them off ever since. They have made a border three feet wide and almost as high. We like oregano and the lemon balm smells sweet although I don't think it is otherwise good for much. But this excess growth makes me happy that have a blue rose? Especially as a rule giants do not grow if it is actually a sick lavender. It is not only the horticultural plants springing up overnight and mounting to the roof are all right for California. In our garden I like to suffer a little, worry a bit, plant and wait, sometimes indefinitely. But in midwinter the seed catalogues are fun, just as long as the shovel and the hoe remain upright in the garden house and the ground is hard as a rock. In the pictures, could give it another poke, even the giants are attractive.

Chief Advises: Teach Children To Refuse Rides From Strangers

By AUDREY SACCO
Hammond (Ind.) Times

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — Strangers can mean danger to children, warns Hammond Police Chief George Wise.

He pointed out that child molesters are primarily teenage and adult boys and men. Although there have been cases involving women, "they are very rare," he said.

Police Lt. Richard Dearing and Sgt. Norman Spencer, juvenile officers, agree that child molesting is a sickness.

"This kind of person," Lt. Dearing said, "is definitely sick. He's mentally ill and in need of help."

"He's not out for kicks," offered Sgt. Spencer, "I guess he figures children are defenseless to a point."

Although child molesters are generally found around schools, playgrounds, bus stops and parks, the location isn't important. The child's awareness of the situation is very important.

From the time a child is old enough to go outside to play, he should be taught and repeatedly reminded to:

Never accept rides from strangers.

Never accept candy from strangers.

Report, without fear, to a teacher, parent or police officer, any stranger seen loitering on foot or in a car near places where children assemble.

Try to get the license number of the car. Write it down on paper or scratch it with a stick or stone in the street or on the sidewalk.

Try to remember the stranger's looks in order to describe him to the police.

A child should be taught that a police officer is a friend to whom he can and should turn when he is in trouble.

If trouble occurs or a suspi-icious incident is brought to a parent's attention, the parent should call the local police department.

A program just getting underway in Hammond is the Helping Hand project which has proved successful in neighboring communities like Lansing, East Chicago and Highland—pioneers in the project.

Through Helping Hand, a city or town advisory board is organized which then contacts Parent-Teacher Associations. PTAs work closely with police departments.

A Helping Hand card, locally a red hand on a white background, is placed in the window of the volunteer's home. It indicates to any child in the neighborhood a home which is open to him in the event of trouble or a suspicious stranger.

When the volunteer is not at home, the sign is removed from the window.

Among the "do's" children should know is screaming.

"The sound of a child screaming in terror is enough to bring everyone outside," Sgt. Spencer said.

"Adults and bystanders are more willing to become involved where a child may be in danger," he went on, "rather than avoid the situation."

Her Assets Frozen — She Delivers Ice

By SUSIE MENEFFEE
Salem Capital Journal Writer

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Five-foot-two Mrs. Don Waters wrestles with frozen assets—ice. The petite mother of five coolly delivers 25 to 50 pound bags and blocks of the chilly product for a bumbling average of a ton a day.

Pat Waters first broke the ice and took over her husband's route in 1966 when he became ill. That first summer, Danny, the Waters' now 16-year-old son, rode with her. "Otherwise I'd never have been able to make it," she said.

"Everyday someone's ice machine breaks down," Pat reported.

Persons faced with inoperative ice-makers are the company's best customers. Bags and blocks of ice also are delivered to restaurants, grocery stores, bars, clubs, hospitals and concessionaires.

"During the time of the State Fair my husband and I worked 23 hours a day, and my sister came to help with the children and housework," the lady ice-man said.

December, she reports, takes just about as much ice as July

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

These are thoughts which occur to a gardener when the thermometer is around freezing and two feet of snow covers the ground. It is a good time to think of the seed catalogues in our garden and several projects that have been coming in the mail. How romantic they are! Giant, carnations, giant hollyhocks, giant columbine, giant sweet peas. One catalogue shows a picture of an ordinary size woman standing next to a lily which towers over her head, bearing twenty or more blooms. I am not sure I want to see such a giant. But I need not worry. Such giant growth is not for me. My lily grows a modest three feet and if it has two flowers I count myself lucky. Nevertheless, the flower catalogues run to giants. They also offer new and strange combinations: green zinnias, which comes in all sizes and shapes, some of them pretty close to giant size, in colors that range from white to deepest red, why torture a zinnia until it is green? Why on earth have a blue rose? Especially if it is actually a sick lavender. It is not only the horticulturists who like to tease flowerers. A friend of ours years ago had a sensitive plant (mimosa pudica) which when touched with the finger would fold its leaves and close up tight. Our friend spent hours poking his poor little mimosa, watching it make its pathetic attempt to hide its face, and waiting with devilish patience until it unfolded again so he could give it another poke.

Something like this is true of the oregano and the lemon balm. A couple of summers ago we bought six small plants of each. We have been giving them away, weeding them out, and cutting them off ever since. They have made a border three feet wide and almost as high. We like oregano and the lemon balm smells sweet although I don't think it is otherwise good for much. But this excess growth makes me happy that as a rule giants do not grow for us. Ferns forty feet high have no appeal for me; great plants springing up overnight and mounting to the roof are all right for California. In our garden I like to suffer a little, worry a bit, plant and wait, sometimes indefinitely.

But in midwinter the seed catalogues are fun, just as long as the shovel and the hoe remain upright in the garden house and the ground is hard as a rock. In the pictures, even the giants are attractive.

Royals Alive, Bullets Dead?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Royals are alive, but the Baltimore Bullets are dying.

By beating Seattle 142-123 Wednesday night, the Royals remained one game behind idle Detroit in the fight for the National Basketball Association's final Eastern Division playoff spot.

But when the Bullets were beaten 100-96 by the lowly Chicago Bulls, they fell 2½ games behind the Pistons and their playoff hopes were reduced to prayers for a miracle.

And what miracles it will have to be. Baltimore has four games left—two with Boston, two with Philadelphia. Winning three of those plus a sudden collapse by both the Royals and Pistons is what is needed.

In other NBA games, New York beat Philadelphia 130-120; Los Angeles clinched second place in the West by clubbing San Francisco 142-106 and Boston crushed San Diego 144-118.

In the American Basketball Association, New Jersey beat Denver 96-87 and Indiana topped Minnesota 116-106.

Detroit has five games left—two with Los Angeles, and one each with San Francisco, Seattle and Boston—while Cincinnati has three left—with St. Louis, Philadelphia and New York.

Seattle closed to within one point of Cincinnati in the third period, but Tom Van Arsdale and Bill Dinwiddie led a spurt that kept the Royals comfortably ahead. Oscar Robertson scored 36 points while Bob Rule had 40 for the Sonics.

A free throw by Clem Haskins and two fast baskets by Barry Clemens and Keith Erickson broke a 94-94 tie for the Bulls and insured the victory. Haskins led Chicago with 22 points while Jack Marin had 23 for the Bullets.

The Knicks tightened their grip on third place in the East as Willis Reed's 32 points led them to victory. Hal Greer had 28 for the 76ers, who already have clinched the division title. Jerry West returned to the Los Angeles line-up after missing nine games with a pulled muscle but was held to 10 points. However, Elgin Baylor and Archie Clark took up the slack with 25 and 20 points as the Lakers routed San Francisco with a 78-45 opening half.

John Havlicek's 34 points for Boston helped send San Diego to its 12th straight loss. The Rockets now have dropped 29 of their last 30 games. Dave Gambee paced the losers with a career high 39.

Pipers Defeat DeMico's and Go Into Finals

Felicello's Pipers, 88-87 conquerors of DeMico Motors and Jeb's Sports Goods, 87-85 victors over Felicello's Bees meet tonight in the finals of the Marlboro Progress Club basketball tournament.

Jim Fairley's shot in the closing seconds enabled the Pipers to nip DeMico's who had overcome a 37-point Piper third quarter to lead 87-86. Fairley finished with 34 points.

Tony Citarella, former NYU cager, added 21 for Pipers. Bill Zilliox led DeMico's with 20 points. Leon Hanna and Joe Uhl potted 17 apiece.

John Van Totsorn tapped in the winning shot at the buzzer for Jeb's squeaker over the Bees. Van Totsorn hit 26 points and George Coates had 27. Hank Brown paced the Bees with 30 and Larry McClintock got 20.

Bando Bombs Yanks

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Sal Bando is making it hard for the Oakland Athletics to send him to Vancouver. And Bob Schellenberg is making it hard for the Philadelphia Phillies to keep him in oblivion.

Bando smacked two homers in Oakland's 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees in their exhibition baseball game Wednesday. That makes four homers for the young third baseman in two games.

Bando hit only nine homers all last year in 116 games with the Athletics' Vancouver farm club. In 41 contests with the big league club he went homerless.

Schellenberg's story is something else again. His grand-slam homer Wednesday was the big blow in the Phillies' 8-0 triumph over Houston. It was his second time at bat during the spring, his second homer and raised his RBI total to seven.

Royals Alive, Bullets Dead?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Royals are live, but the Baltimore Bullets are dying.

By beating Seattle 142-123 Wednesday night, the Royals remained one game behind idle Detroit in the fight for the National Basketball Association's final Eastern Division playoff spot.

But when the Bullets were beaten 100-96 by the lowly Chicago Bulls, they fell 2½ games behind the Pistons and their playoff hopes were reduced to prayers for a miracle.

And what miracles it will have to be. Baltimore has four games left: two with Boston, two with Philadelphia. Winning three of those plus a sudden collapse by both the Royals and Pistons is what is needed.

In other NBA games, New York beat Philadelphia 130-120; Los Angeles clinched second place in the West by clubbing San Francisco 142-106 and Boston crushed San Diego 144-118.

In the American Basketball Association, New Jersey beat Denver 96-87 and Indiana topped Minnesota 116-106.

The Knicks tightened their grip on third place in the East as Willis Reed's 32 points led them to victory. Hal Greer had 28 for the 76ers, who already have clinched the division title.

Jerry West returned to the Los Angeles line-up after missing nine games with a pulled muscle but was held to nine points. However, Elgin Baylor and Archie Clark took up the slack with 25 and 20 points as the Lakers routed San Francisco with a 78-45 opening half.

John Havlicek's 34 points for Boston helped send San Diego to its 12th straight loss. The Rockets now have dropped 29 of their last 30 games. Dave Gambee paced the losers with a career high 39.

The team will also have Tom Heemans, 6-7 Eastern Leaguer who was MVP two years ago; Bill Telasky, former George Washington standout and last year's MVP; Dave Bleau, former Cortland College standout; Tony Citarella, ex-NYU cager and MVP six years ago.

By CHARLES J. TIANO

The files of newspaper editors are always cluttered with poison pen, anonymous letters which customers always write but have neither the common courtesy nor the simple courage to sign.

The normal reaction is to ignore them, or file and forget them on the old principle that if a man believes strongly enough in a cause, he should be willing to stand up and be counted.

A discouraging number of people, some well-intentioned, resort to this kind of subterfuge. They prefer to hide behind a cloak of anonymity or some phony pseudonym. This is sometimes unfortunate because, from time to time, we receive letters of substance and merit but seldom, if ever, use them because we must know the name of the author.

On a moment's notice we could produce a fistful of letters beseeching us to comment on such varied items as (A) let's sack the football coach; (B) why do you always give favored treatment to certain athletes (particularly if they are of the same national origin) (C) why do you discriminate against certain sports and (D) why don't you say something about the way the basketball team is run, et cetera, ad infinitum, ad nauseum.

TODAY WE DEViate from a rigid policy and with appropriate comments publish an anonymous letter. We present it because it is a classic example of small town jealousy, pettiness, vindictiveness and unmasked prejudice. It reveals the inner soul of a man who must be pretty wretched, indeed.

Addressed to Charles Tiano, the letter reads: "When the heck are you going to realize that Mike Ferraro just does not have it? Every time you mention the young third sacker's name in your sports column, we can all expect all kinds of ridiculous praise and false honor describing Mike. A couple of weeks ago you really took the cake, when you said Mike was one of the best third basemen in the American League. Oh, come now, Charlie, you've been in the business a long time... you know better than that."

"Another thing, you're always knocking Mike Hegan. So Hegan hit .192 in a hand full of games, but he has good potential at first, he makes few errors and can play the outfield. Maybe his father is a coach with the Yankees, but heck, the Yankee brass must be keeping him for a reason."

"Mike Ferraro has been in the minors for six years now. If he stays in the minors for another ten years, that still is not going to make him a major league material. I know that you have a soft spot in your heart for Mike, him being a Kingston boy."

The difference between Ferraro and the big leagues is the difference between you, Charlie Tiano, a small town sports writer, and Dick Young of the New York News. Either you have it or you don't! Right?"

Lastly, I think if Mike Ferraro was Irish, you would write about the Mets."

The letter is signed: A College (a guy who misses Clete Boyer).

LET US COMMENT ON A College's nifty: 1) We plead guilty to having a soft spot in our heart for Mike Ferraro—as we would for any other Kingston area lad, regardless of race, color, creed or national origin with a chance to crash the big time.

After all, our town hasn't had a major leaguer in nearly 40 years. A big leaguer in our midst would be a wonderful thing for the kids in the community, for baseball and the area in general. I'm sure the vast majority of fair-minded sports fans share my feeling.

2) When "A College" says we ever described Mike Ferraro as "one of the best third basemen in the American League" he is willfully tampering with the truth. What we have said in the past, and repeat again: Mike is an authentic major league fielder... This from Manager Ralph Houk himself, New York sportswriters and Syracuse International League writers who said Mike was the best IL fielder since Don Wert of the current Detroit Tigers. No small town fabrication here. Just the simple facts.

3) We haven't mentioned Mike Hegan's name in months. We did observe a long time ago that the Yankees seemed to be playing out the string much longer with Hegan than the other rookies. The fact that his father is part of the Yankee brass could be just a coincidence.

4) As for the difference between Dick Young and Charlie Tiano, we never presumed to be anything more than a small town sports writer. But we've attended every major sports event in the world—some many times over. Any place Dick Young has entree to, so do we. We've met Dick Young in a thousand places and he never asked us whether we came from a big town or small town.

5) Mr. "A College" makes an issue of Ferraro's six years in the minors. Does he realize that Bobby Cox, Mike's chief rival for third base, has been knocking around for eight years?

6) If Mike Ferraro was Irish... well, this is where "A College" reveals his true, inner self.

To Mr. A.C. we say: May your prejudices wallow on high! You're sick, fella, and no doctor can help you.

Bruins and Rangers Are Tied for Second

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National Hockey League countdown still is in progress but the Boston Bruins have had the New York Rangers' number all season.

They proved it again Wednesday night with a 2-1 victory that left the two teams tied for second place in the East Division, one point ahead of fourth-place Chicago, which edged Pittsburgh 4-3.

In other Wednesday night action: Philadelphia opened up a three-point lead over second-place Los Angeles in the West Division with a 4-2 triumph over Minnesota.

St. Louis and Toronto fought to a 3-3 tie, leaving the third-place Blues four points behind Philadelphia and bringing the Maple Leafs closer to playoff elimination.

Detroit beat Oakland 4-2 in a battle for division cellar-dwellers.

Johnny Bucyk's 30th goal of the season with 4½ minutes to play provided the Boston victory, although the Bruins were outshot 40-22. Boston's Ed Westfall and New York's Jim Neilson had traded second-period goals, Westfall's coming with his team short-handed.

Philadelphia rammed three second-period goals past Minnesota's Cesare Maniago, who was playing with a broken jaw. It was only the fourth victory in 14 games for the slumping Flyers and all four have come against the North Stars.

A four-goal comeback in the third period lifted Detroit to victory after Oakland had forged ahead 2-0 in the opening stanza. Bruce MacGregor, Kent Douglas, Alex Delvecchio and Pete Mahovich produced the Wings' goals while Larry Popena and Ted Hampson scored for the Seals, who absorbed their fifth straight setback.

Duke Hopes to Erase Bad Memory in NIT

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duke Blue Devils hope to erase the disastrous memory of last year in the opening college basketball doubleheader tonight of the 31st National Invitation Tournament.

The Blue Devils, 10th ranked nationally in the final Associated Press poll of the season, take the court against high-scoring Oklahoma City in the second game of the twinbill. Marshall and St. Peter's of New Jersey meet in the first game.

The Blue Devils, who were not sure until last Sunday night they would get a second chance in the NIT as the Atlantic Coast Conference representative, failed in their first try last year. They lost in their first game to Southern Illinois, the eventual champion, 72-63.

Duke, 21-5, brings back third team All-American Mike Lewis, who averaged 24 points and 15 rebounds this season. Oklahoma City, 20-6, relies on honorable mention All-American Rich Travis, a 30-point average scorer.

Seeking to Improve Marshall, 17-7, and St. Peter's, 22-2, each will try to improve on last year's NIT performances.

Marshall, led by George Stone's long jump shots and 23.4-point game average, has visions of bettering its surprising fourth-place finish of 1967. St. Peter's, led by Eluardo Webster's 24.7 average, was routed by Southern Illinois last year 103-58.

Another doubleheader Friday and four games on Saturday complete the first round of the 16-team field.

On Friday, Temple meets Kansas and Villanova opposes Wyoming. Saturday afternoon Army plays Notre Dame and Long Island goes against Bradley. Saturday night it will be Duquesne vs. Fordham and Dayton vs. West Virginia.

The NIT opening headlines the college basketball tournament scene tonight. The second round of the NCAA tournament for the national championship is not scheduled until Friday night at four regional sites.

The small college boys were busy Wednesday night with the quarter-finals in the NCAA college division tourney at Evansville, Ind., and the second round in the NIT tourney at Kansas City.

At Evansville, Ashland, Ohio, beat Cheyney State 45-30, Indiana State downed Nevada Southern 94-75, Kentucky Wesleyan defeated American International 90-78 and Trinity, Tex., whipped Evansville 93-77.

Westminster, Pa., edged Monmouth, N.J., 70-69, Fairmont, W.Va., thumped New Haven 97-72, Eastern Michigan took Hanover 94-81 and Central Washington defeated Alcorn A&M 85-70 in the NIT at Kansas City.

In the other second-round games, Central State, Ohio, conquered Valdosta State 60-53. Drury humbled Northeastern Oklahoma 85-69, Dickinson, N.D., squeaked by St. Cloud State 70-68 and Oshkosh State beat Eastern Montana 82-75.

A discouraging number of people, some well-intentioned, resort to this kind of subterfuge. They prefer to hide behind a cloak of anonymity or some phony pseudonym. This is sometimes unfortunate because, from time to time, we receive letters of substance and merit but seldom, if ever, use them because we must know the name of the author.

On a moment's notice we could produce a fistful of letters beseeching us to comment on such varied items as (A) let's sack the football coach; (B) why do you always give favored treatment to certain athletes (particularly if they are of the same national origin) (C) why do you discriminate against certain sports and (D) why don't you say something about the way the basketball team is run, et cetera, ad infinitum, ad nauseum.

TODAY WE DEVIATE from a rigid policy and with appropriate comments publish an anonymous letter. We present it because it is a classic example of small town jealousy, pettiness, vindictiveness and unmasked prejudice. It reveals the inner soul of a man who must be pretty wretched, indeed.

Addressed to Charles Tiano, the letter reads: "When the heck are you going to realize that Mike Ferraro just does not have it? Every time you mention the young third sacker's name in your sports column, we can all expect all kinds of ridiculous praise and false honor describing Mike. A couple of weeks ago you really took the cake, when you said Mike was one of the best third basemen in the American League. Oh, come now, Charlie, you've been in the business a long time. . . you know better than that."

"Another thing, you're always knocking Mike Hegan. So Hegan hit .192 in a hand full of games, but he has good potential at first, he makes few errors and can play the outfield. Maybe his father is a coach with the Yankees, but heck, the Yankee brass must be keeping him for a reason."

"Mike Ferraro has been in the minors for six years now. If he stays in the minors for another ten years, that still is not going to make him a major league material. I know that you have a soft spot in your heart for Mike, him being a Kingston boy."

The difference between Ferraro and the big leagues is the difference between you, Charlie Tiano, a small town sports writer, and Dick Young of the New York News. Either you have it or you don't! Right?

Lastly, I think if Mike Ferraro is Irish, you would write about the Mets."

The letter is signed: A College (a guy who misses Clete Boyer).

LET US COMMENT on A College's nifty: 1) We plead guilty to having a soft spot in our heart for Mike Ferraro—as we would for any other Kingston area lad, regardless of race, color, creed or national origin with a chance to crash the big time.

After all, our town hasn't had a major leaguer in nearly 40 years. A big leaguer in our midst would be a wonderful thing for the kids in the community, for baseball and the area in general. I'm sure the vast majority of fair-minded sports fans share my feeling.

2) When "A College" says we ever described Mike Ferraro as "one of the best third basemen in the American League" he is willfully tampering with the truth. What we have said in the past, and repeat again: Mike is an authentic major league fielder . . . This from Manager Ralph Houk himself, New York sportswriters and Syracuse International League writers who said Mike was the best IL fielder since Don Wert of the current Detroit Tigers. No small town fabrication here. Just the simple facts.

3) We haven't mentioned Mike Hegan's name in months. We did observe a long time ago that the Yankees seemed to be playing out the string much longer with Hegan than the other rookies. The fact that his father is part of the Yankee brass could be just a coincidence.

4) As for the difference between Dick Young and Charlie Tiano, we never presumed to be anything more than a small town sports writer. But we've attended every major sports event in the world—some many times over. Any place Dick Young has entree to, so do we. We've met Dick Young in a thousand places and he never asked us whether we came from a big town or small town.

5) Mr. "A College" makes an issue of Ferraro's six years in the minors. Does he realize that Bobby Cox, Mike's chief rival for third base, has been knocking around for eight years?

6) If Mike Ferraro is Irish . . . well, this is where "A College" reveals his true, inner self.

To Mr. A.C. we say: May your prejudices wallow on high! You're sick, fella, and no doctor can help you.

Bruins and Rangers Are Tied for Second

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

The National Hockey League countdown still is in progress but the Boston Bruins have had the New York Rangers' number all season.

They proved it again Wednesday night with a 2-1 victory that left the two teams tied for second place in the East Division, one point ahead of fourth-place Chicago, which edged Pittsburgh 4-3.

In other Wednesday night action: Philadelphia opened up a three-point lead over second-place Los Angeles in the West Division with a 4-2 triumph over Minnesota.

St. Louis and Toronto fought to a 3-3 tie, leaving the third-place Blues four points behind Philadelphia and bringing the Maple Leafs closer to playoff elimination.

Detroit beat Oakland 4-2 in a battle for division cellar-dwellers.

Johnny Bucyk's 30th goal of the season with 4½ minutes to play provided the Boston victory, although the Bruins were outshot 40-22. Boston's Ed Westfall and New York's Jim Neilson had traded second-period goals, Westfall's coming with his team short-handed.

Philadelphia rammed three second-period goals past Minnesota's Cesare Maniago, who was playing with a broken jaw. It was only the fourth victory in 14 games for the slumping Flyers and all four have come against the North Stars.

Toronto, trailing St. Louis 3-2, pulled goalie Bruce Gamble with a minute to play and it paid off when newly acquired Paul Henderson scored the tying goal with 26 seconds left. Jim Roberts scored twice for the Blues, including a breakaway goal with his team a man short.

A four-goal comeback in the third period lifted Detroit to victory after Oakland had forged ahead 2-0 in the opening stanza.

Bruce MacGregor, Kent Douglas, Alex Delvecchio and Pete Mahovich produced the Wings' goals while Larry Popein and Ted Hampson scored for the Seals, who absorbed their fifth straight setback.

Duke Hopes to Erase Bad Memory in NIT

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duke Blue Devils hope to erase the disastrous memory of last year in the opening college basketball doubleheader tonight of the 31st National Invitation Tournament.

The Blue Devils, 10th ranked nationally in the final Associated Press poll of the season, take the court against high-scoring Oklahoma City in the second game of the twinbill. Marshall and St. Peter's of New Jersey meet in the first game.

The Blue Devils, who were not scheduled until Friday night at four regional sites. The small college boys were busy Wednesday night with the quarter-finals in the NCAA college division tourney at Evansville, Ind., and the second round in the NIT at Kansas City.

Duke, 21-5, brings back third team All-American Mike Lewis, who averaged 24 points and 15 rebounds this season. Oklahoma City, 20-6, relies on honorable mention All-American Rich Travis, a 30-point average scorer.

Seeking to Improve Marshall, 17-7, and St. Peter's, 22-2, each will try to improve on last year's NIT performances.

Marshall, led by George Stone's long jump shots and 23.4-point game average, has visions of bettering its surprising fourth-place finish of 1967. St. Peter's, led by Elardo Webster's 24.7 average, was routed by Southern Illinois last year 103-58.

Another doubleheader Friday and four games on Saturday complete the first round of the 16-team field.

On Friday, Temple meets Kansas and Villanova opposes Wyoming. Saturday afternoon Army plays Notre Dame and Long Island goes against Bradley. Saturday night it will be Duquesne vs. Fordham and Dayton vs. West Virginia.

The NIT opening headlines the college basketball tournament scene tonight. The second round of the NCAA tournament for the national championship is

At Evansville, Ashland, Ohio, beat Cheyney State 45-30. Indiana State, 24-4, beat Nevada Southern 94-75. Kentucky Wesleyan defeated American International 90-78 and Trinity, Tex., whipped Evansville 93-77.

Westminster, Pa., edged Monmouth, N.J., 70-69. Fairmont, W.Va., thumped New Haven 97-72. Eastern Michigan took Hanover 94-81 and Central Washington defeated Alcorn A&M 85-70 in the NIT at Kansas City.

In the other second-round games, Central State, Ohio, conquered Valdosta State 60-53. Drury humbled Northeastern Oklahoma 85-69. Dickinson, N.D., squeaked by St. Cloud State 70-68 and Oshkosh State beat Eastern Montana 82-75.

Auerbach Sees ABA-NBA War

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Celtics' General Manager Arnold "Red" Auerbach says he foresees a signing war between the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball Association this spring.

"I don't see how a signing war can be avoided. There wasn't one a year ago because the ABA hadn't played a game," he said Wednesday.

"Now it (ABA) will have a season under its belt. So there figures to be some serious bidding, but probably only where first-round choices are concerned," he added.

Auerbach cited Houston's Elvin Hayes and Louisville's Westley Unseld as "a couple of pips," whose price will be high.

"It's difficult to estimate how much prices will be inflated," he said, "but I suspect they may come close to being doubled."

Dr. Fred Holcomb Jr. of Wilton Country Club has been re-elected to the Board of Directors of the Eastern New York Golf Association.

Dr. Gerald Messia of Troy Country Club was re-elected president. Also re-elected were Clinton H. Traver, Columbia Country Club, first vice president; William I. Schwartz, Colonie Country Club, 2nd vice president; and Eugene J. FitzPatrick of Wolferts Roost, secretary-treasurer.

The ENYGA's first weekly event of the season will be held on May 8 at Red Hook and the annual championship is scheduled for July 12, 13 and 14 at the Columbia Country Club in Claverack.

Sectional qualifying for the National Open will be held May 20 at the Troy Country Club and the USGA Junior Boys qualifier is set for July 16 at a course still to be named.

Meanwhile, the ENYGA's Junior Championship event will be played Aug. 19 at Normanside and the New York State Junior Boys sectional qualifier will be held July 15 at Albany Country Club.

The area group also is cooperating with the state association in conducting a qualifying event for the men's championship tournament July 9 at Wolferts Roost.

Lamonica Leads AFL in Passing

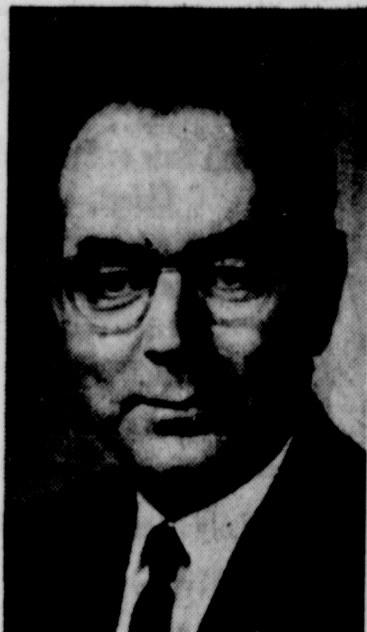

NEW YORK (AP) — Daryle Lamonica, who led the Oakland Raiders to their first American Football League championship last season, was the No. 1 passer in the league.

Official statistics released today showed Lamonica, who gained 3,228 yards through the air, ranked No. 1 ahead of Kansas City's Len Dawson, the 1966 leader.

Lamonica threw for 30 touchdowns, tops in the league, and completed 220 of 425 attempts.

Dawson led in completion percentage with 57.7 while New York's Joe Namath finished third with the most completions, 258, most yards gained, 4,007, and most average yards gained, 8.16.

The standings are based on a complicated formula which rates all of a passer's statistics.

Canada Luring Larry Csonka

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse University's All-American fullback, Larry Csonka, may be making his line plunges in Canada next fall rather than in Miami.

Csonka, the number one draft choice of the Miami Dolphins of the American Football League, told a reporter Wednesday that there "was nothing definite, but I have been in contact with all of the Canadian Football League teams."

"I like the country and I like to hunt and fish, and I find that most of the fellows who went to Canada from the states to play football did very well," the 6-foot-3, 235-pound Csonka said.

Kohls, Milligan, McCandlish on Section 1 Stars

It took several record-shattering performances, but the DCSL finally got some of the recognition many fans felt it long deserved.

Yesterday the Section One All-Tourney team was announced and three DCSL performers were on it.

Heading the list is Greg Kohls, a prolific scorer who smashed two tourney records. He is joined by Nat Milligan of Beacon, who busted a pair of Beacon High marks and Scott McCandlish, the first player to score 1,000 points for Arlington High.

It was the first time in Section One history that three DCSL athletes were on the all-tourney basketball team.

broke the one-game scoring mark with 51 and the total-tourney point production with 126 markers. He appeared in only three outings while compiling his amazing statistics. The old standard, 118, was set last year in four contests.

Milligan tallied 552 points this year for a one-season mark at Beacon. His career total of 1,177 is also a new standard.

Money Leader Allen Paces Buffalo BPA

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Bill Allen, current leading money winner on the Professional Bowlers Association tournament tour, has taken the first day lead in the $45,000 Buffalo BPA Open.

Allen rattled off the biggest six-game series of the tournament in his night-time block of 1413 Wednesday on games of 259, 257, 209, 245, 211 and 232 to go with his afternoon total of 1187.

In second-place, just four points back, is another left-hander, Skee Forensky of El Paso, Tex. He missed the tournament lead when he failed to double in the tenth frame. Bobby McMillin of College Point, N.Y., had a handsome 1348 to move into third-place.

Kohls, Milligan, McCandlish on Section 1 Stars

It took several record-shattering performances, but the DCSL finally got some of the recognition many fans felt it long deserved.

Yesterday the Section One All-Tourney team was announced and three DCSL performers were on it.

Heading the list is Greg Kohls, a prolific scorer who smashed two tourney records. He is joined by Nat Milligan of Beacon, who busted a pair of Beacon High marks and Scott McCandlish, the first player to score 1,000 points for Arlington High.

It was the first time in Section One history that three DCSL athletes were on the all-tourney basketball team.

Kohls, the Roosevelt star, broke the one-game scoring mark with 51 and the total-tourney point production with 126 markers. He appeared in only three outings while compiling his amazing statistics. The old standard, 118, was set last year in four contests.

Milligan tallied 552 points this year for a one-season mark at Beacon. His career total of 1,177 is also a new standard.

McCandlish, the 6-foot-9 1/2 giant that helped Arlington dominate the league, had games of 24 and 25 in the tourney, pushing his career total over 1,000, the first such total in Arlington history.

Politicians Head West, Wisconsin Primary Next

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — More than the scene shifts as the nation's political attention turns from the supposed administration stronghold of New Hampshire to Wisconsin, where President Johnson's policies have few all-out supporters among top Democrats.

At stake April 2 in Wisconsin's historically powerful primary which put John F. Kennedy on the high road to the White House in a head-on confrontation with Hubert H. Humphrey, are 59 Democratic National Convention votes, bound by law to the winner.

In addition to strong sympathies for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy among Democrats, is the possibility of a crossover by Republicans, now that the GOP primary has been conceded to Richard M. Nixon by the withdrawal of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

There is no registration of voters by party. Republican and Democratic ballots are given to each, and there is no way for leaders to enforce party loyalty even if they were so inclined.

Administration Critics

But Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Reps. Henry Reuss and Robert Kastenmeier are all frequent critics of administration activities, particularly the war in Vietnam, and have declared they will remain neutral. Sen. William Proxmire, an administration critic on other subjects, says he will support the President's war stand but is staying neutral in the primary.

And Bronson C. La Follette, two-term attorney general and heir to Wisconsin's most glittering political name, said in announcing his candidacy for governor this week that while he too would stay neutral in the presidential contest, his position on Vietnam was closer to the Minnesota senator's than to the President's.

Hopes for Eugene

Leslie Aspin, an aide to former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara until he returned recently to his home state as executive director of the Johnson campaign organization, said Wednesday that he thought "McCarthy will do better here" than in New Hampshire.

"He's got more things going for him here," Aspin said. "In our state the political leaders aren't coming out for the President."

Most Democratic Officials

New Hampshire including Gov. John W. King and Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre supported Johnson. Some political observers in Wisconsin were even more pointed than Aspin. The Milwaukee Journal, which supported Johnson in 1964, headlined an editorial "New Hampshire says Johnson is in trouble," and said in its text: "Whoever won ... Johnson lost."

There are differences in Wisconsin in addition to the political climate and the wide-open primary procedures. Unlike New Hampshire, Wisconsin has a substantial Negro population, and continuing racial problems.

Milwaukee was hit by the nation's third worst race riot, in terms of its four dead, last summer, and civil rights demonstrations have been marching since last August for a strong city open-house law.

In addition, there is the traditionally liberal University of Wisconsin, with its 54,000 students on two major campuses and several smaller centers. At Madison, students engaged in a melee with police last October in a demonstration so violent against the Dow Chemical Co. that on-campus recruiting has been suspended since. And many of McCarthy's volunteer organization leaders are Milwaukee and Madison faculty and students.

Jay Sykes, a journalism lecturer of the Milwaukee campus and metropolitan director for McCarthy, predicted that a good chance of carrying four of the 10 congressional districts, including those represented by Reuss and Kastenmeier and including the population bulk that could give McCarthy more than 50 per cent of the total Democratic vote. That would give him the 20-at-large delegates as well as 16 from those four districts.

Will to Benefit Four Local Institutions

Four local institutions will share in the last will and testament of Roy Hume, 89, retired Brooklyn banker, who died in this city December 28 leaving an estate estimated at $300,000.

Mr. Hume, a native Kingstonian, made his home at 150 Main Street upon his retirement.

Six principal beneficiaries will share $105,000 of the estate and the remainder which could be upwards of $100,000 has been divided in six shares in the recently probated will.

Those bequeathed a sixth share of the residual include Old Dutch Church, Home for Aged, Kingston Chapter, Volunteers of America, and the Children's Home, all of this city, and Home for the Blind, Brooklyn.

The remaining sixth will be held in trust for Kingston Lodge No. 10 F&AM. The trustees, Kingston Trust Company, are directed to hold, manage, invest, re-invest and collect and receive the rents, issues, profits and income for 10 years after probate, and after defraying all lawful charges to pay the next income therefrom semi-annually to Kingston Lodge. At the expiration of the 10 year term, the principal of the trust fund will be paid to the trustees of Kingston Lodge.

The will was signed August 12, 1964.

Officers Protest

New York State Correction Officers Association members will demonstrate at three locations Friday 10:30 a.m. to show disfavor with the eight per cent state pay raise approved by the governor.

Demonstrations will be held simultaneously at the Governor's office in New York City, State Capitol in Albany and State Office Building in Buffalo.

Many Factors Figuring In the Sharp Gold Raid

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncertainty, rumors, Vietnam, taxes, balance of payments, budget deficits and the hope of quick profits—all these factors add up to the sharpest raid on the U.S. gold supply in history.

The drain from the heavy speculative buying which has hit Europe in waves since British devaluation of the pound far outshadows in intensity even the heavy French purchases of several years ago.

U.S. officials, who have repeatedly voiced their insistence that the administration will continue to honor its commitment to buy and sell gold at $35 an ounce, foresee further shock waves until the international money system is reformed.

That reform is underway in attempts by the United States and Britain to end the deficits in their balance of payments and a new agreement among the non-Communist nations to create new international money not tied to gold when and if the need arises.

But the very attempts to end the balance-of-payments deficits has caused some of the uncertainty and fears the new programs will fail perhaps force a change in gold policy by the United States.

U.S. officials call absurd the belief that the price of gold might be changed.

A key element in the administration's program to plug the gold drain is the proposed 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes.

The extra revenues would allow paring of the U.S. budget deficit, Congress has thus far refused to enact it.

Also pending before Congress is an administration bid to lift the 25 per cent gold cover off U.S. currency, a move that would free gold now committed to reserves—and show U.S. determination to withstand the speculative attack aimed at forcing up the metal's price.

Some officials have said an escalation of troop strength in Vietnam could prompt Congress to hike taxes—but the prospect of a bigger war only feeds the fears of foreign gold buyers.

Fears that some change in the U.S. position of guaranteeing the price of gold also spark the buying despite repeated U.S. denials.

One source suggested that gold speculators themselves may be telegraphing such rumors throughout Europe because of the large volume of gold they have purchased—gold which will do them little good unless the price goes up.

Differs From Past
The current gold drain differs dramatically from the heavy gold losses of the past. This time the gold is going into private hands through the London gold market.

Although the United States sells no gold directly to private individuals it does reimburse the London market.

Politicians Head West, Wisconsin Primary Next

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — More than the scene shifts as the nation's political attention turns from the supposed administration stronghold of New Hampshire to Wisconsin, where President Johnson's policies have few all-out supporters among top Democrats.

At stake April 2 in Wisconsin's historically powerful primary which put John F. Kennedy on the high road to the White House in a head-on confrontation with Hubert H. Humphrey, are 59 Democratic National Convention votes, bound by law to the winner.

In addition to strong sympathies for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy among Democrats, is the possibility of a crossover by Republicans, now that the GOP primary has been conceded to Richard M. Nixon by the withdrawal of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

There is no registration of voters by party. Republican and Democratic ballots are given to each, and there is no way for leaders to enforce party loyalty even if they were so inclined.

Administration Critics

But Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Reps. Henry Reuss and Robert Kastenmeier are all frequent critics of administration activities, particularly the war in Vietnam, and have declared they will remain neutral. Sen. William Proxmire, an administration critic on other subjects, says he will support the President's war stand but is staying neutral in the primary.

And Bronson C. La Follette, two-term attorney general and heir to Wisconsin's most glittering political name, said in announcing his candidacy for governor this week that while he too would stay neutral in the presidential contest, his position on Vietnam was closer to the Minnesota senator's than to the President's.

The 32-year-old La Follette's father and grandfather were senators, his uncle a three-term governor.

Head of Wisconsin's McCarthy organization is a party regular, 10th district chairman Donald Peterson, who today asked Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to announce support of McCarthy in Wisconsin.

The President's most active supporters are Richard D. Cudahy, a businessman who became Democratic state chairman after the 1966 elections, and the state's other Democratic congressman, Milwaukee's veteran Rep. Clement Zablocki. As in 1960, when John Kennedy and Humphrey met in the kind of a contest that left scars for ex-cuses, Johnson and McCarthy will be alone on the Democratic ballot.

Under Wisconsin's new primary law, there also is a provision for electors to register a protest by voting for "none of those named."

There also is a space for write-in votes. But the organization which helped former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace win 266,136 votes in 1964 has broken down and there is no concerted effort to stage a write-in on his behalf.

And a spokesman for those supporting Robert Kennedy says there will be no write-in campaign in Wisconsin, even

Hopes for Eugene

Leslie Aspin, an aide to former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara until he returned recently to his home state as executive director of the Johnson campaign organization, said Wednesday that he thought "McCarthy will do better here" than in New Hampshire.

"He's got more things going for him here," Aspin said. "In our state the political leaders aren't coming out for the President."

Most Democratic officials in New Hampshire including Gov. John W. King and Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre supported Johnson.

Some political observers in Wisconsin were even more pointed than Aspin. The Milwaukee Journal, which supported Johnson in 1964, headlined an editorial "New Hampshire says Johnson is in trouble," and said in its text: "Whoever won ... Johnson lost."

There are differences in Wisconsin in addition to the political climate and the wide-open primary procedures. Unlike New Hampshire, Wisconsin has a substantial Negro population, and continuing racial problems. Milwaukee was hit by the nation's third worst race riot, in terms of its four dead, last summer, and civil rights demonstrators have been marching since last August for a strong city open-housing law.

In addition, there is the traditionally liberal University of Wisconsin, with its 54,000 students on two major campuses and several smaller centers. At Madison, students engaged in a melee with police last October in a demonstration so violent against the Dow Chemical Co. that on-campus recruiting has been suspended since. And many of McCarthy's volunteer organization leaders are Milwaukee and Madison faculty and students.

Jay Sykes, a journalism lecturer of the Milwaukee campus and metropolitan director for McCarthy, predicted that the Minnesota senator had a good chance of carrying four of the 10 congressional districts, including those represented by Reuss and Kastenmeier and including the population bulk that could give McCarthy more than 50 per cent of the total Democratic vote. That would give him the 20-at-large delegates as well as 16 from those four districts.

Will to Benefit Four Local Institutions

Four local institutions will share in the last will and testament of Roy Hume, 89, retired Brooklyn banker, who died in this city December 28 leaving an estate estimated at $300,000. Mr. Hume, a native Kingstonian, made his home at 150 Main Street upon his retirement.

Six principal beneficiaries will share $105,000 of the estate and the remainder which could be upwards of $100,000 has been divided in sixth shares in the recently probated will. Those bequeathed a sixth share of the residual include Old Dutch Church, Home for Aged, Kingston Chapter, Volunteers of America, and the Children's Home, all of this city, and Home for the Blind, Brooklyn.

The remaining sixth will be held in trust for Kingston Lodge No. 10 F&M. The trustees, Kingston Trust Company, are directed to hold, manage, invest, re-invest and collect and receive the rents, issues, profits and income for 10 years after probate, and after defraying all lawful charges to pay the next income therefrom semi-annually to Kingston Lodge. At the expiration of the 10 year term, the principal of the trust fund will be paid to the trustees of Kingston Lodge. The will was signed August 12, 1964.

Many Factors Figuring In the Sharp Gold Raid

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncertainty, rumors, Vietnam, taxes, balance of payments, budget deficits and the hope of quick profits—all these factors add up to the sharpest raid on the U.S. gold supply in history.

The drain from the heavy speculative buying which has hit Europe in waves since British devaluation of the pound far outweighs in intensity even the heavy French purchases of several years ago.

U.S. officials, who have repeatedly voiced their insistence that the administration will continue to honor its commitment to buy and sell gold at $35 an ounce, foresee further shock waves until the international money system is reformed.

Reform Underway

That reform is underway in attempts by the United States and Britain to end the deficits in their balance of payments and a new agreement among the non-Communist nations to create new international money not tied to gold when and if the need arises.

But the very attempts to end the balance-of-payments deficits have caused some of the uncertainty and fears the new programs will fail perhaps force a change in gold policy by the United States.

U.S. officials call absurd the belief that the price of gold might be changed.

A key element in the administration's program to plug the gold drain is the proposed 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes. The extra revenues would allow paring of the U.S. budget deficit. Congress has thus far refused to enact it.

Also pending before Congress is an administration bid to lift the 25 per cent gold cover off U.S. currency, a move that would free gold now committed to reserves and show U.S. determination to withstand the speculative attack aimed at forcing up the metal's price.

Some officials have said an escalation of troop strength in Vietnam could prompt Congress to hike taxes—but the prospect of a bigger war only feeds the fears that some change in the U.S. position of guaranteeing the price of gold also spark the buying despite repeated U.S. denials.

One source suggested that gold speculators themselves may be telegraphing such rumors throughout Europe because of the large volume of gold they have purchased—gold which will do them little good unless the price goes up.

Differs From Past

The current gold drain differs dramatically from the heavy gold losses of the past. This time the gold is going into private hands through the London gold market.

Although the United States sells no gold directly to private individuals it does reimburse the Bank of England for 59 per cent of the gold sold on the London market as part of a seven-nation pool whose stated aim is to keep the price at $35 an ounce.

Major gold drains in the past were in direct sales to foreign governments which had accumulated dollars through the U.S. dollar drain.

This country has had an international spending deficit in 17 of the last 18 years and this net outflow represented a potential and actual drain on U.S. gold because of the U.S. guarantee to foreign governments that they can convert their dollars into gold at $35 an ounce.

The U.S. gold supply reached a $24.56 billion peak in 1949, the year before the persistent balance-of-payments deficits began. It's now below $12 billion and still falling.

France alone bought $3.3 billion in U.S. gold from 1959 until she stopped buying in 1966. She has purchased no U.S. gold in almost a year and a half.

The U.S. gold picture for 1967 was promising until the British monetary devaluation on Nov. 18. The loss of gold through November was $270 million and more than half of this represented sales to U.S. companies for industrial and artistic use.

In December, however, the

Dear Abby

Better Safe Than Sorry

(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and my husband is 23 and we recently bought our own home. We also have a small baby. Adjoining it is a two-room efficiency apartment that we rent out to a 41-year-old bachelor. He is nice and polite and all, but here is my problem: Last month I found out that this man has a suitcase full of girl-type movies, a projector, and a screen. I am sorry to admit it, but I snooped around in his apartment when I went in to close his windows on a rainy day. Anyway, my husband's company is sending him away for four months to take a course, and I'm afraid this man might try something knowing my husband will be gone. I know that a man who looks at these movies isn't necessarily a sex fiend, but I'm worried, anyway. My husband says if he hasn't tried anything so far, he probably won't.

This man has never given us any trouble. He's quiet, keeps his place clean, and pays his rent promptly. He has no lease, so I'm wondering if we should get rid of him or not? If you tell me to get rid of him, what excuse shall I use?

DEAR WORRIED: Regardless of what I think, if YOU are "worried" about this man, get rid of him. Don't give him an "excuse"—give him a reason. The real one. He may be glad to leave.

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago my husband received a birthday card from his secretary who thinks he is just wonderful.

He has been carrying that card around in his pocket ever since he got it. He changes it from one suit-coat pocket to the next whenever he changes his suit.

Now why would a man want to carry around an ordinary birthday card everywhere he goes? Why can't he throw it away like the others he received? This one he didn't show me. Why?

DEAR PUZZLED: If he didn't show it to you, perhaps it isn't "ordinary." Why don't you clear up the big mystery and ask him?

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with two daughters. One is married.

ried and lives 100 miles away, and the other (I'll call her "Mary") is 16, and lives with me. Mary and I have always had an ideal relationship. She's sweet, pretty, a good student, and she's never given me a moment's worry.

About six months ago, an elderly cousin of mine told Mary that I had had an illegitimate child when I was 17, and now Mary can't forgive my sin. She says our relationship has been a "lie" inasmuch as she thought I was a "good" as I always wanted her to be. When I try to tell her that I made a mistake for which I have deeply paid, she walks into her room and closes the door.

Mary attends church regularly, is a candy-striper at the local hospital, and she goes with nice people. She's everything a mother would want her daughter to be. But now she wants to live with her married sister and finish school there. She wants nothing from me except to be left alone. How can I get thru to her, Abby? I am dying of a broken heart.

A MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: In time, of course, your immature daughter will grow up and realize that her cruel and unforgiving attitude is also a "sin." Perhaps (if you wish to confide in him) your pastor can get thru to Mary. Or, I will be glad to write to her directly, if you'll send me her name and address.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Bridge

Thinking Long, Playing Wrong

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Thirty-five years ago when there weren't many expert bridge players, everyone knew those days Waldemar von Zedwitz was the slowest playing expert.

His partners never minded. They were sure that after Waldy finished thinking, he would come up with the right play.

There are plenty of slow players today and when most of them go into a trance their partners shudder. Somehow or other they don't always find that right play when they get through thinking.

East was one of those slow players. It didn't take him long to play his king of hearts after a low card was played from dummy at trick one. Then East commenced to think while West shuffled.

West couldn't see that singleton ace of clubs in the South hand, but West could see that East was thinking of leading a spade and West wanted no part of a spade lead.

East could not see that singleton ace of clubs either but he might have. East was looking at 10 of clubs. His partner's three of hearts had been fourth best. South had bid and rebid diamonds to show a five card suit. This left him with only four black cards and three were likely to be the queen and two other spades.

Anyway, East thought and finally played his king of spades. South dropped the queen and had established a sure spade entry to dummy.

If East had returned a heart at trick two and used his top spades properly, declarer would have been set several tricks. Even after the king of spades play, East could have defeated the contract by shifting to the 10 of diamonds. But East did not make that play. Instead he led the heart back one play too late. South led a club to his ace, played a spade and wound up with six clubs and one trick in each other suit.

Emma, Steed in TV Farewell

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Wednesday was a night of farewell and hail on the three networks.

It was the night of the final adventure of the team of Mrs. Emma Peel and John Steed of "The Avengers." The mod-dressed and daring character of Mrs. Peel is about to be shelved so that Diana Rigg can return to her career as a serious actress. True, Miss Rigg will be back in next week's episode, but merely to help Mr. Steed-Par-junty and usually amusing trick Macnee-meet a new series, ABC obviously believes the in town who henceforth will public will accept Miss Thorsen chase villains with him since it has put the series in British-made action series. Lin- next season's schedule.

da Thorsen will have the role of Tara King. She will be less athletic than her predecessor and more conservative in dress.

The farewell adventure of the Steed-Peel combination was a pretty mixed up, busy affair involving some secret papers, a treasure hunt and a lot of automobiles racing through country roads.

On the hall side there were a couple of previews of coming attractions.

McMahon as Host

Ed McMahon, most often seen laughing at Johnny Carson's jokes or reading commercials on the "Tonight Show," made his debut as a variety show host on NBC's "Music Hall."

McMahon as Host

Ed McMahon, most often seen laughing at Johnny Carson's jokes or reading commercials on the "Tonight Show," made his debut as a variety show host — on NBC's "Music Hall."

The show was a series of vaudeville turns—comedians Shelley Berman and Joan Rivers and singing by Ed Ames, Sonny and Cher and the Young Rascals. McMahón, who will be host on most of this summer's "Music Hall" shows, did not do much more than introduce the acts and set the scene for the commercial breaks. But he was gracious, exuded good will and Robert Morse was a guest star on CBS's "Jonathan Winters Show" where he sang a song, faked a little dancing and took part in a sketch with Winters and Abby Dalton.

Not Much Change

Morse, who starred in the musical "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" on Broadway, has been chosen to play the lead in ABC's "That Life" series next season. The programs will consist of musical comedies using recurring characters and carrying them through major crises in family life. It was created by one of the writers of Jackie Gleason's "The Honeymooners."

Morse, who has a mischievous, little-boy way about him, did not have much chance to demonstrate his talents on the Winter show particularly because the material was not very impressive.

Winters, of course, was up to all his family and funny friends playing everything from a fashion designer for the geriatrics crowd to a South American dictator.

Office Cat

The salesmen were busy in personal conversation while a customer wandered around the store aimlessly. Finally the shoe department manager asked if he could help. The customer wanted a pair of comfortable leung-

Mr. Bell (the manager)—We have quite a selection of loafers. I'll see if I can get one to wait on you.

To the blonde dancer who had just finished her act on the floor, show the rich young man said sadly:

Mr. Blank—Tell me, why do you, a beautiful, talented—and apparently educated girl—dance in a sordid joint like this?

Blonde—I don't know unless it's the fact that I meet a lot more prominent young men here than I did when I was public librarian.

n and concluded that whatever when I say 'foive,' it's a sign a the stranger could do, he could that you are goin' to get hit in do better. "Done," he said, "it's the jaw. Foive!

The elderly man smiled, walked over to the wheelbarrow and wheeled it up beside the boaster. "Get in."

In Irishman crossing the golf links got hit by a ball. The player hurried up and finding that Pat was not seriously hurt, he said sharply.

Mr. Smith — Why didn't you get out of the way?
Pat — An' why should I get out of the way? I didn't know there was any murderers

Mr. Smith — But I called ‘fore,’ and when I say ‘fore’ that’s a sign you are to get out of the way.
But — Oh, it is, is it? Well, two hundred yards.
To forgive and forget you must heal the wound so that it will leave no scar to remind you.

12th: Last Pro test?

By HUGH REYNOLDS

More than 90 residents of the 12th Ward had what appears to be their final protest against multiple apartments at a public hearing last night in city hall. The rezoning request is now headed for the Common Council which is expected to vote on it at the April 2 meeting.

Some Old, Some New
Basically the same arguments were raised against the construction of the 152 unit, $1,500,000 project by Louis J. Hess of New Jersey by the residents of the Merritt Avenue, Fairview Avenue section of the 12th

Ward. There were, however, some new voices heard in support of the project, including Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan and S. James Matthews, president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

Garraghan's support was best described as tentative. He was at a Board of Public Works meeting in his office on the second floor and came up to the Council Chambers to say a few brief words. Basically, he gave his support of the apartments if Fairview Avenue were extended to Hurley Avenue to provide an access for residents of the new apartments. The mayor said the city could build the new street, adding that without the new street the project wouldn't be fair to the rest of the taxpayers.

Poses Questions

In his opening statement Garraghan asked many of the questions that were later voiced by the homeowners in the area. After admitting to not being too well informed on the details Garraghan asked, "Is their sufficient sewage, water and parking? Are these guys (Hess) a bunch of 'fly by night' operators who will leave the city with a bunch of walls after filing for bankruptcy."

Councilmen on Hand

The Common Council was well represented at last night's meeting. Members included Mrs. Florence Ludlow (D-First Ward), Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward), Frank Jablonski (R-Fourth Ward), Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-Fifth Ward), Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward), Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward) James Madden (D-Ninth Ward) Peter Fisher (R-Tenth Ward), Joseph Conlin (D-11th Ward), John Machione (R-12th Ward) and William Davis (L-13th Ward).

Norton, as chairman of the Council's Laws and Rules Committee, presided at the meeting. Machione, as representative of the 12th Ward, opened the meeting by stating, "We're not against apartments. We'd like to see downtown developed first."

Machione then termed a letter from the city planning board and Thomas J. Wickman, city engineer, attesting to the availability of water and sewage in the area, as "totally inadequate" and protested against it.

Hits Chamber Support

George Greco of 16 Merritt Avenue came out against the chamber of commerce's support of the apartment project stating, "The chamber had no criteria to make a recommendation. It was support without foundation and in complete disregard to the hundreds of taxpayers in the area." He then spoke of a "secret meeting" by the chamber adding that "no one showed up except the executive committee of the chamber."

Chamber President Matthews denied any secret meeting, saying, "the chamber does not operate that way. He then urged the Council to pass legislation providing for other areas in the city for multiple housing, in the future.

A show of hands for the zoning change was asked at the end of the meeting. Two persons in attendance were for it.

Khe Sanh: Comparatively Quiet

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy troops raked a U.S. Army supply convoy from ambush along winding Route 14 in the central highlands but American tanks and helicopter gunships splintered the attackers.

The U.S. Command said 48 North Vietnamese regulars and Viet Cong guerrillas were killed in the short, midday fight nine miles north of Pleiku City Wednesday. Twelve Americans were killed, eight were wounded and soldiers of the South Vietnamese armored unit escorting the convoy suffered light casualties, the command said.

'Moderate' Damage

The enemy sprayed the 4th Infantry Division convoy with bazooka-type rockets and heavy automatic weapons fire and inflicted "moderate" damage on the vehicles, a command spokesman said. This indicated as many as a third of the trucks might have been damaged or destroyed.

Tanks and armored personnel carriers of the 3rd Vietnamese Armored Cavalry raced past the convoy to attack the ambush site, after the fight began at 11:15 a.m., and at 11:25 helicopter gunships sailed into the battle.

Fighter-bombers arrived at 11:59 and within minutes the enemy troops fled. Army engineers with the convoy began clearing the narrow road, which links the 4th Division's headquarters near Pleiku with its units operating around Kontum and Dak To.

Just 17 hours later guerrillas ambushed a 30-vehicle convoy nine miles northeast of Saigon, on the highway to the big military base at Long Binh.

The U.S. Command said one American soldier and one enemy soldier were killed, and damage to the trucks was light, but the ambush underlined the threat from roving guerrilla bands operating in Saigon's suburbs.

200 Shells Hit Base

At Khe Sanh, the 14th anniversary of the start of the siege of Dien Bien Phu passed with enemy gunners hitting the U.S. Marine combat base with a below-average barrage of 200 shells Wednesday. Casualties among the 7,000 Allied defenders of the base in northwestern South Vietnam were as usual described as light.

Because of similarities between the situation at Dien Bien Phu and at Khe Sanh, there had been speculation that Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese defense minister, might mark the anniversary with a show of force against the besieged base. Giap directed the 56-day siege of Dien Bien Phu that ended May 7, 1954, with the capitulation of the French.

The U.S. Marine command at Khe Sanh considers that the siege there began 54 days ago with the attack Jan. 21 on the base and Khe Sanh village. "We are prepared much better now than we were in January," said a spokesman.

Bombers Hit Reds

U.S. bombers hit the estimated 20,000 North Vietnamese troops surrounding Khe Sanh Wednesday with five raids. The B52s also flew missions against enemy concentrations northwest of Dak To in the central highlands, and in the A Shau Valley.

At the eastern end of the demilitarized zone, fighting tapered off around Dong Ha, the U.S. Marine base near the coast. The only action reported there Wednesday was a clash between U.S. Marines and North Vietnamese units six miles north of Dong Ha. The Marines, who had killed 35 enemy soldiers in the same area the day before, reported killing 30 more Wednesday. One Leathernack was killed and 33 were wounded.

South Vietnamese troops, scouring a battlefield five miles north of Dong Ha where they counted 194 enemy killed Monday and Tuesday, found another 111 bodies, a government spokesman said. This raised the toll in the battle to 365 enemy and 39 government troops killed, 91 government men wounded and 12 missing.

The spokesman said Vietnamese Rangers and Marines sweeping through rice paddies and salt flats east of Hue killed 44 enemy soldiers in a string of clashes Wednesday.

The South Vietnamese government reported that 3,776 of report also said 1,041 civilians Hue's 145,000 civilians were captured by the North killed and 1,900 were treated for Vietnamese and Viet Cong wounds during the four weeks of troops that overran Hue.
